NEWTON BAKER PLEADS CAUSE OF FREE PRESS

Kentucky's Highest Court Hears Him.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Kentucky's highest court took under advisement tonight a motion for a writ prohibiting Circuit Judge Henry R. Prewitt of Montgomery county from barring from his courtroom reporters for the Knoxville News-Sentinel, which had offended him by editorial comment at the conclusion of a trial in his court. A decision will be given soon, possibly tomorrow.

Argument in this case today before the seven judges of the appeals court in their chamber in the state capitol, as well as the fundamental issues involved, mark it as a high point in the history of court and newspaper conflicts, and the decision will set an important precedent. A reporter from the Tennessee paper is waiting to take his seat in Judge Prewitt's court if the decision is favorable. Otherwise an appeal will be taken to the United States Supreme court.

Newton D. Baker of Cleveland, who is considered to have a good chance for the Democratic nomination for President next June, came here to argue the case for the newspapers represented by the Scripps-Howard organization. He was opposed by a stripling lawyer, Allen Prewitt, son of the judge.

Crowd to Hear Baker.

Mr. Baker's presence drew a big audience to the courtroom and many friends of Judge Prewitt came here from Mount Sterling to listen. After the session Mr. Baker was given a reception at the statehouse by the new Democratic governor, Ruby Laffoon. Mr. Baker was greeted with a burst of applause as he entered the courtroom shortly before 3 o'clock. When the seven solemn judges had taken their seats he was presented to the court by Attorney General Bailey Wooten. Chief Justice Richard P. Dietzman gave each side 45 minutes for argument.

The case has been somewhat complicated by the many motions, demurrers and answers filed, but as it was clarified by Mr. Baker it all centers around an editorial which appeared in the Knoxville paper at the conclusion of the W. B. Jones murder conspiracy trial in Judge Prewitt's court last month. This editorial was chiefly a criticism of the closing address to the jury of Commonwealth Attorney W. C. Hamilton.

Other Remedies Available.

"The court thought this was a reflection on him and on Kentucky courts," said Mr. Baker. "He instituted something approaching contempt against a News-Sentinel reporter who happened to be in his court in a subsequent case. He announced that so long as he remained judge no member of the News-Sentinel staff would be allowed to report in his court unless the paper apologized.

"The judge insists on interpreting the editorial as an insult to him and the sole ground on which he entered his orders was a punitive one, not in protection of a pending trial but as a punitive discipline. It is vicarious punishment. The statutes of Kentucky give him other remedies.

"The writ sought here is addressed to the wholesome jurisdiction given to this court by the constitution. There seems to be little doubt as to its propriety. If this order is allowed to be enforced there is no remedy for the wrong.

News of Trials Involved.

"The right to gather news is a property right. The publication of news publicity of trials is among the great safeguards of liberty in a free country. If what Prewitt has done in this case can be done, then in his discretion he can exclude any representative of any newspaper, all representatives of all newspapers, and hold a star chamber proceeding, from which the observing eye of public opinion is withdrawn. It is a great matter for your honors, what is latent in this application. If there is an opinion here which concedes to any judge the right of favoritism in his audience, if that is any part of the judicial power,

DEMAND INCOME TAX AS PRICE OF AID FOR CHICAGO

Threaten to Block All Relief.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Only echoes of yesterday's sharp battle over the income tax lingered in the legislature today, the downstaters maintaining a forbidding silence as they rested on their arms until Tuesday, when the house again considers the bill.

Both chambers adjourned for the week-end without much open comment on the situation, but certain of the rural members who take the impost to heart said off the record that the Chicago relief plan, notably the bill to revise the assessing machinery, will stand "as is" on second reading unless the income tax is "straightened out" and treated "respectably."

Threaten Retaliation.

The "straightening," they insist, must erase the amendments raising the exemptions to a point which makes the bill almost worthless, in the opinion of the downstate bloc. These additions were tacked on yesterday, just an hour or two after the senate had passed the assessor bill by the rousing count of 48 to 1. Abolishing the Cook county boards of assessors and reviewers and substituting a simplified unit, this measure is regarded as the key bill to come from the governor's tax conference and was strongly advocated by Mayor Cermak, later gaining the support of Gov. Emmerson.

Homer J. Tice of Greenview, a leading house Republican, laid down the law yesterday at the height of the battle, telling the Chicagoans that "if downstate helps Cook county, Cook county must help downstate."

Work for an Agreement.

Hope was expressed that during the week-end some agreement might be reached as to the future treatment of the income tax bill, the gossip including a half hearted prediction that the amendments might be taken off and the bill called on third reading as it stood originally. It only tallied 68 favorable votes yesterday on a motion to strike out the enacting clause, but some of its proponents would prefer that "decent burial" be given if it is slated to fall on the passage roll call.

The assessor bill was sent to second reading in the house today without comment. It reached the chamber yesterday afternoon after being signed by the senate officers, but was not called for advancement because of the struggle over the income tax then progressing.

It was learned today that an attempt was made by several downstate senators to call back the bill shortly after it reached the house, but this "was not allowed," in the words of one house Chicagoan. Senator Andrew S. Cuthbertson [Rep., Bunker Hill] told the senate yesterday afternoon during a violent attack on Cook county members that he had intended moving for a reconsideration of the assessor bill, only to find it had "passed from the hands" of his body.

Await Income Tax Action.

The story told today was that James H. Paddock, secretary of the senate, came to the house yesterday afternoon and asked for the return of the senate message transmitting the assessor bill to the house. It was not delivered to him because the bill was already on Speaker Shanahan's table.

A move considered significant was the senate's agreement to recess until Tuesday at 4 p. m., thus allowing time for the house to do what it will with the income tax in the morning. Since the assessor bill was put on second reading this morning, it cannot be moved to third until Tuesday, the income tax taking precedence in the procedure. If the impost measure is "kicked around" still further, the downstaters would have an opportu-

WOOD ALCOHOL SELLERS GUILTY IN LIQUOR CASE

Myron Retsky, owner of a drug store at 656 West Madison street, and Julius Levy, a clerk in the store, were found guilty by a jury in Federal Judge John P. Barnes' court yesterday of violation of the prohibition law. Evidence produced by Assistant United States Attorney Edward A. Fisher showed that the pair had sold wood alcohol in bottles marked "poison" to customers at 15 cents the half pint.

Analysis of the concoction revealed that it contained 3 per cent kerosene and 9.5 per cent wood alcohol, government chemists said. The case is said to be the first on record in this district where a defendant who sold denatured alcoholic spirits was found guilty of violation of the dry law. Each of the men faces a maximum penalty of five years' imprisonment and a fine of $10,000. Judge Barnes is to pass sentence today.

Mrs. Julia Johnson, 500 North St. Louis avenue, the mother of two children, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $1,000 by Commissioner Walker on charges of violation of the prohibition law. Agents arrested her Wednesday at 403 North St. Louis avenue, where a 100 gallon still, 2,300 gallons of mash and 50 gallons of alcohol were found. Mrs. Johnson declared she was only visiting the place when the raid occurred.

BISHOP MOUSON INVITES POPE TO BE A METHODIST

Richmond, Va., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Bishop E. D. Mouson of Charlotte, N. C., presiding bishop of the Virginia conference, in a speech here tonight invited the pope to join the Methodist church.

The bishop, whose speech opened the midyear meeting of the board of missions of the Centenary Methodist church said: "This is not a time for any one in the world to be throwing stones at any one else who believes in God.

"I am not here throwing any stones at the Catholics, although we have no intention of joining them. I invite the pope to join the Methodist church. Every one who believes in God should go hand in hand and shoulder to shoulder."

Discarded Piano Falls and Kills Two Small Girls

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—An antiquated upright piano which had been placed in a back yard in North Bergen to be chopped up for firewood fell on two three year old girls and killed them. The victims were daughters of John J. Weismiller and Clarence Weismiller, father and son, respectively.

Realty Dealer Found Slugged and Tied in Car

Bruno J. Boehm, 38 years old, a former trustee of the village of River Forest, who is head of the real estate concern of Boehm and Winterson, was found unconscious, with his skull fractured, in the garage of a vacant house near the Green Valley Country club in the outskirts of Wheaton late yesterday afternoon.

Boehm's hands and feet had been tightly bound with a clothes line to the steering column of his automobile. A piece of iron pipe about eighteen inches long, with which he is believed to have been slugged, was found on the running board.

Robbery Seen as Motive.

The only theory the police could advance was that Boehm had been attacked by a robber or robbers. This was corroborated by the fact that his wallet was missing, that a Kiwanis ring he habitually wore had been torn from his finger and tossed on the floor of the car, and that a small amount of change was scattered over the seats.

At the Elmhurst hospital, where Boehm was taken, it was said he was still unconscious late last night and that his condition was critical.

The vacant house near which the real estate dealer was found was a "model home" which he and his associates had built to promote sales of land in a subdivision. It faces Naperville road near Dawes avenue, Wheaton. The garage is a small wooden structure in the rear.

Victim Found by Boy.

A 10 year old boy, Finn Blikra, who lives near the model home, was wandering through the fields with a dog about 5 p. m. The dog, apparently scenting Boehm, ran up to the door of the garage, which was closed, and barked furiously until his young master approached.

The lad peered through a side window and saw the figure of a man slumped over the steering wheel. He also saw the ropes. Running to the home of Mrs. William Kuhn, nearby, Finn told her of what he had seen and Mrs. Kuhn notified the Wheaton police.

Police Chief Lyle Grange went to the scene and took the unconscious man to the city dispensary in Wheaton. There Dr. A. B. Jones gave first aid treatment before Boehm was taken to the Elmhurst hospital.

Identification was first made through the license number of the car, which had been issued to Boehm at 931 Bonnie Brae avenue, River Forest, where he lives with his wife and five children. Inquiry at the home disclosed that the slugging victim had left there early in the morning.

At his office, 426 South Crawford avenue, it was said that Boehm called at about 9 a. m. yesterday and reported he was going to drive out to the west suburbs to look over properties in which he was interested. He would be in, he said, before 2 p. m.

Sergt. Darell Schusler of the Wheaton police learned from A. J. Huitt, a resident of the neighborhood, that a gray sedan in which one man rode was driven away from the model house about 11:30 a. m.

This would indicate, the police held, that Boehm had lain unconscious in the car for five hours or more. His arms were paralyzed when Chief Grange reached him.

Finger prints on the side of the car were to be examined for possible clews to the identity of his assailants.

Makes Third Statement on Lingle Killing

Frank H. Bell, 31 year old killer, who had twice received an eleventh hour reprieve within the last three months, finally paid the penalty of his crime last night. Just after midnight he died in the electric chair at the county jail. His crime was the murder of Chris Patras, a north side restaurant manager. That murder was committed on June 16, 1930, in an attempted holdup.

Fifteen minutes before he was marched to the death chamber Bell signed a statement in which he stated that he was "perfectly sure" that Leo V. Brothers, convicted slayer of Alfred Lingle, is innocent of the Lingle murder.

Story Is Proved Fake.

The statement, ambiguously worded, indicated that Bell desired to affirm a tale he had given to authorities sixteen months ago concerning the killing of Lingle. The story was definitely proven false by credible witnesses at that time and Bell himself, during the course of his battle to escape the electric chair, signed a sworn statement that he had lied about the Lingle case and had told the story in a desperate effort to save himself from the penalty for the Patras murder.

The affidavit in which Bell stated he had lied and that he knew nothing whatever concerning the Lingle murder is in the possession of the jail warden, David Moneypenny. Bell said that he had fabricated his entire first story from newspaper accounts of the Lingle murder.

Bell's Newest Statement.

The new statement, made just before he went to the chair, follows:

"Frank Bell, having been baptized, made confession and received communion. He felt resigned to God's holy will and stated that he was perfectly sure that Leo Brothers is innocent of the crime he is charged with.

"The reason I make this statement is because I would have appeared at Brothers' trial if the Supreme court should have given him a new one. I regret that the Supreme court did not grant a decision before too late for me to act.

"I made a statement contradicting my testimony given to officials denying I had anything to do with the Lingle murder. My first statement which I made was the true facts pertaining to the Lingle case."

Priest's Assistants Witnesses.

The statement was signed "Frank H. Bell," was witnessed by Frank Roti, 531 South Grove avenue, Oak Park, and was notorized by Peter Paul Giddy. Roti and Giddy were assistants to the Rev. Ernest Kaufholb, O. F. M., of St. Peter's church, Polk and Clark streets, who during Bell's last hours baptized the doomed man and received him into the Catholic faith. Bell's parents had reared him as a Baptist, but the prisoner was converted to Catholicism yesterday afternoon.

His statement concerning the Brothers case was ambigious in that he sought to certify as true his "first statement" in the case. His first statement, given to police and to the state's attorney, did not mention the Lingle murder at all. Later he told a coroner's jury that he had driven an automobile in which the murderers of Lingle rode to the murder scene and away from it. He said his companions were Richard Sullivan, his partner in the Patras murder, and Joseph Traum, Indiana gangster now a prisoner in Leavenworth penitentiary.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, then coro-

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—One out of every four workers in Germany is now unemployed. Germany's total unemployed has swollen to 5,606,000. Only 3,148,000 are entitled to the dole, or so-called crisis help, and the rest are dependent on welfare organizations and public charity. There are 1,282,000 more persons out of work today than a year ago.

U.S. SENDS TOKIO STERN WARNING ON MANCHURIA

Tokio, Jan. 8.—[Friday].—(AP)—A bomb of the hand grenade type was exploded today near a carriage which immediately preceded that occupied by Emperor Hirohito. The carriage was occupied by Count Makino, minister of the imperial household. No one was injured.

The explosion occurred near the main entrance of the imperial palace, just as the emperor's carriage was about to enter the grounds.

The assailant was identified as a young Corean.

The bombing took place in one of the most picturesque spots in Tokio. It exploded just as the carriage of Count Makino was about to pass through the famous Sakaradamon, or Cherry Field gate, where a number of statesmen were assassinated during the Restoration period.

Hirohito was born at Tokio on April 29, 1901. He succeeded his father, Yoshihito, to the throne when he was 25 years old, on Dec. 25, 1926. He was married on Jan. 26, 1924, to Princess Nagako. There were two children, both girls. The second daughter died in 1923.

U. S. WARNS JAPAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Stimson today warned Japan and China that the United States does not recognize as legal Japan's occupation of Manchuria, nor will it recognize any agreement entered into by the two governments in the Manchurian crisis which violates the nine power open door treaty or the Kellogg anti-war pact.

In identical notes, disclosing a stiffening of the American attitude toward Japan's invasion of Manchuria, Mr. Stimson served formal notice on the capitals of the two powers that this government intends to maintain its historical open door policy as well as the rights of its citizens in China. He stated fluently that this government would not admit the legality of any treaty entered into which would impair the treaty rights in China "including those which relate to sovereignty, the independence, or territorial or administrative treaty" of that oriental republic.

Action Regarded Illegal.

Calling world-wide attention to Japan's repeated infraction of international treaty obligations during her invasion and occupation of south Manchuria, Secretary Stimson said this country regards Japan's status as illegal. Emphasized was the declaration that the United States would not recognize as existing or binding any treaty brought out by means contrary to the covenant of the peace of Paris. In other words this country would consider as outlawed any concessions or agreements wrung from China by military pressure.

In going to the assistance of China and asserting her own rights this country took a step it expects Great Britain and other powers will emulate.

Immediately after the notes were dispatched Secretary Stimson summoned the diplomatic representatives of the other nations signatory to the nine power treaty, Belgium, the British empire, China, France, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, and Portugal, and informed them of what he had done and gave them copies of the note.

Others Expected to Act.

The secretary's action was tantamount to an invitation for the other powers to take similar steps in separately invoking the nine power treaty. It is expected Great Britain and several other powers will follow the American example. Should others take similar steps the move would amount to a concurrent, although not necessarily joint, invocation of the nine power treaty to emphasize the rights of foreign countries in Manchuria. The question of what other powers will do is now under consideration in their foreign offices.

Whether the stiffness of the American note, complicated by the Japanese soldiers' attack on Culver Chamberlain, American consul in Mukden, may result in a break in diplomatic relations between Japan and the United States was a question that went unanswered tonight. American officials said, however, the Chamberlain incident, which still awaits settlement, played no important part in the action taken today. The United States is withholding acceptance of the Japanese apology until the soldiers are punished.

In a word the action of the state department served notice on the world that so far as the United States is concerned the status quo in the orient has not been changed by the Japanese invasion.

Objects Are Summarized.

Summarized, the objects of the state department were set forth as follows:

1. That nothing in the Japanese-Chinese settlement of their present difficulties must impair our rights or the rights of American citizens in China as set forth during the evolution and maintenance of the open door policy and in the nine power treaty formulated at Washington at the time of naval limitation conferences in 1922. This bound the contracting powers, including Japan, to respect the sovereignty, independence and territorial integrity of China as well as the open door policy granting all powers equal trade privileges.

2. That settlement of the current dispute must not be achieved by a violation of the methods agreed to in the Kellogg pact. This treaty, binding its signatories not to use force in the settlement of disputes, was considered violated when Japan went outside the railroad treaty zones to destroy Chinese administrative authority. Any move to force China to sign a treaty while Japanese troops remain on Manchurian soil would be considered a violation of the pact, it was said.

U. S. Motives Outlined.

The domination of Manchuria, the seizure of Chinchow despite worldwide warnings and asserted evidences of a Japanese intention to expand her control into China proper prompted the American action today. Reports that Japan was denying American citizens full open door rights, especially in trade, was a strong contributing factor. A third motive was found in the desire on the part of the American government to go on record as asserting its rights.

The American action, it was emphasized here is unilateral and does not require an answer. Attempts to wring from Secretary Stimson any clew as to what this country would do in event Japan continues to violate treaty rights and to violate the open door policy were unsuccessful. Neither was information available as to how far the major powers would go in protecting China.

War Barred by Treaty.

The Kellogg pact calls for no military or diplomatic steps. It was recalled, however, that the joint declaration of President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain two years ago following the Rapidan conference carried this statement: "Both our governments resolve to accept the peace pact not only as a declaration of good intentions, but as a positive obligation to direct policy in accordance with its pledge." The pact barred war as an instrument of national policy.

In event Japan violated this agreement in reaching an agreement expanding her authority in Manchuria, the United States, it was said today, simply would not recognize the treaty. Attempts also undoubtedly will be made to have other nations also outlaw such treaties or agreements.

The nine power pact calls for no other move than communication among the signatories and adherents when an emergency arises.

Provides for Conference.

"The contracting powers agree," it is stated, "that whenever a situation arises which in the opinion of any one of them involves the application of the stipulations of the present treaty, and renders desirable discussion of such application, there shall be full and frank communication between the contracting powers concerned."

In event this pact is invoked, its major value would lie in the strength of the combined appeal. It seems probable that continued infraction of the open door policy by Japan would be most likely to arouse other nations to a show of something more than verbal pyrotechnics. Since this policy was proclaimed to prevent the threatened dismemberment of China in the closing years of the nineteenth century, the open door has been consistently emphasized by each succeeding administration. American trade has grown rapidly in the orient in the last thirty years. That trade has quadrupled since the world war and even last year it increased 10 per cent.

Japan Clings to Manchurian Stand in Face of U. S. Warning

TOKIO, Jan. 8.—[Friday.]—(AP)—The Japanese government this morning had not yet received official word that the United States had invoked the nine power treaty in the Manchurian situation arising out of Japan's conflict with China.

It was understood, however, that Japan's policy remained unchanged, the Japanese government having contended from the beginning of the Manchurian outbreak that the affair concerned Japan and China and there was no occasion for any interference by a third party.

The government is expected soon to issue a statement clarifying its stand in Manchuria and Mongolia.

Insisted "No Violation."

Japan's contention heretofore has been that Japan had not violated the Briand-Kellogg pact or the nine power treaty, as the Japanese army was acting purely in self-defense.

The Tokio government has given repeated public assurances that it has no intentions of annexing any of Manchuria. It also has said that its military occupation of that territory was merely a temporary measure designed to obtain justice regarding Japan's treaty rights in Manchuria.

The invocation of the nine power pact was not a complete surprise, official circles indicated, as they long had felt from the reaction abroad that Japan's position was "misunderstood."

At about the time of the Japanese operations against Manchurian forces in the Nonni river area and at Tsitsihar last November, official circles apparently anticipated possible action on the part of foreign powers and the foreign office prepared a statement which was never issued.

London Taken by Surprise.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 7.—News that the United States had put Japan on trial by invoking the nine-power and Paris pacts too't London by surprise tonight, just when it was thought the Manchurian affair had died a natural death in the arms of Japan.

Only yesterday Britain had appointed Lord Lytton to attend the league of nations' "inquest" on the problem. Tonight the intervention of the United States shows a grave change has come over the situation, and there are reports of action being contemplated other than conferences which invocation of the nine-power pact primarily implies.

"It seems to be a matter of considerable importance," was Lord Cecil's comment.

A serious view is also taken by Prof. Gilbert Murray, chairman of the league of nations' union, who said:

"I had always considered that the action of Japan wasn't consistent with the nine-power treaty, and I am only sorry the United States did not call the attention of Japan to the point at the commencement of the affair, when it could have been done with less friction."

League of Nations Pleased.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, Jan. 7.—League of nations circles are pleased by the United States' invocation of the nine power pact in Manchuria. Only a brief report of it reached here late tonight. It lacked the details officials here desired to know on the manner of invocation. League officials have long been desirous for the United States to invoke this pact.

Text of the Note.

"With the recent military operations about Chinchow, the last remaining administrative authority of the government of the Chinese republic in south Manchuria, as it existed prior to Sept. 18, 1931, has been destroyed.

"The American government continues confident that the work of the neutral commission recently authorized by the council of the league of nations will facilitate an ultimate solution of the difficulties now existing between China and Japan.

"But, in view of the present situation and of its own rights and obligations therein, the American government deems it to be its duty to notify both the imperial Japanese government and the government of the Chinese republic that it cannot admit the legality of any situation de facto nor does it intend to recognize any treaty or agreement entered into between those governments, or agents thereof, which may impair the treaty rights of the United States or its citizens in China, including those which relate to the sovereignty, the independence, or the territorial and administrative integrity of the republic of China, or to the international policy relative to China, commonly known as the open door policy; and that it does not intend to recognize any situation, treaty or agreement which may be brought about by means contrary to the covenants and obligations of the pact of Paris of Aug. 27, 1928, to which treaty both China and Japan, as well as the United States, are parties."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, Jan. 7.—Rear Admiral Yates Sterling Jr. informed Gov. Lawrence M. Judd today that he has been advised by the United States navy department that unless the tense racial situation has been relieved before the fleet arrives for its February maneuvers, no shore leave will be allowed and no local entertainment will be permitted. The governor stated he is doing all he can "to correct the situation."

His statement followed the reading of a press dispatch from Washington which quoted Secretary of the Navy Adams as saying the fleet maneuvers might be cancelled in Hawaiian waters because of the recent disorders.

The grand jury reporting on the crime situation today recommended a grand jury investigation of the police department, and also a censorship of motion pictures and stricter enforcement of prohibition. Louis Kaikapu, escaped Hawaiian convict, today was sentenced to life imprisonment upon his confession that he had attacked and raped a young Honolulu matron last Saturday.

FEDERAL SALARY WAGE CUT BILLS TABLED IN HOUSE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The house expenditures committee today tabled all bills referred to it to cut government salaries.

Four bills had been presented. Three sponsors of the legislation—Representatives Shallenberger [Dem., Neb.], Rich [Rep., Pa.], and McGugin [Rep., Kas.] testified in support of their proposals.

The committee, however, decided that a reduction in purchasing power would have a more harmful effect than a continuance of governmental expenditures.

JAPANESE ARMY SEIZES 'GATEWAY' LEADING TO CHINA

Takes City on Great Wall; Chinese Evacuate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TIENTSIN, Jan. 8 (Friday).—A Chinese troop train of sixteen coaches passed through Tientsin early today from Lwanchow, bound for Peiping. It is believed here that Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, ousted Manchurian governor, is withdrawing troops from north of Tientsin to avoid a clash with the Japanese.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TIENTSIN, China, Jan. 7.—Japanese troops today captured the city of Shanhaikwan, real gateway in the Great Wall to China proper, according to reports from foreign sources here. Troop trains are bringing the Japanese to the city, which is located at the point the Chinese wall reaches the sea.

The Japanese are using the engines and rolling stock of the Japanese owned South Manchuria railway. The Japanese strength at "the gateway" was further increased today by the arrival of another airplane carrier and three gunboats from Chinwangtao, ten miles from Shanhaikwan. An armored train and supply trains steamed into the city late yesterday, but the city was not occupied until today.

Japanese Refugees Return.

Fifty Japanese women and children, who have been refugees here for some time, returned to Shankaikwan today accompanied by 100 Japanese soldiers from the Japanese garrison at Tientsin.

According to reports from the Peiping-Mukden railway, the Japanese military authorities refused to permit the Chinese-British staff to resume operation of trains between Tientsin and Mukden, giving as their reason the presence of Japanese military trains along the line.

Two service trains on the Peiping-Mukden line, which were dispatched from Tientsin carrying 300 members of the railway staff and which left the Chinchow area because of Japanese military activities, are now delayed at Shanhaikwan, unable to proceed despite the fact that the Japanese military command, both here and at Shanhaikwan, promised to permit the trains to proceed to Mukden.

Plan Military Review.

No information is available here regarding the 3,000 Chinese soldiers under Gen. Ho Chu-kuo, who were stationed at Shanhaikwan and were ordered to evacuate by courier yesterday. It is believed they have gone to Lwanchow, inside the Great Wall, where between 20,000 and 30,000 other Chinese troops from Chinchow are quartered.

Lieut. Gen. Kashii, commander of the Japanese forces here, today invited the foreign consular body to attend a grand review of Japanese troops which is scheduled for tomorrow.

The Japanese posted a proclamation in Shanhaikwan stating that the occupation of the city was necessary. Some of the city is within the Great Wall of China.

Four Expeditions Launched.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A Japanese headquarters communique today said four expeditions against Chinese irregulars are proceeding in the areas around Mukden, Liaoyang, Hsinmin and Tiehling. About one company is participating in each, the communique said.

One Japanese and forty Chinese were killed in a clash five miles north of Liaoyang, it said, when the Japanese scattered 300 bandits. It added that a strong irregular force attacked Tiehling, opened the prison, liberated all prisoners and set the prison buildings on fire before Japanese forces arrived.

Drag Russians Through Streets.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Jan. 7.—Harbin last night was again a terror stricken city as Chinese mercenaries, despite a truce with the Russians, renewed their reign of terror. They hunted Russians from house to house and arrested communists and White Russians indiscriminately. They were dragged to prison through the streets with their hands tied behind their backs on charges of communistic activities.

These activities were instituted despite the joint protest of foreign consular officials addressed to the Chinese authorities following the riots two days ago. New disorders were precipitated by the alleged shooting by Chinese authorities of a Russian youth.

Spanish Envoy in Japan to Be Ambassador to U. S.

MADRID, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Juan Cardenas, Spanish minister to Tokio, has been tentatively selected as new ambassador to Washington, foreign office circles said today. The cabinet still has to approve the selection officially, but it was considered certain they will do so.

CUSTER DELAYS ENTERING RACE FOR GOVERNOR

Emmerson Offers to Back Galesburg Man.

BY PARKE BROWN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Omer N. Custer of Galesburg told friends here today that he temporarily had postponed the announcement relative to his candidacy for governor that previously he had indicated that he would make immediately. It is believed now that he will not speak until some time next week.

But developments in connection with his candidacy left no doubt in the minds of state house politicians that Gov. Louis L. Emmerson intends to retire at the close of his present term. For the greater part of the last 24 hours the governor has been urging Custer to run and has given him first call on the support of the administration.

Plans to Look Over Ground.

The best information available is that Custer has not reached a final decision, but it is believed he will determine to go as soon as he receives definite word of certain support that he considers important. His backers say he can count on that support, but he is said to have decided to take time to look over the ground in person before making any announcement.

It was disclosed that last night's conference at the executive mansion in which Gov. Emmerson, Custer and his close friend Garrett Kinney of Peoria, director of finance, were the principals, lasted until nearly 3 o'clock this morning. Kinney, as well as Emmerson, is said to be eager to see Custer run, but Custer insisted on going over the whole situation carefully before reaching a conclusion.

One proposal, it was reported in the state house gossip today, was that Emmerson announce his own unwillingness to seek a second term and designate Custer as his choice as his successor. This was declared inadvisable on the grounds that opponents then would charge that Custer had taken over the dry label they say was pinned permanently on Gov. Emmerson by his veto of the state dry law repealer.

Opposition to Len Small.

It is understood now that the conference decision was to have Custer make his own announcement as soon as he is ready to do so and to let later developments take care of themselves.

The potential candidate's record within the party has been one of consistent and persistent opposition to Len Small and if he enters the race with the field limited to its present makeup he will be the only entrant of importance with that sort of a record.

HUGE SNOWDRIFTS IN CALIFORNIA BLOCK RESCUE OF VICTIMS

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Huge snow drifts forming a barrier of 8 to 10 miles tonight stood between rescue crews with tractors and snow plows and 200 or more marooned sufferers in isolated sections of the high Sierras. Equipment broke down last night as the rescue workers were plunging away for the third successive day at the snow mountains. Several villages in the Mono mountain basin have been cut off since before Christmas. No attempt will be made to keep the road open after it is cleared for entrance of supplies. Inhabitants will be warned to move out of the beleaguered section.

RUSSIAN TRAINS CRASH; AT LEAST FIFTY ARE KILLED

Freight Hits Injured Put on Parallel Track.

MOSCOW, Jan. 7.—(AP)—At least fifty persons were killed and many others injured in a rear end train collision Saturday, about nine miles northwest of Moscow, it was learned today.

The heavy casualty list resulted in part from the fact that the injured were placed by rescuers along a parallel track to await the arrival of the medical crews from Moscow. A freight train came along, and before the engineer coud apply the brakes his locomotive and several box cars had plowed through the injured.

Government and railway officials attempted to suppress all news of the disaster, so there were no official figures on the total casualties. Some estimates were that several hundred were killed.

Two six car local trains, both packed with passengers, were involved in the collision. One of them had halted at a switch head preparatory to taking a side track along a stretch of double track. The other crashed into its rear, scattering bodies and debris along the right of way and plowing through almost its entire length.

MRS. SIMMONS BARES COURTSHIP OF RICH LAWYER

Says Husband Professed Great Love.

The wooing of Parke E. Simmons, 73 years old, art collector and wealthy retired lawyer of Evanston, was described from the witness stand in the chambers of Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday by Mrs. Mary de Demar Wright Simmons, 53 years old, 1254 Columbia avenue, the attorney's wife. Mrs. Simmons is suing for separate maintenance. The hearing was on a motion for temporary alimony made by Mrs. Simmons' attorney, Samuel T. Lawton.

Before the three hour session ended Mrs. Simmons testified to many clandestine automobile rides into the forest preserves with Simmons before their marriage on Jan. 12, 1930. She also explained her version of the incidents which caused her husband to file a bill for the annulment of their marriage on the grounds that he had been tricked into the ceremony in the false belief that he was to become a father. Judge Trude recently ruled against this suit, deciding that the charge did not constitute a basis for court relief.

Move Hearing to Chambers.

Judge Trude's courtroom was crowded when the suit was called for trial and Attorney Lawton asked that the hearing be moved into chambers to spare the feelings of the principals. Attorneys Charles S. Deneen and John M. Zane, who represented Simmons, concurred, and the request was granted.

Mrs. Simmons testified that she was an old friend of Mr. Simmons and his family, having known them all for more than 20 years. His elder sister she always called "Aunt Nell," and his mother "Grandmother," she said. Her first marriage, to Daniel Wright, a Hartford, Conn., manufacturer, took place in the home of Mrs. M. B. Cottrel, another sister of Simmons, in 1917, she said.

After her husband's death in 1920, she testified, she returned to Chicago and resumed her friendly relations with them all. Many times, she said, she visited Mr. Simmons' home at 1746 Hinman avenue, Evanston, sometimes to see his mother and on other occasions to hear him play the organ installed there.

Takes Her Hand at Dance.

It was not until June, 1930, that Simmons evinced more than casual friendship for her, she said. His first declaration, she added, was made during a dance at the Shawnee Country club in Wilmette.

"I didn't answer him, but walked over to a friend and sat down on a sofa. Mr. Simmons followed me over and took hold of my hand. My friends were very shocked and gave me the most peculiar glances so that I got up and walked downstairs.

"Mr. Simmons followed me, took my hand again, and then said, 'Mae, don't you know that I've always loved you?'"

Husband Warned by Court.

During this testimony Simmons had been seated just across the table from his wife and at the left hand of Judge Trude, watching her intently. As she spoke he turned to Attorney Zane and in a stage whisper, which was heard plainly, said: "That's a lie." The judge turned to him and remarked that he must save his communications to his lawyers until later.

Their next conversation, she said, took place as a result of a chance meeting in a railway coach. It was then that Simmons had invited her to ride with him and she accepted, going to the Main street railroad station in Evanston where they found his automobile.

Drive to Forest Preserve.

"We drove into the forest preserve," Mrs. Simmons said, "and Mr. Simmons turned to me. 'Mae,' he said, 'I've wanted to be everything to you for the last ten years. My first wife was a terrible nagger. I was unhappy with her.'"

"He told me of affairs he had had with Miss Harlow and with another woman, I just can't recall her name, but he vowed that all these others faded into insignificance in his wonderful love for me. And he demonstrated it in every way he could."

Here Mrs. Simmons fumbled in her purse, producing a handkerchief which she held to her eyes.

"I had been a widow for 11 years," she said, "and I'm a very affectionate person. More so than most. With all these attentions from Mr. Simmons I fell desperately in love with him. I don't know how to tell these things. I can't express myself. But I'm not a bad woman. Mr. Simmons knows I'm not."

Witness Begins to Weep.

She launched an appealing glance toward her husband, who turned quickly away as her eyes met his. She began to weep softly.

"Parke said he was lonely," she resumed. "He wanted me to be everything to him. I said that I'd go west if anything happened. Then I used to meet him often. We would go to lunch at the University club or the South Shore Country club, and then go riding."

Eventually, Mrs. Simmons said, she went to the offices of Dr. Carlton L. Rowell, who told her she was to become a mother. She asserted that she had planned to hide this news from Simmons. A friend, Miss Mamie Pollard, learned of her condition, she said, and telephoned to Simmons.

"He came to see me at once," she said, "and was not a bit upset by the news. He told me that if he had looked the world over I was the woman he wanted to be the mother of his children. He said he'd always wanted an heir.

Insists on Marriage, Claim.

"But I didn't want to marry Mr. Simmons. I told him there were two things open. I could jump into the lake or I could go away and have the child. He said he wouldn't hear of anything but marriage."

They were married at Geneva, Ill., Mrs. Simmons asserted, and a few days later she suffered an accident while packing her trunks preparatory for their California trip. She charged that Mr. Simmons learned of this immediately, and nevertheless they departed two weeks later.

The honeymoon in Los Angeles was "wonderful," testified Mrs. Simmons. When they returned to Chicago in April Simmons went to his own home and she lived with a friend.

Several weeks later, she said, her husband told her that his sister, Mrs. Nell Gibbon, who lived with him, was jealous of her. He said that he had told her that he had been forced into the marriage, according to Mrs. Simmons. When he refused to tell Mrs. Gibbon the truth and to return with his wife to California, they parted, Mrs. Simmons said.

Judge Trude continued the hearing until Jan. 16 when Mrs. Simmons will be cross-examined and Mr. Simmons will take the stand.

COAST GUARDS TELL OF MILLION LIQUOR BRIBES

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Wholesale corruption of coast guardsmen with bribes totaling more than $1,000,000 by Long Island liquor interests has been disclosed in the confessions of twelve coast guardsmen, District Attorney Ameli admitted tonight.

The coast guardsmen, cornered in a five departmental federal investigation, confessed that not only were whole companies in the Fire Island peninsula district bribed to permit cargoes of liquor to be landed, but that commissioned officers and "higher-ups" were paid huge sums to keep their eyes shut.

The district in which the corruption centered, the investigation disclosed, is that of which Vannie Higgins and Big Bill Dwyer are booze overlords.

Higgins, indicted with Morris Grossman, chief of police of Long Beach, L. I., and seven Long Beach policemen, is scheduled for trial in federal court in Brooklyn Tuesday on charges of violating the prohibition laws.

Higgins and the policemen are charged with conspiracy in smuggling $10,000,000 in liquor within three years. Most of this smuggled liquor, it is charged, was brought in with the connivance of bribed coast guardsmen.

Already thirty coast guardsmen are under arrest, a commander and members of his staff are being investigated and men higher up are suspected.

GETS CHARTER TO ACT AS RECEIVER FOR GOVERNMENT

Andrew B. Hulit, promoter as far back as 1912 of "grand expositions" that failed to materialize, was named yesterday in dispatches from Springfield as one of seven Chicagoans who were granted a state charter for the Home Defenders' association.

The dispatches related that the incorporation papers propose receivership for any taxing body in Cook county that is unable to meet its obligations. In Chicago, Hulit said the purpose of the association is to terminate the city traction trust fund, abandon the proposed subway, and turn over $35,000,000 of the tax warrants held in that fund to the school board. The city warrants are of the same year as the ones the school board was unable to sell.

Sitting in an office which the association had just moved into, Hulit said the inspiration for the association had come from the interest of several elderly and unmarried women in children. Hulit is also pushing another plan, the Star Heart First Aid Service, which will take care of persons who faint on street corners, he said. The dues for the persons who want the service were said to be $3.50 a year.

SECOND BOMBER CONFESSES; SEIZE UNION OFFICIAL

Bakery Plot Is Bared in Statement to Judge.

Joseph Siegel, 29 years old, who was shot in both legs and captured by the police as he attempted to set off a dynamite bomb on the roof of a bakery on Nov. 6, decided yesterday after two months of silence to confess and put himself in the same position as Roy Rapp, a confederate, who told his story as soon as he was taken before Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks.

The prosecution now has confessions from both actual bombers and as a result of Siegel's statement, Ben Stone, a business agent for the baker's union and Ben Adler, a restaurant owner at 3417 Roosevelt road, are in custody.

Siegel, it become known yesterday, had made arrangements through Attorney Frank A. McDonnell to give his confession to Prosecutor Brooks, who has obtained the only bombing convictions in the county.

Confess First to Judge.

Instead of telling his story to Prosecutor Brooks, however, it was learned yesterday that Chief Justice Harry Fisher sent for Siegel Wednesday evening and he confessed.

Assistant State's Attorney Daniel Covelli, who is assigned to Judge Fisher's court, was finally called in to take the confession and handle the investigation, which heretofore had been under Brooks' supervision. The latter joined Covelli in the inquiry yesterday afternoon when he learned of the new confession, but he refused to discuss the auspices under which the confession was obtained.

Fails to Carry Out Promise.

It was learned from attachés at the county jail that Siegel decided to confess when Adler, who he claims was a go-between in the dealings he had with Stone, failed to make good on his promise to supply a bond and pay for a lawyer. Several attempts were made during recent months to have Judge Fisher grant bond to Siegel, but Prosecutor Brooks always made a vigorous protest.

Siegel, who also uses the name of Whitey Miller, and Rapp were arrested as they were about to set off a bomb at the bakery of Joseph Becker, 1502 South St. Louis avenue.

Tells Story of Plot.

Rapp admitted his guilt, but Siegel refused to break his silence until he talked to Judge Fisher. Siegel in his statement charges that Rapp, who had previously involved him, was a "professional bomber" and not the novice he posed as being. Siegel said that Stone, the business agent, approached Adler about getting a man to do five or six bombing jobs. He said Adler turned the job over to him and that he in turn hired Rapp. Siegel said that they dickered over the price of $300 offered for the performance of the first job, but that Rapp finally agreed to do the bombing if he was given all the jobs.

WORLD'S TOTAL DEFAULTS NOW THIRTY BILLIONS

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The world total of government, state and municipal obligations, both external and internal, in default stands at almost thirty billions, almost equivalent to the total of the national debt of Great Britain at par of exchange, according to a survey prepared for the Foreign Policy association by Dr. Max Winkler, authority on international financial statistics.

The survey will be forwarded to the senatorial committee which has been investigating foreign financing in this country since the war. Many recent defaults not included in figures disclosed by the senate committee are contained in Dr. Winkler's report, it is understood, and are chiefly those of Latin-American nations.

The defaults given by Dr. Winkler are for the entire world and are by no means held exclusively by American investors. It is probable that the bulk of the defaulted obligations are held by American, British and French investors.

The defaults listed by Winkler are all as of Jan. 1 and for the most part include only those that have taken place since the war, many in the last year.

FIRE DESTROYS SUMMER HOME.

HITLER SITS IN JUDGMENT ON VON HINDENBURG

Fascist Chief Is Asked to Help Prolong Term.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—Adolf Hitler, once a noncommissioned officer in the German imperial army, is sitting in judgment on his old field marshal, President Paul von Hindenburg. Chancellor Bruening today officially asked the leader of the National Socialists [Fascists] to support a motion in the reichstag to extend President von Hindenburg's term, which expires in May, one year to save the country from the turmoil of a regular presidential election.

Chancellor Bruening is anxious to avoid a presidential campaign in this year of depression and wants to concentrate all Germany's forces to obtain, if not a total abolition, at least a drastic cut in reparations payments and a "square deal" at the disarmament conference.

Hindenburg Willing to Stay.

Von Hindenburg at first refused to consider an extension of his term, but finally agreed to remain at his post providing the reichstag asked him to stay. An extension of the term is not provided for in the constitution and therefore a two-thirds majority vote is required.

Communists, National Socialists, and Nationalists have opposed Hindenburg's reëlection. The government is now trying to win over the Hitlerites to Von Hindenburg. On Tuesday Gen. Wilhelm Goener, minister of war and of the interior, sent word to Hitler for the former Austrian painter to come to Berlin from his headquarters at Munich. Hitler came with his staff, conferred with Gen. Groener and then had a long conference with Gen. Groener and Herr Bruening this afternoon.

The government believes that if the Fascists can be induced to support Von Hindenburg, Dr. Alfred Hugenberg's Nationalists will follow suit. Hitler demands concessions for cooperation of his Fascists, however, and his first demand is for new reichstag elections, as well as new elections in Prussia. It is reported that the government is willing to grant the Fascists a seat in the cabinet as a reward.

Frowns Upon Elections.

Chancellor Bruening, it is reported, has refused to consider new reichstag elections now since this reichstag's term does not expire until September, 1933. The Fascists, on the other hand, fear that if they fail to come to an agreement with the chancellor, he will denounce them as boycotters of national unity on the eve of the reparations and disarmament conferences.

The leaders of the Socialists also met with Chancellor Bruening tonight. The possibility of reëlecting Von Hindenburg was discussed. They do not believe a two-thirds majority can be obtained in the reichstag to prolong his term and they are preparing for the regular presidential campaign.

Duke Adolph of Mecklenburg is being boosted by strong groups of Fascists as their presidential candidate. Premier Otto Braun of Prussia is one of the chief candidates of the Socialists, and Gen. Groener has the backing of all the moderate republican parties. Bruening, however, still hopes it will be possible to enforce an extension of Von Hindenburg's term.

KENTUCKY HIGH COURT PONDERS FREE PRESS CASE

Newton D. Baker Pleads for Its Preservation.

"That was a temperate editorial. In the reports of the Wickersham committee (of which Mr. Baker was a member) there is a volume on lawlessness and law enforcement, dealing with misconduct on the part of prosecuting officers, stimulated by zeal and the interperance of advocacy. In 95 per cent of these cases we find the calm, serene atmosphere of the appellate court discovering this prejudice and reversing the case (the Jones case is to be appealed on this ground partly and will come before this court).

"Overheated" Pleadings.

"For much milder comment than Mr. Hamilton, the commonwealth attorney, is reported to have made this court has reversed cases. I quote from the Gastonia, N. C., trials. Mr. Hamilton went further than any case I am able to find in the report when he spoke of bonfires of rejoicing in Moscow if this defendant was released, and that the Red flag would displace the American flag.

"If the newspapers of Kentucky and Tennessee are not free to point out the introduction of overheated political and economic argument as prejudicial to a defendant, we should know it. Newspapers frequently make mistakes. It is but an instantaneous photograph of a constantly moving situation. But when the last word is said, from the day of the Declaration of Independence, one of the great safeties of the liberty of the people has been an informed public opinion and an alert, a vigorous press.

"Prewitt had no right as a judge to take away from this paper the right to send representatives there. The News-Sentinel has the right to send its own reporters there. A fair, open trial means a public trial, and no rule of exclusion based on prejudice or favoritism. One of the great civil liberties of the people is by implication imperiled. The exercise of personal spleen ought not to be allowed as a corrective measure against the absentee owner of a newspaper."

Judge Missed Opportunity.

In regard to Judge Prewitt's answer for his action, Mr. Baker said that the net result of it was rather a criticism of the judge than a justification of his act. He referred to the judge as a man of great dignity and fine character, but said he had missed a great opportunity in not holding the advocates down to the evidence in this case.

Mr. Prewitt had not proceeded far in his argument before he was questioned from the bench regarding the nature of the proceedings that his father had started against the reporter, whether it was not a contempt case in its essence, and if so, whether the Kentucky statutes did not make it impossible for contempt to be committed outside the presence of the court? Mr. Baker had also been questioned along this line and agreed with this version. The court may decide the issue on this point rather than the constitutional one of the injury to property.

Argues Inherent Power.

Mr. Prewitt admitted that such was the contempt law but said that in his view it was unconstitutional. One of the judges questioned him about this in an interested manner. The young lawyer took the ground that the court has an inherent power, grounded in the common law, to protect itself from attack, and that such power "rises above legislation."

The common law and the common sense of the judge, acting in defense of the integrity of the court, formed the chief basis of the argument.

"This Tennessee paper had no right to come in here and seek to intimidate and coerce a Kentucky court," he said, "particularly as its editor was beyond the reach of the court."

Judge Files Demurrer.

In advance of the hearing Judge Prewitt filed with the Court of Appeals a general answer to the petition of the News Sentinel and a special demurrer as well. In it the judge set forth that the murder cases of W. B. Jones and William Hightower had been transferred from Harlan county to his court, and there were nine other co-defendants awaiting trial on the same charges. The jury verdict of guilt against Jones on Dec. 10 was referred to, and then three editorials in the News Sentinel were set forth in full.

"The argument of the commonwealth attorney," says the answer, "if correctly quoted, to which exception was so made by the Knoxville News Sentinel was in response to seeming condonation by defense counsel of murdering officers of the law for the purpose of gaining economic ends. Respondent does not say the defendant Jones either received or failed to receive a fair, just trial. Respondent yet has that question before him and considers that it would be improper to enter upon a controversy now or here upon that subject.

"Respondent has never at any time denied said Moutoux the privilege of attending or reporting any trial except as a representative of the Knoxville News Sentinel. No representative of the News Sentinel has ever requested any opportunity to present one word of explanation of the paper's position.

"Said articles did reflect and were calculated to reflect upon the honor, integrity, and dignity of the court and its officers and contemptuously upon the fairness of the presiding judge. They were calculated to embarrass the court in the due administration of justice in all the thirty-three prosecutions which are now pending."

SUSPECT ARRESTED AS ERDMAN OLSON, ACCUSED MURDERER

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A man identified as Erdman M. Olson, charged with murdering his sweetheart, Clara Olson, near Prairie du Chien, Wis., in September 1926, was arrested here today.

Edward Hess, former Prairie du Chien resident, told officers the man, who said he is Jerome Hegeman, 23, is Olson, but Hegeman denied it. Although officers said he bore only slight resemblance to Olson's police circular photograph, he was held on suspicion of murder charge.

Photographs and fingerprints of Hegeman were sent by air mail to Prairie du Chien, and he will be held until instructions are received from the Crawford county, Wis., sheriff.

Numerous suspects have been arrested in this country and one in Canada in the Olson case since the body of the girl was found in a shallow grave near the home of Olson's father, Albert Olson, wealthy farmer, Dec. 2, 1926. The girl died from a blow on the head.

DYING ORDERS OF ROSENWALD GUIDE CHARITIES

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Julius Rosenwald was buried yestery, but his philanthropy lives on, quickened by instructions issued by Mr. Rosenwald on his death bed.

It was learned last night that in his last few days of life Mr. Rosenwald gathered his five children about his bed and there bequeathed to them the duty of seeing that the work he had begun and carried so far was finished.

He told them in detail how he wished them to carry out his philanthropic projects that were still unfinished.

Estate to His Children.

Mr. Rosenwald's will has not yet been made public, but it was learned that virtually his entire remaining estate will be bequeathed to his children and that he will have left to them the full responsibility for administering the Rosenwald philanthropies.

The children, who are Lessing and William Rosenwald, Mrs. Adele R. Levy, Mrs. Edith R. Stern and Mrs. Alfred K. Stern, have prepared themselves for this duty by organizing the Rosenwald Family association, a corporation to carry on their father's charitable enterprises.

Announcement of the formation of this corporation was made on Christmas eve. It is said Mr. Rosenwald provided in his will for setting aside certain sums to be used by his children in their association for the purposes he outlined on his deathbed.

Among these sums set aside, it is said, is one to provide for the completion of the Museum of Science and Industry, already endowed by Mr. Rosenwald to the extent of $5,000,000 and under construction by the south park board in Jackson park.

Status of the First Fund.

An additional bequest is expected to be made also to the Rosenwald fund, which was created in 1917 by Mr. Rosenwald to carry out definite social improvements. From time to time Mr. Rosenwald gave 200,000 shares of stock in Sears, Roebuck & Co. to the fund, valued a few years ago at more than $30,000,000. Since then some of the stock has been sold and the proceeds devoted to the fund's projects. With the crash of the stock market, the value of the Sears-Roebuck shares has fallen to around $33 a share, and the present holdings of the fund are estimated to aggregate about $6,000,000.

Projects Still to Be Accomplished.

The instructions given by Mr. Rosenwald to his children, outlined in general yesterday by Edwin R. Embree, president of the Rosenwald fund, provided for the completion of charitable projects involving the expenditure of approximately $10,000,000

The major item among these unfinished works is the colonization of Jews in Russia. Mr. Rosenwald had pledged $5,000,000 toward a program of the soviet government to wean its people away from the cities and back to the farms. The Rosenwald gift was to be used in establishing Jews dwelling in Russian cities on farms in the Crimea, and half of this sum remaining to be paid will be given by the Rosenwald children, according to the directions of their father.

A gift of $250,000 to Beirut university, a Protestant college at Beirut, Syria, had been made by Mr. Rosenwald, conditional upon the raising of a total endowment of $5,000,000, and was to be paid over a period of years. Mr. Rosenwald instructed his children, said Mr. Embree, to pay the sum at once. The full endowment has been pledged.

Offer to U. of Chicago.

Another instruction to his children concerned Mr. Rosenwald's offer of $750,000 to the University of Chicago for building additional dormitories. The philanthropist had offered to give two-fifths of the cost for this purpose up to a gift of $2,000,000 from him.

The university has constructed a men's dormitory, toward the cost of which Mr. Rosenwald gave $750,000, and plans to build a dormitory for women, in which Mr. Rosenwald's share of the cost would be another $750,000. The children were requested by Mr. Rosenwald to carry out this project in coöperation with university authorities. Both institutions are expected to be self-supporting. The plans of the university do not contemplate the need of the remaining $500,000 of the $2,000,000 offered by Mr. Rosenwald.

Mr. Rosenwald asked that his children continue his offer of $500,000 to the National Academy of Sciences, conditional upon the raising of $5,000,000, to be used for researches in the natural sciences.

An offer made by Mr. Rosenwald four or five months ago, during his last illness, provides for a gift of $1,000,000 to the city of Berlin if Berlin provides for its maintenance.

Included in the philanthropist's final instructions were directions to carry out a large number of smaller projects, among which are the establishment of Negro Y. M. C. A. buildings and various Jewish charitable enterprises, such as a projected school in New York for the training of Jewish social workers.

Mr. Rosenwald was deeply interested in helping his own Jewish race, Mr. Embree pointed out, but he gave generously to Catholic and Protestant charities also.

"He had no sectarian sense in his giving," Mr. Embree explained. "He gave from a desire to meet social problems."

Pictures Rosenwald's Aid.

Mr. Embree drew from his years of intimate association with Mr. Rosenwald to tell why the philanthropist had achieved such fame for his works.

"Mr. Rosenwald put himself as well as his money into all of his activities," said Mr. Embree, "and this personal touch of his contributed as much as the money, and often more than the money, in bringing success. He took off his coat and fell to with the others in doing a job.

"He always joined his philanthropies with established agencies, and instead of setting up independent projects, he helped others to set them up. The work of the Rosenwald fund in establishing schools in the south for Negroes is an example. The schools, of which there are now 5,000 in 15 southern states, were built where the local authorities wanted them, and mostly with local tax funds, the contribution of the Rosenwald fund being only about 12 per cent.

"In the beginning this project was a skittish thing, and there was a danger that the south might look upon Mr. Rosenwald as a Yankee trying to change the established status of the southern Negro. But Mr. Rosenwald met the danger easily and turned it into that enormous personal influence which he wielded in the south. He was loved by the great men of the south as fully as he was in the north, all due to his personal magnetism and his eagerness to lend himself to a task."

Buried with Simple Rites.

Mr. Rosenwald's burial yesterday afternoon was noteworthy for its complete simplicity. It was simple because Mr. Rosenwald wished it so.

Rabbi Louis L. Mann conducted the brief service and there was no eulogy and no sermon. It was understood that the rabbi read two poems and two psalms of which Mr. Rosenwald had been fond.

When the service, held in the Rosenwald home on the family estate in Ravinia, was ended, the casket was placed in a hearse and, followed by a cortége of six limousines in which members of the family rode, was taken to Rosehill cemtery.

There another short ceremony—the "prayer for the dead"—was held in the cemetery chapel, and then Mr. Rosenwald was carried to his grave.

Even flowers were omitted at the request of the millionaire's family, who were transmitting his own wishes. A single wreath was laid on Mr. Rosenwald's simple gray casket, and was the only floral piece visible.

Mr. Rosenwald's widow, Mrs. Adelaide Goodkind Rosenwald, his brother, Louis Rosenwald of Salina, Kas.; his sisters, Mrs. Max Adler and Mrs. Sigmund L. Eisendrath, and his five children were the chief mourners. Other relatives and some of the household servants were the only others who attended the services.

Tributes from Notables.

While these modest honors were being done for Mr. Rosenwald the world outside paid him homage in another way. President Hoovers message of condolence to the family has already been noted.

The president of Yale university, Dr. James R. Angell, in another message, paid tribute to Rosenwald as "a great personality everywhere honored and everywhere beloved."

The city council adopted a resolution sponsored by Ald. Berthold A. Cronson of the 4th ward, honoring Mr. Rosenwald as "an outstanding figure in the life of Chicago, who contributed in unusual measure to the social, civic, and financial development of our city."

Ald. Louis B. Anderson [2d], speaking on the resolution in behalf of his fellow Negroes, said "No people ever were more benefited through Mr. Rosenwald's philanthropies than mine."

HOLDINGS OF ROSENWALD

The exact stock holdings of Julius Rosenwald in Sears, Roebuck & Co. could not be ascertained last night, but close associates estimated his holdings at approximately 1,000,000 shares at the time of his death. This is approximately one-fifth of the total stock of the company, which is 5,000,000 shares. Several years ago Mr. Rosenwald's holdings were around 1,400,000 shares, but his philanthropies and gifts to members of his families reduced this.

If the current estimates prove correct, the value of Mr. Rosenwald's stock would be about $33,000,000, based on yesterday's market price of around $33 a share. But this is only a fraction of his estimated fortune before the collapse of security prices in 1929. Sears, Roebuck shares sold as high as 197½ in 1928 and up to 181 in 1929, although the stock had been split up in 1926 and the stockholders received four new shares for each share previously held.

At the height of the bull market in 1928 and 1929 Mr. Rosenwald's stock, based on estimated holdings at the time of his death, would have had a market value of nearly $200,000,000. His holdings were so large that liquidation of his stock probably would have lowered the market price considerably.

While Mr. Rosenwald was the largest individual stockholder, the bulk of Sears, Roebuck stock is publicly held. At the end of 1930 there were 27,700 registered stockholders, and about 22,000 of the 38,000 employés of the company were stockholders.

Plans for the filing of the will with the Probate court were not concluded yesterday.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Part of the breeding stock, a famous herd of Hereford cattle, will be transferred to his majesty's show farm and the remainder will be sold. The farm will be rented to a new tenant, the proceeds going to the treasury for the national benefit.

NEW DEPORTING DRIVE IS AIMED AT VICE RESORTS

A new drive on deportable aliens has been initiated by the federal government, dependent upon the aid of police, it was learned last night.

Under the new plan to be used here it is believed that for the first time all persons managing or interested in the operation of disorderly houses are to be investigated for possible deportation. The move includes inmates as well as managers, procurers, and keepers.

The drive was inaugurated by Murray Garsson, special assistant secretary of labor. He outlined his proposals in a letter to Police Commissioner James Allman. Commissioner Allman sent copies of the letter in full to all district stations last night.

Police are asked to question all persons arrested in vice dens with a view to discovering whether the managers or inmates are aliens or of alien birth. Mr. Garsson pointed out that many girls have been imported from foreign countries. Some have been deported, but have returned again. A five year penalty attaches to any one importing foreign girls for vice traffic.

RITCHIE TOSSES HIS HAT IN RING FOR PRESIDENT

Boom Launched at Dinner in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—With campaign songs, "Ritchie for President" buttons, and all the old fashioned fanfare of politics, the presidential boom of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, favorite son of Maryland, was opened here tonight at the annual Jackson day dinner of the Concord club. In numbers and enthusiasm the dinner was said to have surpassed any similar function in Maryland's recent political history.

GOV. ALBERT C. RITCHIE. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

Called Next President.

When national and state leaders had finished praising him and calling him the next President, Gov. Ritchie declared, "I am deeply grateful for the generous references which have been made to me in connection with the presidency.

"For any American to deny that he is proud of such mention would be false modesty. There is no room for false modesty on my part, and, I say, of course, I would like to be President; who would not?

"Having said this much, let me add that as a Democrat my first aspiration is to see the Democratic party win. Should the mantle of party leadership fall upon the shoulders of any of the other distinguished Democrats who have been mentioned, or should the convention's choice be still another, then cheerfully and wholeheartedly it shall be my part to fight in the ranks behind him, for him, and for all those cardinal and enduring things which are living, breathing faith in our party."

Voices Faith in Democracy.

"Faith in Democracy" was the governor's topic, and in his address he discussed briefly most of the subjects of national and international interest in this country.

Once again he emphasized the principle that he has been enunciating in public life for more than a decade—state rights and the right of the individual to the pursuit of life, liberty, and happiness without too much government regulation.

Fundamentals are at stake in the coming campaign, he said, declaring that the people could not go on extending the powers of government without "imperiling government itself." He took a stand against governmental unemployment insurance, and again declared that the prohibition question should be turned back to the states for decision, criticized the present tariff laws, and said that cancellation of foreign war debts was impossible.

Assails Hoover Messages.

Gov. Ritchie attacked the "camouflage and political maneuvering" of the party in power, described President Hoover's recent message to congress as conspicuous because of its great "silences," and predicted that in "November, 1932, the Democratic party will receive a sovereign mandate to give the country what it wants."

At this the 1,400 persons present stood up and cheered.

"America will be safe with Ritchie," they howled, the Ritchie campaign slogan, which Maryland hopes will be immortalized in political history. Throughout the dinner these Marylanders from every walk of life shouted and sang the praises of their favorite son. To the tune of "Illinois," they sang one of his many campaign songs:

You're going to be elected, Albert mine, Albert mine!
It is just as we expected, Albert mine, Albert mine.
The Democrats will win, Albert mine, Albert mine.

Opposes Federal Job Insurance.

Speaking of unemployment, Gov. Ritchie said:

"It may be, as President Hoover said in his Indianapolis speech, that we have passed through fifteen major depressions in the last century, and 'we have learned something as the result of each of these experiences.'

"But we did not learn eough to avoid or mitigate the distressing result of this last depression on American labor. From 6,000,000 to 8,000,000 men and women are out of work, and whatever we may have learned from past experiences has not helped them to get it.

"The danger here, as I see it, lies in the possibility of compulsory government unemployment insurance. Should that ever come, I believe it would mean a bureaucracy so great that it would out-bureaucrat all our other bureaucracies put together."

Calls on Industry to Act.

Industry itself can avoid this danger by showing enlightened statesmanship of its own. It has always seemed to me that the obligation here rests primarily not on government but on industry itself.

"Industry benefits from labor in days of prosperity, and economic justice demands that some adequate provision be made for labor when adversity comes.

"Take the tariff," the governor continued. "No matter how much you may believe in protection or high tariff, you must find it hard to excuse a tariff so high that it shuts the doors on our best national customers, destroys our export trade at the very time we need it most, and encourages American industry to migrate abroad and there employ foreign labor when our home labor is out of a job.

Opposes Debt Cancellation.

"Then we talk about canceling our foreign war debts. But do not forget that our money was necessary to the allies in the winning of the war, just as our boys were. These debts are justly due, and to the extent they are not paid the burden falls on us.

"The truth is the debts cannot be canceled. They are part of the national budget, and if the foreign nations do not pay the money the American people must. This would transfer the cost of the world war, so far as represented by these debts, from the shoulders of our former allies, who owe them, to the shoulders of the American people, who do not—a heavy burden we should not have to assume.

"At such critical times as these, with millions of people out of work and in distress, the President's message to congress, while characterized by some constructive suggestions, is characterized also by its great silences.

"Silence about prohibition and about the restoration of our national self-respect, the strengthening of our national morale, the increase in our national revenues, and relief for unemployment.

"Silence about Republican prosperity and about beautiful dreams of happy homes with two cars in the garage and a chicken in every pot, and if not silence, at least inadequacies for the suffering farmer, the suffering business man, and the suffering consumer.

"The country is tired of being fooled. It is tired of seeing the elephant go round and round, and getting nowhere. It wants action and it wants results. It wants a government alive to its economic needs and to its ideals of democratic liberty, and in November, 1932, the Democratic mandate to give the country what it wants."

Democrats Leave for Rally; Call Truce on State Ticket

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Democratic governorship politics was put on the shelf until Jan. 20 yesterday as Mayor Cermak departed for Washington at the head of thirty party battlers and a score or so of leading layman citizens. They will attend the Jackson Day banquet tonight on the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans in 1815, when Gen. Andy Jackson licked the British under Gen. Pakenham.

Tomorrow the local chieftains will support Edward N. Hurley and his nonpartisan group before the Democratic national committee in urging that the national convention be given to Chicago.

A great outpouring of Cook county Democrats was at the train shed to see the pilgrimage off. Illinois will have a double vote in the national committee. Michael L. Igoe, minority leader at Springfield, the committeeman, was on the train and Mayor Cermak holds the proxy of the committeeman from Hawaii.

More politics is expected to be talked on the train than at an ordinary state convention, and the right of way of the B. & O. all the way to Harper's Ferry will probably echo with political discussion. Before the train pulled out, however, it was announced that the organization will do nothing on state slate making until after Jan. 20. After the party conclave at Washington the mayor plans to go to Florida for a brief rest, and slate making is not to be taken up until after his return.

As the party shoved off it appeared more likely than ever that the Democrats may have a battle at the April primaries over the governorship. In the gossip for weeks the organization choice for governor, if it goes to a Cook county candidate, has been supposed to rest between Judge Henry Horner of the Probate court, Francis X. Busch, former corporation counsel and ex-president of the Chicago Bar association, and Clayton F. Smith, county recorder and chairman of the managing committee. A little the edge has been given Judge Horner in the lunchtable gossip.

Michael L. Igoe, national committeeman, house minority leader and south park commissioner, has been in the ring for some time, the first Chicago entrant. His boom was sprung at Springfield at the close of the regular legislative session. Republicans from downstate have been reporting that Mr. Igoe has been making headway in central Illinois.

Democratic headquarters announced yesterday that 1,400 reservations have been received for the Victory dinner to be held in the Stevens hotel next Thursday night. Robert F. Carr, chairman, estimates 1,500 will be present. Mr. Traylor will be toastmaster, and the other speakers will be Prof. William E. Dodd, head of the history department of the University of Chicago, and Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic National executive committee. Prof. Dodd will speak on "The Historic Appeal of the Democratic Party." Radio will bring speeches from John W. Davis and Al Smith, speaking in New York and Boston.

FRIENDS INSIST ROOSEVELT WILL FOIL RASKOB PLAN

Confident They Control National Committee.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Forces bent on the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt for President tonight claimed a preponderance of sentiment in the Democratic national committee.

After a day of jockeying for support, Roosevelt's friends were certain two days before the committee meeting that they could control the vote on all the major proposals. This included any effort to bring John J. Raskob's "home rule plan for liquor control" before the group, although Mr. Raskob said two days ago he would not attempt to do so.

A poll of the committee by the Roosevelt faction was taken on the Rascob proposal in case it was brought to the fore by certain committeemen known to support the Raskob view.

Second Choice Pledges.

In the meantime friends of Gov. Ritchie of Maryland were working quietly among committee members. The Ritchie movement had in mind the securing of "second choice pledges" from states where favorite sons have been placed in the running.

The Roosevelt following was confident tonight they could take the convention to Kansas City over the bids of San Francisco, Chicago, and Atlantic City. Word reached the capital late today that funds had been pledged to guarantee expenses in the Missouri city.

Behind the Roosevelt leadership there was a general consolidation of forces opposed to the prohibition policies of Chairman Raskob. With the exception of some members, mostly from the northeastern section of the country, there were few committeemen not numbered among those fighting any move to have the national committee debate or vote on the Raskob "home rule" amendment.

Step on Early Convention.

The informal proposal of the chairman to hold the convention ahead of the Republican sessions in Chicago also was stepped on. June 24, ten days after the Republican meeting, tentatively has been selected as the Democratic date.

With the arrival of former Gov. Smith, the 1928 candidate, there cropped up the usual consignment of rumors about the possibility of his renomination. The governor would not talk, and apparently avoided any long conferences.

"I will do my talking tomorrow night at the Jackson day dinner," he said. "Until then I won't say anything."

Offers $150,000 Guarantee.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Kansas City put in its bid for the Democratic national convention with an offer of $150,000 late today after business leaders had been informed from Washington an invitation virtually would assure the city's selection.

The offer agreed upon by chamber of commerce officials is $100,000 in cash to be turned over to the national committee, and a guarantee of $50,000 to meet the convention expenses.

If the gathering is brought here, the sessions will be held in historic Convention hall, scene of the 1900 Democratic convention and of the 1928 Republican convention.

Business leaders were unanimous in voting the money after the situation had been presented by Conrad H. Mann, president of the chamber, who made arrangements for the last Republican convention.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE EDITORS BACK PLAN FOR TAXING REFORM

Editors and publishers of more than fifty foreign language newspapers in Chicago indorsed the Kelly compromise plan for the reformation of the Cook county tax assessment system, now pending in the legislature, at a meeting yesterday in the office of Mayor Cermak.

City Controller Szymczak gave the newspapermen a detailed explanation of the present financial situation of the city.

"We have gone to the end of the rope," Mayor Cermak then told them. "I am fearful for the situation. Unless we can get proper legislation, I cannot see how we can get any money until next summer. There is no use mincing words. We are in a bankrupt condition unless some action is taken."

THREE HARMONY CAFES TARGETS OF STENCH BOMBS

Three restaurants of the Harmony Cafeteria company were attacked by stench bombs yesterday. The police and the management were unable to offer a motive. The restaurants are at 15 South Wabash avenue, 214 South State street, and 81 West Van Buren street. At the Wabash avenue restaurant 400 diners were driven out when the bomb was broken near a ventilating shaft. At the other two the missiles were hurled at the doorways and caused little confusion.

"I know of no reason for such attacks," S. J. Kaplan, general manager of the company, told Lieut. Louis Klatzco of the Central police. "We have cut our prices in keeping with the times, but I hardly think that could be a cause. We have received no threats of any kind."

Editors Believe Democrat Will Be Elected President

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Newspaper editors throughout the country expect the next President of the United States to be a Democrat, probably either Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, or Newton D. Baker of Ohio, according to a survey made by G. F. Shearwood for the Publishers' Service magazine.

The answers received from 305 of 591 editors of daily newspapers who responded to the questionnaire sent out revealed "the pessimism of the Republican group, and the optimism of the Democratic group," the survey declares. Answers were received from forty-seven states, and the District of Columbia. No answers were received from Wyoming.

Call it "Hobson's Choice."

The poll showed that 340 called President Hoover the favorite for the Republican nomination, but the poll says, a good number of these called the President's renomination a "Hobson's choice," others declared that the Republicans could not help nominating Mr. Hoover, and a few Democratic editors favored his nomination with the view that he would be the "easiest Republican to beat."

Former President Calvin Coolidge was the favorite Republican nominee of twenty-one editors, while fourteen of them favored "anyone but Hoover." Ten votes each were recorded for Charles G. Dawes, and Senator Borah, with scattered votes for Gifford Pinchot, Senator Norris, Senator Hiram Johnson, Nicholas Murray Butler, and others.

Baker Has Following.

On the Democratic side the race was close between Gov. Roosevelt and Mr. Baker, with Roosevelt the choice of 161 and Baker of 134. Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland was the choice of 22, Owen D. Young of 15, and former Governor Alfred E. Smith of only 12. William Gibbs McAdoo was next with 10, and there were scattering votes for Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, former Governor Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, Speaker John N. Garner, former Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, and former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri. There were twenty-five editors who were undecided between Gov. Roosevelt and Mr. Baker, and said so in their responses to the poll.

Comment on Baker.

In commenting on the strength manifested by Mr. Baker the survey said:

"Newton D. Baker shows surprising strength in the favor of the nation's editors, with the middle west, which included Mr. Baker's native state of Ohio, giving him 56 votes to 51 for Gov. Roosevelt, and New England and the east 31 as compared with 27 for the New York governor.

"However, many editors, feeling that Gov. Roosevelt is, as one of them puts it, 'off to a better start,' expect the New York man to be the winning nominee even though they favor Baker as their choice."

138 for Dry Change.

Of 441 answers to questions as to whether they would support the party definitely pledged to repeal or revision of the eighteenth amendment, 138 editors stated that they favored repeal or revision, with 12 specifying that they favored repeal, and 19 that they favored revision. The others did not specify. Two hundred and fifty said that they would not support either of those movements, and 53 said that they would be willing to follow the lead of the candidate that they had otherwise found satisfactory.

OUT OF WORK, HANGS SELF.

The body of Anthony Manicki, 51 years old, an unemployed blacksmith, was found hanging on a rope in a shed at the rear of his home at 2523 North Harding avenue yesterday. He is survived by his widow and eight children.

FINLAND TO REAP SOLE PROFITS IN NEW LIQUOR BILL

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The government's new liquor bill will be introduced in parliament Jan. 19, it was announced today. Among its provisions will be one requiring purchasers of liquor to file applications with the local manager of the distributing company, giving certain personal information from which will be compiled a special reference list of buyers.

All persons under 18 will be barred from buying under the bill's provisions, as will all noncommissioned ranks of the army, without the permission of their superiors. Combined purchases, to be split up later, will not be permitted.

The proposal will call for a state monopoly to control the production and importation of all spirits and to be administered by a board of control, all the profits going to the state. Restaurants and other licensed sellers will not be allowed to profit from liquor sales or to stimulate the inclination to buy.

CREDIT CAPTURE OF CONNOLLY TO CITIZENS' GROUP

Seen as Important Canal Trial Witness.

Timothy J. Connolly, purchasing agent for the sanitary district during the régime of Timothy J. Crowe as president of the board of trustees, who is scheduled to arrive in Chicago this morning from San Diego, Cal., where he was arrested, was captured after a search of three years through the efforts of the Citizens' association.

This was disclosed for the first time yesterday. The association hired and paid the expenses of James McQueeney, private detective, who traced Connolly and finally brought about his arrest in San Diego.

By causing the arrest of Connolly, the association places within the reach of First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup a potential important witness against Crowe. The latter, three years ago, refused the association access to the contract records and payrolls of the district.

Refused Access to Records.

"In view of the fact that Crowe and his associate trustees denied the Citizens' association access to the pay rolls and contract records of the sanitary district three years ago when we sought to examine them, we are particularly glad to have been able to aid Prosecutor Northup in the gallant fight that he is making in the case now on trial," said the statement issued yesterday by Shelby M. Singleton, secretary of the association.

Prosecutor Northup said that credit for the capture belonged to the association. He said that although he wanted Connolly he never was able to get him because State's Attorney Swanson said he was without funds to finance an intensive search for the fugitive.

Mr. Northup, it was learned yesterday, has borrowed money to carry on his fight to bring Crowe and seven other trustees, former trustees, and officials to trial. Although refusing to discuss this phase of the case at this time, it is known that Northup has spent several thousands of dollars of his own money and has sought money from influential citizens to carry on his investigation and employ the needed experts.

Prosecutor Before Jury.

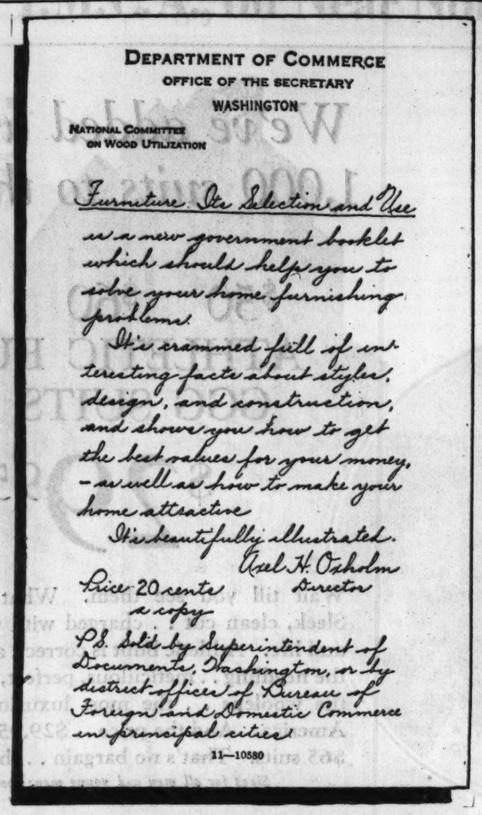
The prosecutor went before the grand jury yesterday afternoon and is reported to have piled up further evidence against Connolly. No indictments were returned. Others are also involved in testimony of forgery, it was reported.

If Connolly desires to become a prosecution witness it is said that Prosecutor Northup is willing that he be not indicted. Should Connolly decide to try to obtain his release on bond the prosecutor is prepared, it is said, to obtain new indictments carrying high bonds.

Connolly has been directly involved in the testimony of the last few days. It was he who, witnesses testified, obtained the whisky donations for the district and accepted the political "donations" and other gratuities. The evidence against him is direct, and Prosecutor Northup said he would put Connolly on trial promptly unless he became a state's witness.

The trial has been adjourned until Monday. Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court, who is presiding in the case, left yesterday for Washington with a group of Democratic leaders who will try to bring the national Democratic convention to Chicago. The prosecution expects to close its evidence in the sanitary district trial next week.

HOW U. S. SPENDS TAXES



DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
WASHINGTON
NATIONAL COMMITTEE ON WOOD UTILIZATION

Furniture: Its Selection and Use is a new government booklet which should help you to solve your home furnishing problems.

It's crammed full of interesting facts about styles, design, and construction, and shows you how to get the best values for your money, —as well as how to make your home attractive.

Axel H. Oxholm
Director

Price 20 cents a copy

Another reader said, "I am taking the liberty of sending you the enclosed postcard as an illustration of the extravagant manner in which the national government is spending money derived from taxes. It is certainly contemptible to collect and use public funds for the purpose disclosed on this card. Material, printing, salaries and postage."

One reader enclosed three of the cards, which with a slight change in the spelling of the name of the woman addressee, had been sent to the same home. The reader comments: "The cost of handling these cards is borne by and becomes part of the deficit of the postoffice department. Then the postoffice department, having incurred a deficit in order to carry three identical cards to the same person to tell her how she can learn from the government about 'furniture: its selection and use,' no doubt will use the deficit thus incurred as an argument for advancing the rates of mail transportation."

The "beautifully illustrated" public document telling how to "solve your home furnishing problems" is not offered free, in fact, it costs 20 cents. The brochure on furniture styles has been prepared at public expense by a zealous bureau in Secretary Lamont's department, now housed in the largest and most expensive office building in the world. Critics of government extravagance point to the booklet as one little example of Uncle Sam's "all-embracing beneficence at the taxpayers' expense."

The brochure consists of 115 pages. However, it is only one of 17 such booklets prepared by the department of commerce to acquaint the taxpayers on wood utilization.

New York Bandit Boasts of Killing 2 When Caught

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The police captured a tough young customer today—tough and proud of it. Between defiant puffs of a cigaret he boasted of having committed two murders—one on New Year's eve, the other early today in a speakeasy. The prisoner is William J. Turner, 22 years old, an ex-sailor, dishonorably discharged from the navy. He confessed that he had committed about 40 robberies. Both the killings for which Turner claims "credit" occurred in attempted holdups. The police say three bandits took part in each of the jobs.

13 PARACHUTERS LEAP FROM ONE PLANE AT MIAMI

One of Group Injured in Landing.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The All American air races sponsored by the city annually were opened here today by Mayor R. B. Gautier.

Between 50 and 100 airplanes, among them 20 attack planes from Fort Crockett, on their way to Miami, were held to the ground at various fields in the southwest by bad weather.

Of the nineteen amateur pilots who started from Hicksville, L. I., last Monday, only two had landed today. George Pynchon, flying a Stinson, and Miss Paula Lind of New York. Miss Lind brought C. S. [Casey] Jones as navigator.

The feature race of the day, the Cuban trophy, was won by C. D. Nott in his Gee Bee sportster, powered with a Warner motor.

WOMEN FLYERS FOUND DEAD ON MOUNTAIN PEAK

Had Crashed After Being Lost in Cloud.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Mrs. Ruth Stewart and Mrs. Debbie, Stanford, the two daring young society flyers who set out from Pittsburgh for New York last Tuesday to undertake a 5,500 mile flight to South America, were found dead in the wreckage of their white Whirlwind powered Lockheed monoplane near the crest of a mountain south of here today. Thus ended a two day search.

Expert pilots, who found the wreckage, advanced the theory that Mrs. Stewart, who was at controls of the ill fated craft, lost her course in the cloud, struck trees on top of the 1,400 foot mountain, and went into a vertical dive over its brink. The nose of the ship was buried deep in the ground.

One Lived Several Hours.

Mrs. Stewart's mangled body was found beneath the engine. She apparently had been killed outright. That of Mrs. Stanford was in the cabin. Evidently she had lived for several hours after the crash, unconscious, however, from a blow over the eye.

J. Paul Lukens, a Philadelphia pilot, who joined the search this morning in an autogiro discovered the wreckage, although he had flown over the spot twice before he noted the white wing among the trees.

Flying 20 miles to the little town of Newville, to reach a tepehone he summoned aid of land parties to break through the brush to the machine.

Cut Way to Wrecked Plane.

State forest rangers, mounted state police, cavalry of the National Guard, and automobile caravans from the countryside, began a trek toward the Sherman's mountain fire tower, which Lukens gave as the nearest land mark. Woodsmen's axes were needed to cut through the brush to reach the plane. It was nearly five hours after they first were sighted before the bodies were recovered. A wing had to be chopped from the craft to reach them.

Mrs. Stewart was 26 years old and a resident of St. Louis. She was rated among the leading women flyers of the country, having taken part in three women's air derbies. Mrs. Stanford, who lived at Indianapolis, was also a licensed pilot and had considerable flying experience. She was 28. The two women had planned to have their machine overhauled at New York and then set out on a flight to Buenos Aires.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Jan. 7.—King Carol and his brother, Prince Nicholas, buried the hatchet today. The king gave his lovesick brother a party at the palace and let bygones be bygones. It was announced that Prince Nicholas, accompanied by his commoner wife, the former Mme. Lucia Deletj, to whom Carol had objected, will leave Bucharest on Jan. 15 for a long visit to western Europe, after which the prince will return to take up his job as inspector general of the army.

D. F. KELLY URGES TRADE CHIEFS TO AID GOVERNMENT

Asks Personal Interest in Civic Affairs.

An appeal to business men for renewed activity through advertising and for a personal interest in the local governments was made yesterday by D. F. Kelly, president of the Fair store, chairman of the mayor's committee on the sale of tax anticipation warrants. Mr. Kelly spoke before the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis club in the Hotel Sherman.

D. F. KEELY. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

"What we need at the present moment," he said, "is quality in leadership, both in business and in civic affairs. There are too many harping critics."

Mr. Kelly placed at the door of governmental officials of the past part of the blame for present difficulties.

Hits Government Frills.

"The lack of foresight of those who have loaded our government with useless frills is one of the basic causes of the depression," he said.

After outlining the plan to aid the local governments by obtaining cash through the sale of tax anticipation warrants, Mr. Kelly made a direct appeal to the business men to become "stockholders" in Chicago.

"I have no complaint," he said, "with those of you who feel your taxes are unfair and have had recourse to the courts. But it is decidedly unfair to expect the few who have paid their taxes to carry all of the burden. The condition today calls for loyalty.

Urges Tax Payments.

"We don't want a repetition of the Boston police strike here and the obtaining of money is the preventive. If you feel that your tax bill of $100,000 is too high by $50,000—then you may go to the courts. But in the meantime go to the county treasurer and pay the $50,000 on account. Become a stockholder in your government."

Mr. Kelly cited the prominent business men who have given of their time without pay to aid the governments in the present crisis and who aided in the formation of Mayor Cermak's cabinet.

In urging business men to fight off the depression Mr. Kelly said:

"Renewed activity is the answer to the depression question. We can help our business through newspaper advertising and by doing so aid in recovery. I have never voiced an objection to advertising rates in high grade papers and feel that an intelligent campaign at the present time is essential."

New Auto Display Room in Congress Opens Today

The new Rockne automobile showrooms in the Congress hotel building will be opened to the public today, when this new line of cars, sponsored by Studebaker, will be displayed for the first time. The showrooms front 135 feet on Michigan avenue and have a total of 5,000 square feet of floor. A special lighting exhibition has been designed and installed by George Fredericks of Bremen, Germany.

School Board Fails to Trim 'Fads and Frills' Despite Debts

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The school trustees have not eliminated any of the so-called "fads and frills" and relatively few of "the lesser essentials" of the public schools after five weeks of budget making.

In that period Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan has commended the instruction in tap dancing to the trustees.

"It is my regret that I was not instructed in tap dancing," said the superintendent. "It is utilized in the schools as a substitute for setting-up exercises, and you know how monotonous they become."

Praises "Golf to Music."

Trustee Robert F. Carr has said a kind word for "golf to music," which he looked upon as a form of exercise.

Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, another trustee, has made a speech defending the "socialized classes" of the junior high schools. These are recitations where the pupils have complete charge.

Trustee James A. Hemingway has made a speech defending the teaching of "beauty culture." His argument was that it provides a means of employment for girls who, he said, might otherwise be out on the streets, with nothing to do.

Defense of Tap Dancing.

"We hear tap dancing ridiculed," said Trustee John A. English. "The pupils must have some form of exercise. Would the critics have the children taught to sail balloons or throw paper wads?"

Much has been said by the trustees about reëstablishing credit so they can borrow enough money to pay the employés $24,147,040 now owed to them. They have made speeches about showing the bankers they are operating the school system economically as the most certain method of regaining credit.

The board has instructed President Lewis E. Myers to invite the loop bankers to ascertain if they will suggest a form of security which will be marketable. It is probable that the so-called "fads and frills" will be discussed also at this gathering.

Calls for List of Subjects.

At the last budget committee meeting President Myers requested Supt. Bogan to submit a list of the subjects taught in the schools.

"I have been told that we have purchased expensive laundry machinery and are teaching the girls laundering," said the president. "Is that true?"

"We are teaching laundering," replied the superintendent.

"I also hear we are taking babies to the schools to teach the girls how to take care of them. Is that so?"

"Yes," replied the superintendent.

Presents List Today.

The superintendent was instructed to have his list of the subjects taught in the schools for the trustees this afternoon.

The trustees have already agreed to trim $4,775,000 out of the educational budget, but have not yet touched any so-called "fads and frills."

Five weeks ago they were talking about suspending the Normal college for one year because there are now said to be 2,200 teachers on the waiting list. They also talked of closing Crane Junior college for a year. Neither of those subjects has been seriously discussed in open committee sessions.

Banker Tells His Stand.

One banker said yesterday that if he is invited he will ask why the board does not save $1,000,000 this year by closing both colleges. He added that the board should eliminate $12,000,000 from its educational expenditures instead of the proposed $8,726,000.

Secretary Charles Gilbert of the board of education sent a letter to Springfield yesterday asking that the legislature give no further consideration to the bills to relieve the financial condition of the schools. One bill provided for increasing the working capital of the building fund by the issuance of $75,000,000 in bonds, and the other proposed to issue $50,000,000 in bonds for the benefit of the educational fund. The trustees ordered the letter written.

Bills of No Use.

"If the bills became laws," commented Trustee Joseph P. Savage, "we could not sell the bonds. Those bills will not now do us any good. The only way we can get credit is to prove to the public we have reduced expenses to the minimum. We are at that task now."

Superintendent Bogan is scheduled to submit more recommendations this afternoon for trimming of the budget. Three weeks ago he suggested closing of the schools for a month. Yesterday he thought this might be avoided.

nity to massacre the Chicago bill the next day.

Considerable time was taken in the house this morning by amendments to the tax refunding bills sponsored by the Chicago Real Estate board. These were drawn by a committee of Chicago lawyers, including Hayden Bell and Nathan William MacChesney, with the assistance of Assistant Attorney General M. S. Winning, and are intended to make the plan legal. It is still opposed, however, by Douglas Sutherland of the Civic federation and Harris S. Keeler of the Chicago bureau of public efficiency.

Senator Richard J. Barr, majority leader of the upper chamber, announced a plan today for a joint legislative subcommittee to consider the funding plan and other bills for park board bond issues now pending in both houses.

"My notion," said Senator Barr, "is that the committee should meet in Chicago some time next week with the mayor, the governor, the newspaper publishers, and with taxing officials, to determine which of these bills have merit. That plan was successful in the case of the assessor's bill, and I think it should be applied in this instance." He has had several conferences with Gov. Emmerson on the matter, he said, and intimated that the executive thought favorably of it.

Just before adjournment today, Representative Robert M. Woodward [Rep., Chicago] introduced a bill to return to the counties of the state the $6,031,500 in lapsed appropriations made by the regular session of the assembly for charitable purposes. The house also passed a resolution introduced by Harry M. McCaskrin [Rep., Rock Island] calling upon state officials to prosecute tax dodgers and officials who allow tax evasions.

Adjournment was taken on a resolution introduced by Mrs. Anna Willmarth Ickes [Rep., Winnetka], deploring the death of Julius Rosenwald.

TOWNSHIP TAX COLLECTORS GET $164,249 FEES

County Office Attempts to Suppress Data.

Cook county paid fees of $164,249 to thirty country township collectors for 21 days' work in the collection of 1929 taxes. These collectors' records show that they handled 39 per cent of the total levy in the short period before the books were turned over to Joseph B. McDonough, county treasurer and collector.

The average earnings among the thirty men for the period of three weeks amounted to $5,475. Eight of them received $10,000, which is the statutory limit; one of them $9,463, and others received sums ranging downward from $7,634.

Attempt to Suppress Facts.

These figures were obtained from an attorney who is a tax expert after attachés of the county treasurer's office refused to make them public. The reason for withholding the information, the clerks in Treasurer McDonough's office said, was: "We'd be put right on the spot by the collectors." Others said: "It'd be bad politics for us to give this out. The collectors wouldn't like it."

After the tax bills for any year are sent out the township collectors are given the tax books for a period of three weeks in which to skim the so-called "cream" of the taxes in their individual districts. Compensation for this work as fixed by laws passed in 1928 stands at 2 per cent of the first $200,000 collected and 1 per cent of the remainder up to a limit of $10,000 in fees.

One Gets Expense Money.

The special session of the legislature in 1930 amended this act to allow additional pay for collectors in the form of "expenses" in cases where the boundaries of a township and a village are the same. Oak Park is the only such township in Cook county and the collector there, W. B. Ross, obtained $6,000 expense money from his 1929 collections.

The fees of the collectors they deduct themselves and, in the case of Oak Park, the expense funds.

A list of those township collectors who received $10,000 for their 1929 tax work, besides the Oak Park collector, follows: Herman Krumdick, Berwyn; Emil J. Wanek, Calumet; Timohthy J. Buckley, Cicero; Henry D. Penfield, Evanston; Sanborn Hale, New Trier; Jacob E. Dittus, Proviso, and Winnie Gouwens, Thornton.

Deny Pay Roll Charge.

The board of assessors last night denied charges that legislators opposed to the Kelly plan for revamping the tax machinery have been favored on the pay rolls. It was charged that 45 of the 592 jobs on the assessors' pay roll were credited to Representative Michael L. Igo, minority leader, who has introduced a bill to retain present tax officials.

Eighteen more jobs are reported to have been allotted to State Senator James B. Leonardo, the only senator to vote against the Kelly plan. The jobs, according to the charges, are additional to the regular allotments made to the legislative districts.

The denial was issued by Assessor Walter W. L. Meyers, since John E. Conroy, member and secretary of the board, and John E. Traeger, the youngest member of the board, are busy lobbying at Springfield.

The formal statement said that in 1929 1,500 employes were on the assessors' roll while only 592 are there at present.

COUNTY WILL SEEK HIGHER FEES FOR COLLECTING TAXES

Anticipating a loss of revenue if bills now pending in the legislature for the funding of taxes by bond issues are passed, the county board yesterday ordered its attorneys to draft a bill increasing the fees allowed the county treasurer for collecting taxes due other governmental bodies in the county and the state.

At present the county treasurer retains 1 per cent of taxes collected for the city of Chicago, and 1½ per cent for all other bodies. This share by the county in tax revenue levied for other governments not only covers the cost of collection, but is an important addition to county revenue, about $2,500,000 in a normal year. Last year tax collection fees were used to meet four county pay rolls.

The bill, which will be drafted by Urban A. Lavery, special legislative attorney for the county, and County Attorney Hayden N. Bell, would increase the county treasurer's fees to 1½ per cent for Chicago tax collections and 2 per cent for collections for all other bodies.

GLENCOE'S DRIVE TO OPEN SCHOOLS BEGINS TUESDAY

A house to house campaign to sell tax anticipation warrants in an effort to reopen Glencoe's three closed elementary schools will be started in Glencoe next Tuesday, it was announced last night. The drive will be in charge of Elmer F. Wieboldt.

One hundred teams of two members each will do the work, and each one of Glencoe's 1,200 homes will be visited. No distinction between tax delinquent residents and residents who have paid back taxes will be made.

The funds collected will be deposited with the Chicago Title and Trust company as trustee, and will be disbursed "only for village and school purposes" by a fiscal committee headed by Gen. Abel Davis. It is hoped to sell sufficient warrants to reopen the schools by a week from next Monday.

The Western Springs grade schools will reopen Monday with the prospect of continuing to the end of the school year in June if parents and business men give the support promised at a massmeeting last night in the Wolf Road school. Plans to raise $25,000 were agreed upon.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE DOLLAR SUGAR IN DIPLOMACY.

Apparently the state department indirectly used the investments of American citizens to sweeten diplomatic relations with South American republics when the consular service was sending warnings to the department of commerce that some of the countries were on a spree. Grosvenor M. Jones, chief of the finance and investment department of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, informed the senate finance committee that the warnings of his bureau had been disregarded both by the department of state and by the bankers and investment houses.

Two specific instances were given. A Bolivian loan was sold when the warning was that the country was borrowing too much. There was another warning that Colombia was running wild, but a short term credit for $20,000,000 was not stopped. The state department presented diplomatic considerations for not objecting to the various South American issues, $815,000,000 of which are in default. The relations of the United States were disturbed and the department feared that if the brakes were put on their borrowing there would be more serious disturbance.

Senator Glass says the state department assumed a moral responsibility for the investments, although it professed merely to examine the political and not the economic phases of the loans. The impression prevailed, when the department, having supposedly examined the proposed flotation, made no objection, that the United States government indorsed the financial soundness of the loan and gave it a character in the opinion of the buyers that it would not have had otherwise.

That inference is probably inherent in the system which permits the department to advise whether or not the sending of American money into any given country would advance or embarrass the foreign relations of the government. The presumption is that if the department opposed the bonds for reasons of state the loan would not be made, but the implication is added that if there is no political objection there is an indorsement of the financial soundness.

It was the duty of the agents of the department of commerce to report the conditions in South American countries into which American investments were being poured and these conditions were admonitory. With reliable safeguards investments in South America have great advantages, but at the time the safeguards were lacking. In spite of the warning reports the department of state in effect purchased the good will it desired to maintain by obscuring the situation. The American investor furnished the sugar.

OVER THE HILL.

This week's intelligence prize goes to the members of the New York legislature who propose, when the assembly meets next month, to support a bill providing a state dowry fund in the form of insurance payable when the beneficiary is twenty-one on a policy issued at birth. New York is going broke, as are all tax levying bodies. It is apparent therefore that the need of the moment is invention in paternalistic schemes involving new ways of spending public revenue. Thus the cure of foolishness is more foolishness and the recovery of revenue and credit is to be found in the dissipation of it. Presently there will not be enough money to pay the custodians and keepers of the statesmen who have contributed these days to the progress of democracy.

MORE EXPENSIVE FUNERALS

The teamsters union has announced that hereafter only the automobiles driven by its members may constitute a funeral cortége. If any mourner wishes to drive to the cemetery in his own automobile he may do so, but he must take his own route and may rejoin the funeral party only when he reaches the cemetery.

To the extent that this regulation will serve to break up the long funeral parades that block traffic it is no doubt to be commended. These processions are ostentatious, add nothing to the dignity of death, and contribute nothing to relieve the sorrows of the mourners. The fact has been long recognized in municipal regulations forbidding funeral processions through the congested loop district or along the boulevards.

If the purpose of the teamsters' union were merely to restrict the size of funeral parties the regulation could be accepted without question as in the public interest. The suspicion arises, however, that the real purpose is to increase the number of rented cars and thereby increase the costs of burial. This is a project to which the liverymen and those undertakers who are financially interested in the ownership of the liveries are not likely to be averse.

Statisticians for the insurance companies have long argued that the costs of funerals absorb an extraordinarily large proportion of the insurance estates of the poor. The undertakers deny that funeral costs are higher than they should be. Opinions may differ as to the facts, but there can be no disagreement on a proposal which will result in still higher funeral costs. It is thoroughly unsound and should be discouraged. The decay of many ancient civilizations, it has been said, was hastened by the habit of burying a large proportion of their wealth with those who had possessed it, thus depriving the living of much of the accumulated capital of past generations. This theory of the economic historians is well supported with facts and should be borne in mind in weighing the teamsters' proposal.

REPUDIATION VS. RETRENCHMENT.

Lord Beaverbrook, whose newspapers keep up a running fire of rancorous attack upon all things American, asserts that "there must be no more debt payments to the United States." He is wroth at the thought that Britain has paid anything upon its debt to the United States and demands that the outrage be stopped.

Repudiation may appeal to the British in the present posture of their affairs, but it is not a resort which one of the two greatest lending nations of the world can afford, it seems to us, to adopt. The great wealth of Great Britain was largely created by lending. Its chief source of revenue has been and still is its foreign loans. It has up to this time been the chief asserter of the sanctity of contract, and even a Beaverbrook ought to feel some hesitation in fathering a device so certain to strike a deadly blow at the foundation of international credit. If there are to be no more debt payments by Britain to the United States, why should there be any more debt payments to Britain from any of her debtors?

The justification for Beaverbrook's declaration is flimsy stuff. As good or better can be pleaded by most of Britain's debtors. No one denies that Britain finds payment difficult. Most debtors do in these days. But a sweeping and final repudiation of debt payment such as Beaverbrook declares for would end forever the financial credit of his country, to say nothing of its effect upon all international obligations.

Repudiation of the British debt to the United States is a resort which only despair could justify. But the British predicament has not been created by payments upon its debt to the United States, though the unscrupulous propaganda of men like Beaverbrook would have the world accept that theory. It has been created, as the chief difficulties of the United States have been created, though in greater degree, by socialistic expenditures and the confiscation for unproductive public uses of the financial reserves of the nation. The tax burden which the British people is carrying has broken Britain's back. It has diverted the capital essential to the maintenance of industry, trade, and international finance to unproductive purposes, and its credit and prosperity have been destroyed by this means.

We are headed in the same direction on the same path. The restoration of the financial, economic, and social strength of both countries depends upon one course, first and last. The burden of debt which has crushed Britain and is gradually crushing the United States must be immediately lightened by drastic economies in government expenditure. The draining away of the life blood of productive enterprise, the huge waste of public spending must cease.

We have at least this lesson to learn from the British crisis, and Beaverbrook's foolish gesture, so dangerous to his own country, is only a warning to us of the folly and danger of trying to evade the truth. In Washington the politicians are trying to evade it and seeking new ways of spending money in the guise of relieving a condition which too much spending has created. But there is very little evidence that congress is in a mind to do the one thing needful, cut federal expenditures to the bone. Voices we hear demanding retrenchment, but the proposals before congress in concrete bills are for more expenditures. The bills needed are bills for reducing the vast bureaucracy which is eating the American people out of house and home, but they have not yet appeared.

Editorial of the Day

OUR BENIGNANT STUPIDITY IN NEGOTIATION.

[New York Evening Post.]

As a national policy we want world disarmament or reduction of armament. The issue is to come to a head at a great conference of the powers at Geneva next month. Here will gather the ablest of the world's negotiators and diplomats.

Our delegation should be made of our very best diplomatic material. It should be chosen with the view of presenting to Europe a compact, homogeneous, coöperative body of famed negotiators. The choice has not been made on this basis at all. One delegate has been named to represent the senate, one to represent women, a third to represent the Democrats, whereas all should be chosen simply and solely to represent the United States—and in the most effective way possible.

We should have a compact, nonpolitical, nonsentimental, well trained delegation consisting of former Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher, Hugh Gibson, now our ambassador to Belgium, and Hugh R. Wilson, our present minister to Switzerland. To adopt the old political, haphazard method of choice was childish, absurd and futile.

And now, having mischosen our delegation, we proceed to misplay its game. We allow it to become known at Washington that our experts have advised Secretary of State Stimson that the United States might find it advisable to abandon its stand against "a budgetary limitation of armament."

Limitation by budget, of course, means limiting the amount of money to be spent on armies and navies instead of limiting the number of soldiers or the number or size of ships. This country has consistently opposed it, because we pay so much more for our munitions (with their higher labor costs), for other military and naval commodities, and above all for our personnel. We pay our private soldiers, for instance, so much more per day than does Europe that for the same "budgetary" cost Europe could have an army many times as large as we.

Having established this principle as self-evidently to our advantage, we ought to stick to it. Or if we give it up or modify it we ought to get a quid pro quo. We ought not to do it for nothing. Above all, when we go to Geneva to bargain we ought not to give away our whole case in advance. If Europe learns ahead of time from Washington that our heterogeneous delegation is being instructed to give in on the vital issue, what won't Europe do to that delegation?

America used to be famous for its shrewd and supposedly typical "Yankee trading." We wish that our foreign affairs were in the hands of a Root or a Hay who would put that supposedly national characteristic into our negotiations with other nations.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

POOR GEORGE!

Oh, Washington, when thy great name
I heard when but a child,
Thy greatness I did oft acclaim,
Thy virtues sweet and mild.
I, too, chopped down a cherry tree,
The same as you had done,
And how my parent walloped me
For doing like Washington.

Whate'er you did I, too, would dare,
Though it nearly got my goat,
When I did like you on the Delaware
And stood up in the boat.
And, oh, the lickings I got in school
Would pile up to the sky;
Because, like you, it was my rule
Never to tell a lie.

But somehow now I find I've changed
Towards you, George Washington;
From your great deeds I've been estranged,
Your very name I shun.
It's the propaganda that's sent out
This bicentennial year,
That'll put you, George, to utter rout,
Your fame will disappear.

They're swamping every mail,
They shoot you at us with a gun,
They shriek, they howl, they wail.
On radio, movie, train or bus,
Your face and words they pour;
They seem to think that none of us
Ever heard of you before.

It isn't we don't love to gorge
On your life and anecdotes,
But we don't like to have you, George,
Jammed right down our throats.
Once you were our greatest hero,
The first in peace or war;
But they'll make you less than zero,
You'll be just an awful bore.

ANYHOW there's one good thing about Johnny Raskob's proposal to submit the prohibition question to the states—it reminds us sharply that there are states in our federal Union, 48 states. Of late, states have been all but forgotten. A benevolent government has taken over all the things the state used to do, and now instead of 48 states we have one state, with its capitol in Washington. We don't do much with the old 48 states except to have a state fair every year in 'em, and each one has a state flower, a state motto, and a state automobile tax. But Mr. Raskob reminds us—we have 48 states. So we have, so we have!

Marginal Notes of a Vagrant Year.

. . . incarnadine memo from a drab December day: a querimonious Jezebel, in the form of a frayed and sodden junco, flutters to the window ledge; and then, unmindful of what is beyond—secure in that faith which is beyond human attainment—struts to the edge of my table and furrows avidly, like a miser suddenly loosed in a vault of sovereigns, in a dish of sunflower seeds . . . transient moments with the gods: that look in Sir Gareth's eyes when he tenderly lifted the grosbeak fledgling from the lawn and, saying "he needs washing," carefully initiated it into the rites of ablution at the bird bath while the mother of the brood, having called down terrible maledictions from the hedge, saw that her protestations were in vain, and so, unafraid, nestled close upon his shoulder and gave approval to the ceremony with her beneficent silence . . . index to why, after all, the vastness of infantile conceptions is the cradle of philosophy: Tiny Jean's exclaiming, there in a moment of revelation when a screech owl is suddenly discovered in a soft maple that has pressed its naked branches square into the face of a full December moon, "I shan't be afraid of its noise any more, now that I've seen how silly he looks, sitting there in the cold"; adding, as he flew away, "why is it that I should be afraid of things I cannot see, and unafraid of them after I have seen them?" "EINSTEIN AGREES WORLD MOVES." When Galileo said that away back in 1633 they made him take it back and make a solemn oath that the world didn't move. We love to think of old Galileo stamping the ground after this and muttering under his breath "eppur si muove" ("but it does move," to you). History declares that was apocryphal, but we believe it was true; it sounds like Galileo. Anyhow, Galileo got into jail when he said the world moves and Einstein gets a headline in all the newspapers. Maybe the darned thing does move after all.

ARE YOUR EARS MOLDY?

THE humble toothpick has no standing in polite society. He may serve a useful purpose, but social arbiters put thumbs down on him. He is in further disrepute because he stands charged with responsibility for toothpick ear. The fact that so many accept the term and freely use it is proof that he has been convicted of the charge in the public mind, even though the case has not been tried and the evidence submitted.

Now it is proposed to change the name, or to drop it. The basic condition in what has been called toothpick ear, it is proposed to call mold ear. Molds grow very nicely in the secretions of the external ear canal. One group of these belongs to the family which cause the black and green mold that grows on old bread—the Aspergillus family. If the ear canal fills rapidly with a secretion, and frequent removal is necessary, it is probable that much of the supposed excretion is Aspergillus. If the secretion is black, it is due to the black Aspergillus. It may be yellowish or grayish, being in one of those cases due to one of the two other species of the mold.

So long as the plant does nothing more than make a greasy, grayish mass that rolls easily into balls no direct harm is done. If the ear is scratched with a toothpick, the Aspergillus gets into the scratch and causes what was known as toothpick ear. If the subject goes in swimming and gets water into the ears, there is a pretty good chance that the mold will set up an infection of the canal or drum. That is one reason for ear trouble after swimming.

Or, if the ear canals are washed out, or oil is poured into them, infection and inflammation may be set up. It happens every little while that some one puts drops of oil in the ears and stirs up far more than trouble enough to offset whatever good he may have hoped to accomplish. Most of the eczema of the ear canals is due to this growth of mold plus irritation, washing, or greasing.

Molds in the ear are much less prevalent than ringworms on the toes, but there is much more of this trouble than people think. When a group of Florida physicians were discussing the subject recently it developed that many of them had seen a good many cases of it. It is especially in evidence in warm, wet weather and among swimmers because it causes more active trouble in such circumstances.

The standard wash for the canal, to rid it of mold, is 1 per cent salicylic acid in 70 per cent alcohol. Dr. L. L. Whiddon of Fort Pierce has found a 5 per cent solution of sodium thiosulphate as an ear wash to be satisfactory. Dr. K. C. Ingram of Orlando used a 2 per cent solution of mercurochrome.

It is probable that whatever will kill the parasite in ringworm of the foot will kill mold in the ear canal. But it is safer to experiment with the feet than it is with the ears.

COLDS AND CURE.

Mrs. A. H. writes: Would like to add my experience in regard to colds. In the article on acute coryza by J. M. M. recently her symptoms are similar to mine.

Several years ago I went to Rochester, Minn. They said my trouble was vasomotor rhinitis. They advised me to have indirect ventilation at night—no window in my room open; to keep warmly dressed, with no bare arms or legs; to live in a room at 72 degrees plus.

Though this summer, when I was very hot, I suffered more colds than in the winter, usually my cough and colds fade away in the summer. I find vaccines for colds help me throw them off quicker, but are of no use in prevention. At Rochester they said a change of climate would help if I could find the right place, but I might spend a fortune before I found it.

HOT PEPPERS.

Mrs. L. M. writes: Do you think hot peppers are injurious to the stomach? I have eaten them all my life, and that happens to be a long time, and up to this date am perfectly healthy, so far as I know.

REPLY.

Eating pepper is injurious. It harms the digestion, and it makes for gall bladder trouble and uric acid stone. The fact that you are alive, in spite of your bad habit, does not prove much. Lots of people live on in spite of bad habits, and some keep well and enjoy life until the blowup comes.

1. Yes.
2. You could subject other assets to payment of the deficiency decree just as if it were a judgment.

THE LAW DEFINED.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Will you please advise whether the Illinois law governing beauty shops, barber shops, and operators of both excludes manicurists? I was under the impression that all employés of beauty shops and barber shops were required to obtain a state license.

2. After a very painful experience I am informed that only shop owners and managers are required to comply, and that unless an operator performs all branches of the service a license is not necessary. H. R. R.

1. It does not include them.
2. The wording is: "Any one or any combination of the following practices constitutes the practice of beauty culture when done for cosmetic or beautifying purposes, and not for the treatment of disease or of muscular or nervous disorder. The application of cosmetic preparations to the human body by massaging, stroking, kneading, slapping, tapping, stimulating, manipulating, exercising, cleansing, beautifying, or by means of devices, apparatus, or appliances; arranging, dressing, marcelling, curling, waving, cleansing, singeing, bleaching, coloring, dyeing, tinting, or otherwise treating by any means the hair of any person."

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

This nation has had other serious financial depressions, as the following excerpts from The Tribune files reveal. Each of these periods of hard times has been followed by periods of great prosperity.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 7.—In manufacturing circles the worst effects of the panic are only now being appreciated. City banks refuse to take country checks and the country banks are unable to draw on their city balances. The Baldwin Locomotive works has discharged 200 employés.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 7.—The working people are beginning to feel the pressure of the panic as many large establishments have materially reduced their forces and some on last Saturday only gave their hands part pay.

Chicago, March 8.—Retrenchment on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway still goes on. The office of superintendent of bridges and building will be abolished after March 15 and the forces in the bridge, building and road departments will be cut down.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 30.—The California Safe Deposit and Trust company bank closed its doors this afternoon.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 30.—Application was made in the United States Circuit court for the appointment of receivers for the South Belt Steel Car and Foundry company.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—The railroads of the United States for the month of December, 1920, received only $15,896,313 as their net operating income. In other words, they received only 1.1 per cent on the total valuation of capital tied up in properties. From September, 1920, to the close of the year approximately 300,000 railroad employés throughout the country were laid off.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 8, 1916.

YOUNGSTOWN, O.—Four persons were shot dead and twenty-three wounded when a mob of six thousand, mostly foreigners, battled with private police at the plant of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube works in East Youngstown and looted and burned a greater part of that city last evening. The rioters ruled the city all evening and at 2 a. m. twelve to fifteen city blocks were in ruins and other fires set by the drink crazed mob lighted up the skies for miles. The property loss is placed at $800,000. Every one of the eighteen saloons in East Youngstown was looted and the liquor distributed among the mob. At 3 a. m. Company K of the Eighth regiment, Ohio National Guard, arrived. The soldiers marched at once to East Youngstown and the report that troops were nearing the scene seemed to awe the rioters and resulted in many leaving the city, according to the police. Before that reports were received that rioters had started towards Youngstown, threatening trouble. Three of the men killed were parties to saloon brawls and the other was an unfortunate looter. The riot was the culmination of a wage strike of laborers which began at the plant of the Republican Iron and Steel company a week ago and spread to the plants of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company and the Brier Hill Steel company.

PARIS.—The Montenegrin consulate announced that an Italian steamer from Brindisi with 425 Montenegrin recruits from the United States aboard and carrying several hundred tons of foodstuffs struck a mine near San Giovani di Medua on the Albanian coast and sank. Two hundred persons were lost.

JANUARY 8, 1902.

PEIPING.—The imperial court is once more in the forbidden city, having made one of the most imposing entries known in this generation. The gorgeous procession along double rows of kneeling soldiers who lined the way for miles was in marked contrast to the disordered flight from the city during the foreign investment after the Boxer uprising. A thousand Chinese noblemen in gorgeous attire attended the emperor and empress dowager, Prince Chun and the young empress and several princes who were borne on palanquins.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — The movement to close stores in cities, villages and hamlets at 6 o'clock each evening, that clerks may enjoy at least a portion of the twenty-four hours, culminated at the convention here in the amalgamation of the unions under the name of the Illinois State Retail Clerks' association. The union demands shorter hours, abolition of child labor, closing of stores on Sunday and seats for women clerks behind counters. W. H. Mast of Chicago was elected president.

KALAMAZOO, Mich. — Charles H. Thompson of Chicago, general manager of the oleomargarine department of the Hammond Packing company, was arrested on a charge of bribery in trying to secure for his company protection in selling oleomargarine in Michigan. State Food Commissioner William D. Snow is the complaining witness and Thompson was arrested just after he was alleged to have paid over $126 to Snow in accordance with an arrangement into which Snow had lured the packing company's agent.

FINLAND AGAINST PROHIBITION.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—The editorial in today's TRIBUNE entitled "Finland Against Prohibition" no doubt gives much pleasure to the writer and will no doubt please many thirsty souls. It is evident the writer of the editorial wished his readers to understand that the European countries that have abandoned prohibition found it wrong in principle. Perhaps there was some outside pressure. If the writer had consulted Buell's International Relations, page 271, he would have found the following quotation: "In 1921 the Spanish government asked the government of Iceland, which had adopted prohibition in 1915, to do away with this policy as far as the importation of Spanish wines was concerned; otherwise the duties charged by Spain on fish from Iceland would be trebled. Inasmuch as Spain constituted a valuable market, Iceland, a country dependent on the fish trade, was obliged to yield, and the prohibition law was indefinitely suspended."

In 1916 Norway adopted a law which prohibited the use of certain liquors, thus offending the wine exporting states. France, Spain, and Portugal demanded that their wines be admitted and Norway had to comply. These wine producing countries were large consumers of fish, and fish represented about one-third of Norway's exports.

Since fishing is one of the leading industries of Finland, may it not be possible that pressure from the wine producing states was the chief cause for Finland's action?

If I remember correctly, France, some years ago, was highly incensed because she could not send her wines into the United States, and made some mild threats which were ignored by the United States. Had the United States been a weak nation no doubt the results would have been the same as in Iceland and Norway. U. G. P.

ECONOMICS AND THEOLOGY.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—It is reasonable to presume that the men who run our government are now thoroughly aware of its salient faults in the present dilemma, and so we can only assume that they are fearful or stubborn or self-interested in shirking necessary changes in policy. In this connection, three outstanding thoughts come to my mind:

1. A creditor nation cannot collect the interest on the net debt owed to it (not to mention installments of principal) without importing more than it exports.

2. A government operating at a deficit in a period of depression cannot meet its budget by raising tax rates.

3. A government cannot enforce legislation calculated to raise public morals above their present level.

To cure the first ill, tariffs of creditor nations must be materially reduced. As to the second, operating expenses must be reduced to the amount of taxes collectable. A free people will stand for only a certain proportion of their income to be taken in taxes. With regard to the third, the prohibition law must be repealed or thoroughly modified. If the men in power will not do these things in 1932, other men will do them in 1933.

It is presumptuous for us to even toy with the thought that civilization is going to collapse. The Divine Being Who guided mankind thus far never intended that mankind be permitted to destroy itself, for mankind never created itself. All that is lacking today is proper leadership. It will be found!

AS LUCKY AS ANY.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Looking through the second tray of my trunk I find ticket 569204, series H, of "William Hale Thompson's Million Dollar Awards." Can you tell me if I was one of the lucky? B. BROWN.

TO END THE DEPRESSION.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Any keen observer will tell you that depression set in with the coming of the long skirt for women. I see no relief until the ladies shed these mummified creations of the bewhiskered foreign dress dictators and get back into a sane and sensible dress.

A. RUBANEK.

THE INCREASE IN ENROLLMENT.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—In the Jan. 5 issue of THE TRIBUNE appear four charts with the heading: "In Ten Years, with Prices Declining, Expenditures for Schools in Chicago Have More Than Doubled." To the casual reader it must appear that school costs have more than doubled [per pupil] while commodity prices were gradually dropping to lower levels. THE TRIBUNE, carelessly or, what is much worse and more probable, willfully, neglects to state that school enrollments have increased in tremendous numbers during the decade 1920-1930. More than this, a great part of this increase has affected the upper levels—junior and senior high schools—where the costs of instruction are much higher than in the lower elementary grades. The actual figures show a school membership of 327,524 in June, 1920, and 461,806 in June, 1930. Such an increase in itself would require a much larger sum for housing and instruction. When the increase affects the junior and senior high school enrollments primarily the cost is proportionately higher.

HOWARD K. BAUERNFEIND.

PUNISHING MR. McFADDEN.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 3.—Something is due McFadden. When the administration ostracized him because of his criticism of President Hoover it employed the customary political tyranny used to punish official courage and independence.

We often hear it said that people are supposed to respect the President on account of his high official position. If this be so, why have not the people by the same token the right to demand a President who is big enough to accept criticism without resorting to a method of boycotting officials which is repulsive to all proper ideas of democracy?

Whether right or wrong in his charges, the congressman has earned a vote of thanks for disclosing a practice which has been employed by both political parties.

This government is only about two jumps away from absolutism [especially in its executive and judicial departments] and needs friends as it never has since the civil war. In recent years it has done no material thing to cause its subjects to increase their love for it. On the other hand, in its enforcement of laws which in themselves are oppressive, obnoxious and hated, it has cooled the patriotism of millions of people. It is no uncommon thing to hear good men declare that they heartily dislike the government and that they have no conscientious scruples in "beating" it any way they can. Scarcely can there be found a person of business importance who has not a serious grievance against the government.

McFadden may lose his official influence, but he has unwittingly given the country an object lesson in political immorality and meanness that does not tend to increase love and loyalty for the nation. W. E. B.

AND THAT'S THAT.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—The Latin equivalent of delta sigma rho is de es er. De is pronounced "day"; the "e" in es and er is like that in "net." In Allen & Greenough's New Latin Grammar, section 1, note 2, there is a complete list, too long to quote, of the Latin names of consonants and vowels.

JOHN P. COOKE.

PLEASANT MEMORIES.

Elgin, Ill., Dec. 30.—I have just been discharged from the Chicago isolation hospital at 3026 California avenue after five weeks' confinement. So few Chicagoans are aware of the existence of this place that it is but fitting that it be brought to their attenion, since it is city owned. I cannot say enough for the splendid attention given me while there. Doctors, nurses, and attendants are the most efficient I have encountered. The sanitary conditions cannot be surpassed. The medical and surgical equipment is the last word; also, the quality of the food and its handling. The institution is a credit to the city, and I trust my fellow citizens in their daily tasks will give a thought to those nurses and the heroic work they are doing.

ARREST YOUNG BAIN AND KIN ON BANK CHARGES

Pair Accused of Plot to Defraud Depositors.

John H. Bain and W. Merle Fisher, son and son-in-law of John Bain, head of the 12 closed Bain banks, were in jail last night, unable to furnish bonds of $15,000 each on a charge of conspiracy to defraud depositors in the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank, one of the Bain chain. The two men once before served eight days for contempt of court until released by order of the state Supreme court.

The arrests of Bain and Fisher came without warning at their homes yesterday morning. Warrants had been obtained by Edwin J. Raber, special prosecutor in charge of prosecuting the Bain bank cases, and detectives from the state's attorney's offices went to Bain's home at 11624 South Artesian avenue and to the Fisher home at 10412 South Hamilton avenue and made the arrests.

Taken to County Jail.

The two men were arraigned before Municipal Judge James F. Fardy, who issued the warrants. Attorney Nelson G. Wettling appeared in their behalf and protested that the bond was too large, but State's Attorney Swanson insisted that the bond was proper. The case was continued until Jan. 27 and the two men were taken to the county jail.

Prosecutor Raber denied a report that he had been informed that young Bain and Fisher were about to flee to Scotland, where the elder Bain was born. The issuance of the warrants was merely to insure the presence of the defendants in Chicago when his investigation was concluded, he said. His investigations started weeks ago and he does not know when he will be ready to ask indictments, he declared.

Seeks to Break Trust.

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday instructed attorneys for the receiver for the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank to file a bill to break the $150,000 trust established by Victor J. Curto, north side real estate dealer, for the benefit of his family. Curto owes the bank $150,000 and has refused to turn over the trust in payment of the debt, claiming that the trust is irrevocable. Curto formerly was a director of the bank. Judge Feinberg is seeking to find assets of the bank, which closed last June.

A number of bank debtors were questioned by Judge Feinberg yesterday. Thomas Chamales, who owes the bank $125,000, was ordered to return on Jan. 14. Meanwhile, an audit will be made of his books in investigation of his testimony that he cannot pay more than $25,000 on his indebtedness.

The First State bank of Steger, at Steger, was closed yesterday by State Auditor Oscar Nelson at the request of the board of directors. The bank had deposits of $110,000, a reduction from June, 1930, when it had $190,000 in deposits.

Auditor Nelson announced the appointment of Arthur D. Rehm, Oak Park banker, as receiver for the Forest Park Trust and Savings bank which closed last Dec. 16 with deposits of $1,716,000.

START PICKING JURORS TO TRY CIGARET GIRL

CRIMINAL COURT.

Arthur Martin, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; Frank Zembal, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory; George Walker, Jack Osborne, and M. Harrison, larceny, sentenced to 1 year each in the Bridewell by Judge Rudolph Desort.

Selection of a jury to try Mrs. Bernice O'Connor, 24 years old, cabaret cigaret girl, on a charge of slaying her husband, Edward, was begun yesterday afternoon in the Criminal court of Judge Phillip Sullivan. When court adjourned for the day four jurors had been selected and two others tentatively agreed upon. Mrs. O'Connor was exonerated of the murder by a coroner's jury, but the state's attorney's office began an investigation and she was indicted.

O'Connor was separated from his wife. He was shot to death as he entered her apartment at 4330 Lake Park avenue on July 31, 1931. Mrs. O'Connor told the coroner's jury that she was afraid that her husband would do her bodily harm and that she shot in self-defense.

According to the state, Mrs. O'Connor, accompanied by Willie Wong, a Chinese, her sister, Mrs. Ralph Yett, and Yett, a Chinese waiter, staged a party on the night before the shooting occurred.

CHURCHILL SEEKS TO DEBATE WITH BORAH ON RUSSIA

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the British exchequer, today challenged Senator William E. Borah to a debate on whether soviet Russia should be recognized by capitalistic governments.

Mr. Churchill, who is in the Bahamas recuperating from injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile here last month, conveyed the challenge through his manager, Louis J. Alber of Cleveland. Mr. Alber stopped here en route to Washington, where he said he would discuss the challenge with Senator Borah tomorrow.

If Senator Borah accepts he will be expected to defend the policy of England in recognizing the present Russian government, while Mr. Churchill will defend the American refusal to do so, Mr. Alber said.

Mr. Churchill will return to New York Jan. 27. His first lecture will be the following day at the Brooklyn Institute of Art and Science.

RAID 'LYSISTRATA' IN LOS ANGELES; JAIL 70 ACTORS

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The police vice squad tonight raided the play "Lysistrata," appearing at one of the largest theaters in Los Angeles, and arrested nearly all of its cast of seventy. A call to police headquarters asked that sufficient patrol wagons be sent to the theater, the Carthay Circle, to transport 65 persons.

The play, in which Nance O'Neil was appearing as leading lady, is an adaption from the ancient Greek of Aristophanes, and came here from New York heralded for its boldness.

CHARGES OF HIGH PRICE FOR BOAT AROUSE COUNCIL

The charge by Ald. James C. Moreland [41st] that a tug which the city proposed buying for $18,000 was worth only $1,500, threw the city council into excitement yesterday. The council deferred action, and Commissioner of Public Works Sprague began an investigation of the recommendations of city engineers for the purchase.

A. A. SPRAGUE.

The tug is the Kenosha, owned and operated by James Rolson, 1416 North Kedzie avenue. The proposal to purchase it for carrying supplies to the city cribs was one of a number of emergency measures presented to the council at a special meeting for action before the next regular session Jan. 28.

"I was in communication with Capt. Alva Smith, a relative of mine," said Ald. Moreland, "and he said the tug was only worth $1,500. He also said that it was sold several years ago for $7,500."

"This is a serious matter," said Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the finance comittee. "If Ald. Moreland can substantiate the charge, I will have charges preferred against the engineer who inspected the tug and recommended the purchase."

The purchase was recommended by City Engineer Myron B. Reynolds on a report by James Versulis, head of the construction division of the department of public works. Reynolds reported that he had had the tug examined afloat and in dry dock by disinterested persons and that the hull was in excellent condition. The tug would cost $50,000 to build now, he said.

Mr. Reynolds inspected the tug himself, he added, and thought it was worth the price asked. Last summer, he said, a construction company leased a similar tug, the Racine, and put $40,000 in escrow to guarantee the owners against loss of the craft.

Capt. Smith, who lives at 5928 Thorndale avenue, said: "I operated the Kenosha three or four times, a month at a time, about six years ago. It was generally reported then that the Dunham Towing company had sold it the year before for $7,500. I said it wouldn't be worth $1,500 to me now."

Reynolds said later, however, that he was informed by officials of the Dunham Towing company that they sold the tug to Rolson for $15,000.

The other emergency measures which were passed, included the rehabilitation of the city asphalt plant at 91st and State streets at a cost of $84,752; purchase and installation of machinery for the Ogden avenue bridge at Division street, $150,544, and the purchase of 70,000 barrels of cement from the Material Service corporation for $89,600.

BRITISH LIQUOR REPORT CRUSHES DRY LAW HOPES

Commission Urges More Regulation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Any hopes the "drys" in Great Britain may have had of duplicating America's "noble experiment" were effectively dispelled tonight by the report of the royal commission on licensing for England and Wales, issued after more than two years of study.

Early in the report the commission states:

"No witness has suggested prohibition of the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors as a practical proposition for present application in this country, and we therefore do not propose to enter into any discussion as to the merits or demerits of such a proposal."

Report Urges Regulation.

The commission urges regulation of liquor consumption rather than prohibition and proposes a national board of commissioners for that purpose, "divorced as far as possible from parliament and the government," with virtually dictatorial powers.

Sixteen of the nineteen present members of the commission signed the majority report which covers 39 chapters on that many aspects of the liquor trade.

The chief proposals include: Uniform closing at 10 p. m., except of hotels and restaurants which it was suggested, would remain open until midnight in London and 11 p. m. in the provinces; a permanent licensing commission of five to seven members to supervise the future licensing policy; more rapid reduction of licenses; extension of public ownership, although "extension at the present time we assume to be out of the question"; stricter and more effective control of the supply of intoxicating liquor in clubs; continuation of Sunday closing in Wales, but no adoption suggested for England.

Drunkenness on Decrease.

The commission was impressed with evidence of the growth of the cocktail habit among the young people of both sexes, but recognized the impossibility of doing anything about it since much of such drinking takes place in private houses.

The report produces striking evidence of a decrease in drinking and a consequent increase in sobriety in the last 20 years.

"Drunkenness has gone out of fashion, but we consider beyond question that a substantial amount of excessive drinking still exists, particularly in London," the commission stated.

Regarding the drinking habit and efficiency, "there appears wide support for the view that alcohol is not, at the present time and under present abnormal industrial conditions, a serious cause of industrial inefficiency."

Raps English Hotels.

The report stresses the necessity of improvement of public houses to make them, instead, places of general refreshment, and it hits the inefficient service and poor accommodations of the majority of English hotels.

"They have out of date accommodations and are unattractive and cater to the primitive. There is obviously in absence of trained hotel management," the commission declares.

The public houses are reported as cramped, gloomy, badly ventilated and deficient in cleanliness. The commission recommended encouragement of the food and nonintoxicant trade on licensed premises and "discouragement of standup drinking at the bar, known as the 'perpendicular habit.'"

Wants Restrictions Kept.

The commission regards it as an essential safeguard that the present restrictions on the sale of intoxicants be maintained, declaring that such restrictions have "not deterred foreign tourist traffic. But it is hopeless to expect an increase of foreign visitors or home custom unless the hotels are radically reformed."

Prefacing its main conclusions the commission comments upon the improvement in national habits, observing that the general change in habits has had a real element of permanence and is not in danger of being upset by a general rise in prosperity.

Three members of the commission, which was presided over by Lord Emulree, signed a minority report. The general impression tonight in political circles is that it is doubtful whether the government will take action soon on the report, in view of the congested state of parliamentary business.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—On the eve of the hearing tomorrow on his bill to legalize 4 per cent beer, Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] today introduced in the senate an amendment by which the beer would be delivered in cases direct from the brewery, and could be publicly used in only hotel dining rooms.

SENATOR BINGHAM.
[Fotograms.]

Introduction of the amendment provoked Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart, radical Republican of Iowa, to charge the Bingham bill with being an attempt to restore the saloon and "transfer taxes from the rich to the poor."

Sees Aid for Farmers.

On the contrary, Senator Bingham insisted, the bill would help Iowa farmers by creating a demand for 100 million bushels of grain annually, relieve the American people of taxation, and raise 500 million dollars in revenue.

The amendment offered to the beer bill by Senator Bingham provides for the elimination of the saloon, by stipulating that the beer must be bottled in pint bottles, and sold and packed in cases to contain not less than a dozen bottles, and removed from the package for use in a public place "only by legitimate hotels and restaurants, and for the sole purpose of serving such liquors in the dining rooms of such establishments in the pint bottle with meals."

Hears Crusaders' Figures.

Prior to his introduction of the amendment, Senator Bingham received a delegation from the Crusaders, wet organization, who presented the senator with tables showing the contribution to the federal revenues in the past years by income from the liquor tax. During the years shortly before the war, the liquor tax contributed about one-third of the total federal revenues, the table showed.

CHARLES DAWES CALLS ON WALL STREET FRIENDS

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes and the underslung pipe which he made famous made their joint appearance in Wall street today.

The former Vice President, soldier, and banker, offered no explanation for his visit, but called on several friends, among them Owen D. Young, who collaborated with him in working out the first Dawes plan for reparation payments, which later was succeeded by the present Young plan.

Dawes visited the Nation City bank where he conferred with Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the board. He also shook hands with other officers of the bank and the impression given was that his visit was largely of a social nature.

HUNT SENDERS OF POISON CANDY THROUGH MAIL

Pana, Ill., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Postal Inspector Jerome Williamson and other federal authorities are conducting a secret investigation, it was learned today, concerning the sending through the Pana postoffice Nov. 25 of a box containing poisoned candy to Miss Vivian Sturman, 17, at the home of her aunt, Mrs. August Paus.

The investigation has been under way since Williamson received a report of the government analysis of the candy. A dog was fed a piece of the candy and died.

The box had been left, properly stamped, on a mail receiving box within two blocks of the Paus home. It was collected there by Carrier Owen C. Crosby, taken to the postoffice, then delivered by Crosby to the girl.

REVIVE ISSUE OF HAZARDS IN ELECTRIC SIGNS

Removal Order Starts Controversy Anew.

An order for the removal of the huge illuminated signboard from the south wall of the building at the northeast corner of Michigan avenue and Randolph street breathed new life yesterday into an old subject of debate in the city hall, the question of whether projecting electric signs present a fire hazard.

The sign which Chief George Graves of the city fire prevention bureau would oust is a flat sign covering a large area of the building wall. His interest in it was spurred by the hazard seen in its blockade of windows through which, otherwise, firemen could pour streams of water in case of fire and to which ladders could be raised to aid the exit of persons inside.

Other Signs Condemned.

While this sign is parallel to the building and separated from the building wall by several feet, it is not the only kind that presents a fire hazard. Chief Graves and officials of the electrical department also condemn, in some cases, signs that project at right angles from building fronts.

"Projecting signs may seriously hamper fire fighting and rescue work through interference with the balance of fire escapes and delay in raising ladders," said Chief Graves.

Charles K. Cregier, chief inspector in the electrical department, also was of the opinion that the signs present a fire hazard. He pointed to the vista on State street, between Lake and Van Buren streets, where projecting signs have been banned by the merchants with the exception of those on theater buildings.

Insist on Safety Factor.

"Moisture can creep in and cause a short circuit that may result in a fire," he said. "But, from the standpoint of a sign crashing to the ground, there is no danger. We insist on an ample safety factor, and after a sign has been up ten years we order it taken down."

An old document of the city revealed that there were approximately 740 projecting electric signs in existence on Oct. 13, 1902. On Dec. 31, 1929, there were 24,314 of the projecting signs, and a year later the number had risen to 25,170. The fees to the city from these and other illuminated signs was $197,973 in 1930.

Since projecting signs first began to replace the "show bills, lanterns or showboards"—to quote the city code of 1897—the members of the city council have argued the question of fire hazard.

Recall Old Struggles.

Early in this century the aldermen apparently opposed the desire of Mayor Carter H. Harrison and City Electrician Edward B. Ellicott for a regulatory ordinance governing the erection of such signs. In one communication Mr. Ellicott told Mayor Harrison that such an ordinance was introduced in the council on Nov. 10, 1902, but thatthe license committee pigeonholed it. It was reintroduced on March 2, 1903, and again referred to the license commitee "where," Mr. Ellicott states ironically, "it will probably repose for the balance of the year."

But, on July 15, 1903, Mayor Harrison addressed a letter in his own handwriting to the council which had the effect of hastening action, as a licensing ordinance for electric signs was passed Dec. 21, 1903.

Need Money for Streets.

"The money which might be derived from this source would aid materially in cleaning the streets and alleys in a number of wards in which the appropriation is almost exhausted," Mayor Harrison wrote.

The ordinance now prohibits signs from projecting over the curb line. The time of mandatory illumination is from dusk to 9:30 p. m.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LISBON, Jan. 7.—Geremia Meleri, famous Italian aviator, was seriously injured here today, and his mechanic was killed when their plane crashed in a demonstration flight with other planes before Portuguese military, naval, and aviation officers with a view to supplying similar Italian airplanes to the Portuguese government. Meleri finished second in a flight around Italy last summer.

HOOVER STILL IN SPHINX ROLE, SO NAVY BILL WAITS

Vinson and Hale Unable to Break Silence.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.] — Anxiety over whether the White House would give approval to new warship legislation at this session of congress engrossed attention of the chairman of both the house and senate naval committees today.

In beginning hearings on this bill authorizing all ships needed to bring the American fleet up to the tonnage limits of the London naval treaty, Chairman Frederick Hale of the senate naval committee called upon Secretary of the Navy Adams for information as to the President's attitude toward the measure. Mr. Adams said it was extremely doubtful whether the President would approve additional funds for new warship construction in the 1933 fiscal year.

Japan Grows as Sea Power.

Chairman Carl A. Vinson [Dem., Ga.] of the house naval committee, called at the White House during the morning in an effort to determine whether his 616 million dollar London treaty bill would meet with the President's approval. He learned that Mr. Hoover had not yet instructed the budget officer whether he would give his approval to the measure. Indications were that the White House will decline to give its approval to the bill in its present form although the possibility existed that the President would approve the measure if it were modified substantially.

During the hearings before the Hale committee today the committee devoted much attention to the rising strength of Japan as a sea power. Figures showing the comparative naval strength of the United States, Great Britain, and Japan were put into the record. These disclosed that Japan today has a larger auxiliary fleet than the United States.

"Judging from the way Japan has built up her navy since the war," Chairman Hale said, "it seems to me that Japan is the coming world naval power. Recent figures compiled for the committee show that in all ships, except battleships, both Great Britain and Japan exceed this country. The present ratio is 10 for the United States, 12.7 for Japan, and 13.4 for Great Britain."

Would Help Labor.

Rear Admiral George H. Rock, chief of the bureau of construction and repair, testified that the navy department could build the United States fleet up to London treaty levels in four years if appropriations were provided. He said that such a course would aid in combating the depression as 85 per cent of the funds expended for ship building went to labor.

Chairman Hale attempted to learn from Secretary Adams whether the passage of his warship authorization bill would violate the naval building truce but the cabinet member had little to contribute on this point. Senator Hale said possibly Secretary of State Stimson would be called to clarify this point.

FARMER KILLS HIMSELF.

Plymouth, Ind., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Kissing his wife good-by, Albert Klingerman of Tyner ran from his farmhouse to a barn, climbed into the hay mow, and shot himself through the heart with a shotgun just as two sons, Albert, 14, and Chester, 12, entered the barn in time to witness the suicide. Financial worries are blamed.

Scientifically Purer..

Something every smoker wants to know!

● Absolutely pure . . . that's what you expect in the things you eat and drink . . . and in the cigarettes you smoke.

"Chesterfields are as pure as the water you drink," a noted scientist writes. There's no way to make a purer cigarette.

Starting with tobaccos . . . the ripest, finest, purest leaf that grows is selected for Chesterfields. Mild to start with . . . Cross-Blending makes it milder still. Then it's wrapped in paper that is so pure it burns without any taste or odor.

The phrase "Scientifically Purer" is entirely justified. By our use of a highly scientific process which was worked out by Dr. Paul Gross, the Head Chemist of our Research Department, Chesterfield reaches a state of purity unmatched, to our knowledge, by any other cigarette.

Notice, too, the clean, white, attractive package . . . moisture-proof. Chesterfields come to you as good and as pure as they're made. Good . . . they've got to be good! Change to Chesterfields and see.

MANY ESTATES PERILED BY U. S. TAX DEMANDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—By one of the strange quirks of the economic depression, Uncle Sam has become the chief and, in some cases, the sole beneficiary of hundreds of estates left by millionaires and other wealthy men who died during the prosperity era of 1928 and 1929.

Although the inheritance laws allow the government to tax estates a maximum of 20 per cent, protests reaching the treasury from attorneys representing these pre-crash estates, set up instance after instance where the treasury is demanding and collecting from 40 to 90 per cent of the residue of estates on which a federal tax was levied before the security market went to pieces.

Security Prices Dropped.

In some instances, according to these protests, estates running into the millions have melted away as security prices dropped until barely enough is left in the hands of the executor for the heirs to pay the state and federal inheritance taxes. In one known instance the executors of a $2,500,000 eastern estate have filed a petition of insolvency with the government, carrying the explanation that the value of the estate has depreciated so much that insufficient funds remain to satisfy the government's tax claim of $120,000.

The government practice of basing its inheritance tax upon the market value of the estate at the time of the death of the decedent rather than on the date when the tax is due one year later is held responsible for the huge inroads now being made by the treasury on estates of wealthy men who died in 1928, '29, or '30. The following example shows how this works out:

In 1929, A died, leaving 30,000 shares of National City bank stock valued at $500 a share, a total of $15,000,000. The federal tax, fixed when the return was filed, according to law, the year later, was based on the stock's 1929 value. The tax fixed was slightly above $2,000,000. When the stock dropped to below $40 a share the estate value crumbled to around $2,000,000. The government tax amounted to 100 per cent of the residue although it represented but 20 per cent of the value at the time of A's death.

How Tax Is Graduated.

The government tax is graduated from 1 per cent on incomes of $50,000 above the exemption to 20 per cent on incomes of $10,000,000 or over. Of the sums collected under federel law about 80 per cent is credited to those states having inheritance taxes thus avoiding double taxation to that extent. In making its payment to the government the estate is permitted to deduct the tax paid the state in event this sum does not exceed 80 per cent of the total levied by the government. Thus while Uncle Sam becomes the chief beneficiary of many estates, due to drops in value of security assets, much of his collections actually accrue to the states.

Newspaper files in recent months carry many instances illustrating how the value of estates have dropped since the federal estate tax was slapped on them in 1929. A recent checkup of the estate of Percy R. Pyne, financier and philanthropist of Bernardsville, N. Y., disclosed that seven of the common stocks among the assets had dropped from $8,886,157 on Aug. 22, 1929 [when he died], to $2,767,000 in December last year.

A report on a score of stocks carried in the estate of Thomas Fortune Ryan showed a shrinkage of $23,000,000. In another instance, name not given, an estate valued at $6,000,000 in 1929 carried all its assets in the common stock of a corporation selling at around $87. On the date when the tax was demanded the estate had slumped in value to $400,000. As the government tax, levied in 1929, was $340,000, but $60,000 was left for the heirs.

Estate Declines $18,000,000.

Another estate where the attorneys asked the treasury for relief started out with $30,000,000 in 1929. Today the estate is worth $12,000,000. The federal tax, based on 1929 value, is around $6,000,000. Attorneys for the estate are seeking modification of the tax on the ground it calls for far more money than was the intent of congress when the law was passed. If this tax is paid, the executor, instead of paying 20 per cent of the residue of the estate, actually would pay 50 per cent.

Just how many heirs of estates have been driven into bankruptcy by the drop in security prices and the government's demand for taxes based on pre-crash security prices, has not been divulged by the treasury department. It is admitted, however, that in one case an estate has been unable to pay its tax and that in many others time extensions have been given to aid executors. At least fifty estates, some running into many millions, have been so depleted by falling security values that collection of the government tax now would put them on the verge of bankruptcy. In many cases extensions have been granted.

Losses suffered by heirs of pre-crash estates as well as the heirs of estates of men who died before the 1931 slump in bond prices run into the hundreds of millions. They have been so great, in fact, that a nation-wide movement has been set on foot to effect legislative relief for heirs where payment of the government tax means transfer from one-half to three-fourths of the residue of estates into the United States treasury.

Retroactive modification of the estate tax law to provide that the tax should be levied on the value of the estate at the time of tax payment rather than at the date of death of the decedent is one measure of relief sought. Such a law would be so drawn as to take care of estates where deaths occurred as far back as a year or eighteen months before the 1929 crash.

Seeks Relief from Clients.

Ellsworth C. Alvord, former special assistant to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, and now practicing law in Washington, is unofficial chairman of a national group of lawyers seeking relief from their clients. Interviewed today, Mr. Alvord declined to go into details regarding the specific nature of the relief to be sought. It was learned, however, that he notified the ways and means committee that he desires to appear before the committee when tax legislation is discussed.

George Brokaw Compton, New York tax specialist, is another lawyer who is working for the relief of estate taxpayers.

"The federal and New York estate tax laws," he said, "provide maximum tax rates of 20 per cent. Under both statutes the tax rates are applicable to the net value of the assets at the date of death.

Postpone Day of Reckoning.

"Consider the case of a 10 million net estate of a person who died in April, 1930, and which has depreciated in 12 months to $5,000,000. Instead of 20 per cent on the value of the assets distributed to legatees the tax rate becomes 40 per cent on what is left."

Mr. Compton pointed out that in a case of a $5,000,000 taxable estate holding securities largely unmarketable the executors probably would be unable to obtain $2,000,000 in cash with which to pay the tax. "The business being unsaleable," he said, "the only alternatives are an application for extension of time for payment which merely postpones the day of reckoning or liquidation of the business on a sacrifice basis that is unlikely to yield anything in excess of the tax and leaves the dependents of decedent practically without income. That is practically confiscation and is economically destructive and unsound."

HUNT MOTIVE FOR SLAYING IN LABOR TROUBLES

Labor trouble was believed yesterday to have furnished the motive for the murder of Robert Wesenberg, 45 years old, who roomed at 4445 Washington boulevard. Wesenberg was shot to death in front of 27 North Kilbourn avenue when he went to his parked automobile. He was employed at 1338 Monroe street, where a building is being constructed for the telephone company under Landis award conditions with nonunion workers.

The general contractor had given the excavation work to the T. M. White company, but the Hoisting Engineers' union prevented this company from doing the work, and the Valparaiso Construction company undertook to do the excavating, it was explained. Last Monday a group of gunmen and sluggers visited the site and sought to intimidate the workers, according to reports to the police. Twelve policemen were assigned to protect the employés.

At the inquest D. M. Carney, employment manager for the Landis Award Employment association, testified he had hired Wesenberg immediately upon Wesenberg's application, although there was a waiting list. For a few days Wesenberg worked as a general laborer, and then, several days ago, when an assistant steam shovel engineer failed to report for work, Wesenberg was given that job.

Makes Third Statement on Lingle Murder.

ner, joined in an investigation of Bell's story, in which representatives of THE TRIBUNE and of the state's attorney's staff coöperated. At that time Leo Brothers had not been captured nor had any hint of his connection with the case become known, and an earnest effort was made to get at the truth of Bell's story.

Bell had identified a picture of Theodore Geisking, another Indiana hoodlum, as that of a man who had joined Traum and Sullivan at the scene of the murder, and the search for Geisking, who had previously appeared as a likely suspect, was intensified. Finally Geisking was captured, but at once he was eliminated by witnesses to the Lingle killing, and then Bell altered his story to say that the man he saw "looked like Geisking."

Denied by Sullivan and Traum.

The coroner and a TRIBUNE reporter journeyed to Leavenworth prison to question Traum, who denied any connection with the crime. Sullivan, who was executed last Oct. 16 for the Patras murder, was questioned for hours, but he also denied any complicity in the Lingle crime.

Then it was proved that Bell's story was false in that witnesses swore that he was in a furniture store on the north side at the time he had said he was driving Sullivan and Traum to the scene of the murder.

It was also proved that Bell's statement that Sullivan was wounded in escaping from the Lingle murder scene was false. Two witnesses besides Sullivan himself swore that Sullivan had been wounded two weeks later, at the time that Bell and Sullivan sought to hold up Patras, who shot Sullivan in the leg.

Then, on Dec. 22, two months after Bell's story was exploded, Brothers was captured. He was positively identified as the murderer of Lingle, was tried by a jury, found guilty, and sentenced to 14 years in prison. His case is now pending on appeal before the Illinois Supreme court.

500 Persons See Execution.

Bell's execution was witnessed by 500 persons invited to attend by Sheriff William Meyering and Warden Moneypenny. He was led from his cell promptly at midnight, through a small green door into the death chamber, and was seated in the chair at 12:01 a. m. The spectators looked on as the current was passed through his body.

After 30 seconds the electricity was turned off and the leg bands were tightened. Then the switch was turned on again and charges lasting 5 seconds, a minute and then a minute and 25 seconds were passed through Bell's body. Physicians pronounced him dead and the crowd marched out of the jail.

History of Bell's Case.

Although they were tried in October, 1930, their execution was delayed and it was not until Oct. 16 of last year that Sullivan was led to the death chamber. The same morning three other killers, Frank Jordan, John Popescu and Charles Rocco were executed.

Sullivan, a type of the tough desperado, went to his doom smiling. He had declared he did not care what happened to him so long as Bell, whom he described as a squealer, met the same fate. He died unaware that Bell had been saved temporarily by a judge's order issued less than an hour before the time set for his execution.

Granted Sanity Hearing.

On that occasion Attorneys Ralph J. Sharp and Joseph Nozak went to Judge James J. Kelly of the Superior court, acting on behalf of Bell's sisters, and demanded a sanity hearing. They declared that Bell was not of sound mind. Under Supreme court ruling it is mandatory that a stay of execution be granted under such circumstances and Judge Kelly himself delivered the order to Warden Moneypenny at the county jail.

The sanity hearing was held and Bell was found sane by a jury. A new date for execution was set, but there was another delay when the prisoner was granted a hearing by the state board of pardons and paroles.

This was done at the request of Warden Moneypenny, who said that Bell while in jail had possibly saved several lives by exposing a plot of other prisoners to shoot their way out of the jail with smuggled weapons.

Only on Dec. 27 did the state board make its recommendation that clemency be denied. Gov. Emmerson, who had announced that he would be guided entirely by the views of the board, let it be known on Monday that he would not interfere.

Since then there had been rumors, unconfirmed, that a fresh effort would be made to get another sanity hearing, but no moves were made last night.

FOUR PHYSICIANS ACCUSED BEFORE MEDICAL SOCIETY

Charges of unethical practice were filed with the Chicago Medical society last night against four of its members. They are Charles B. Reed, former president of the society; R. W. Kline, W. C. Nordholz, and George Apfelbach, all members of the body's committee on public relations.

The complainant is Dr. M. L. Harris, who alleges that the four physicians wrongfully named the Henrotin hospital as one of the low cost medical centers under investigation for unethical advertising practices. The accusation of Dr. Harris, who is a former president of the American Medical association, will be considered by the ethical relations committee of the society.

JOBLESS ARMY PRESENTS PLAN TO PRESIDENT

Hear About Hoover Plan to Restore Prosperity.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Unemployment demanding a direct grant of relief money from the federal treasury and an administration which has insisted that federal relief be indirect came face to face today in the persons of Father James R. Cox and President Hoover.

While "progressive" senators on Capitol hill harried administration leaders seeking to rush through the President's two billion dollar reconstruction finance program, down in the executive offices of the White House Mr. Hoover offered the army of 12,000 jobless men this measure as typical of the administration's program to help the country back on its economic feet.

Hoover Greets 10 Delegates.

Members of congress perused the "resolution of the jobless," left with them when the unemployed demonstration visited the capitol, demanding a five billion dollar public construction fund and millions for direct relief for the unemployed and the farmer, and pondered its insistence that money for these funds be raised by taxing the rich, while the President was telling Father Cox and the ten delegates who accompanied him that "the real victory is to restore to men employment through their regular jobs."

"I am glad to receive you as the representatives of Pennsylvania unemployed. I have an intense sympathy for your difficulties," said Mr. Hoover, as the delegation stepped into the presidential office.

President Tells Plans.

"The federal government is now spending half a billion a year above normal to give employment. In the present and what I believe is the final campaign against the depression, I have laid a program before congress and I trust we will secure its early adoption. The real victory is to restore men to employment through their regular jobs. That is our object. We are giving this question our undivided attention."

As the jobless army left the city late this afternoon, however, the reconstruction bill to which the President alluded had not passed the senate, although its enactment tomorrow was expected.

Gifford to Testify Today.

Walter S. Gifford, head of President Hoover's organization on unemployment relief, will testify tomorrow before the La Follette subcommittee, now conducting hearings on the La Follette 250 million dollar and the Costigan 375 million proposals for federal unemployment aid.

His testimony is anticipated with interest by insurgent senators, who are anxious to see whether he still maintains that local agencies can handle the problem.

Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit today favored a direct federal appropriation, when he appeared before the subcommittee. He estimated there are 150,000 idle in Detroit.

BAIL JUMPER RETURNED HERE.

Morris Miller, 49 years old, sought by Chicago police since he jumped a $5,000 bond on a charge of attempted robbery, was locked up last night in the county jail after being returned from Montreal, where he was captured a few days ago.

WOMAN IGNORES ROBBER'S ORDER AND GETS BULLET

Mrs. Anna Dolnick, 35 years old, 935 North Sacramento boulevard, was shot in the right leg early this morning when she resisted an attempt of two Negroes to rob her at Sacramento and Augusta boulevards. Accompanied by Samuel Rubinstein, 3412 Cortez street, and Mrs. Rubinstein, the victim was on her way home. The Negroes, riding in a car, drew up to the curb, thrust pistols at the trio, and ordered the women to toss their purses into the car.

Mrs. Rubinstein obeyed. When Mrs. Dolnick failed to obey, one of the men started to wrest the purse from her. The other fired, wounding her. Leaving her in possession of the purse, the robbers drove on.

Police Raid Again Fails to Uncover Machine Gun Nest

Several squads of policemen from the detective bureau went to a house at 11 East Pearson street early this morning and searched the place for machine guns. Lieut. Walter Storms, assistant chief of detectives, said he had been informed a gun had been planted there on the third floor in such position that it could sweep a filling station at the southeast corner of State and Pearson streets. No gun was found and no arrests were made.

Delay Action on Resolution for Mellon's Impeachment

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Consideration of the Patman resolution impeaching Secretary Mellon was postponed today by the house judiciary committee until next week.

WOMAN IS KILLED, FOUR INJURED AS 2 AUTOS COLLIDE

A woman was killed and four men were injured, two of them seriously, when two automobiles collided at 22d street and 17th avenue, Broadview, yesterday afternoon. The car in which the men were riding burst into flames after the crash, and the passengers were extricated by passing motorists. Both automobiles were overturned.

Mrs. Anna Johnson, 35 years old, 3424 Oak avenue, Brookfield, was killed. She was driving north in 17th avenue and the occupants of the other automobile were traveling west in 22d street. They are Rudolph Bonomini, 25 years old, 2819 West 25th street, the driver; his father, Elario, 59 years old, of the same address; Philip Machala, 23 years old, 2504 South California avenue, and Giocondo Belligrini, 48 years old, 2312 West 23d street. The elder Bonomini and Belligrini, who were taken to the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital, were said to be seriously injured.

This death and four others in Cook county yesterday brought the toll for 1932 to 31. The other victims:

Isaac Kessler, 55 years old, 1855 Washburn avenue, a vegetable hawker. Killed at Roosevelt road and Lincoln street when struck by an automobile driven by Donald McCarthy, 16 years old, 2808 Wallace street.

Mancila Chaney, 63 years old, 3529 West Monroe street. Died in the Robert Burns hospital from injuries suffered on Dec. 19 when he was struck at Madison street and Central Park avenue.

William Johnstone, 76 years old, a painter, of 7743 State street. Fatally injured late last night while crossing State street at 78th street, when he was hit by the machine of John J. Murray, 9936 Princeton avenue. He died in the Auburn Park hospital. Murray was held.

Anton Ragowski, 50 years old, 851 West 122d street, was fatally injured last night when he was struck by an automobile at 124th and Halsted street, Calumet Park. He was taken to the Roseland Community hospital, where he died a short time later.

John Wagner, 85 years old, a retired farmer of near Libertyville was fatally injured yesterday when his automobile collided head on with another machine. He died in the Condell Memorial hospital in Libertyville.

Police Trap 3 Robbers in Holdup of Drug Store

Dominic Angelo, 20 years old, 1411 Flournoy street; Charles Fieda, 20 years old, 921 South Bishop street, and James Suro, 17 years old, 811 South Marshfield avenue, robbed Stephen Stone of $50 in his drug store at 4601 South Ashland avenue last night. As they were shoving Stone and a customer into a rear room Detectives Michael McCarthy and Charles Walsh of New City police station looked in and saw them. As the robbers came into the front of the store again the policemen were awaiting them. All surrendered without attempting to shoot.

HOW TAMMANY SHERIFF GOT RICH AS A BOOTLEGGER

Partner Banks $1,310,000 in Few Years.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—A former sheriff of New York county who grew rich in the bootlegging business while still in office, joined Samuel Seabury's long list of big money grabbers today when the Hofstadter legislative committee resumed its open hearings.

Charles W. Culkin, thirty years a Tammany leader, did not bother much about his sheriff's salary. He was in business with James M. McCunn, and Mr. McCunn admits tucking away $1,310,000 in various banks. Such profits compared favorably with the nest eggs of the leaders of Mr. Seabury's tin box brigade.

Open Income Tax Inquiry.

While the courtroom was listening to bickering among the legislators who are sitting as an investigating body, a federal income tax inquiry into the Culkin-McCunn partnership was instituted and over in the municipal building service was begun on attachments for $135,000 which Deputy Clerk J. J. McCormick recently testified he had received in tips from persons he married.

Meanwhile defense forces were gathering to block the attack on the legislative committee begun yesterday by Charles F. Kerrigan of Mayor James J. Walker's office. Mr. Kerrigan wants the legislature to end the inquiry because it has "failed to reveal anything worth while." The city affairs committee mentioned, in a public letter, a number of Mr. Seabury's major accomplishments. Among them were the removal or resignation of five magistrates for corrupt practices; the sending to prison of six policemen for trafficking in vice cases; the "wonderful boxes" that Sheriff Thomas M. Farley took $360,000 from; the case against Russell Sherwood, business manager for Mayor Walker, who has risked $50,000 in the form of a fine rather than appear as a witness.

That Bootlegging Episode.

The accusations against former Sheriff Culkin included, in addition to the bootlegging episode, a statement from Mr. Seabury that "Culkin took money out of the city treasury to which he was not entitled."

Mr. McCunn, who helped Culkin to prosper, now is under federal indictment for prohibition law violation. The company in which they shared "pot luck" is known as the Monroe Lamp and Equipment company. Following the testimony of McCunn regarding the $1,310,000 bank account, Mr. Seabury brought into the open for the first time the charge that the light company guaranteed immunity from fire law violations to the concerns which purchased its products.

Objects to Questioning.

Mr. Seabury's bootlegging accusations were made during the questioning of McCunn. Senator John J. McNabe, minority member of the investigating committee, inquired: "If the money is the result of trafficking in liquor what business is it of ours?"

"Perhaps," said Mr. Seabury, "if the sheriff of New York county was in partnership in this liquor business you might consider it your business. I can't prove everything by one witness, but before I get through it will be reasonably plain to you who participated."

"Sheriff Culkin, of course," said Mr. Seabury.

It was Mr. Seabury's contention that the greater share of McCunn's deposits had been made during the years between 1926 and 1929, when the lamp company and another firm in which McCunn was interested had been in the liquor business.

Former Sheriff Culkin was examined in private before the public hearing began, and refused to answer some questions. He will be put on the stand.

Culkin Examined in Private.

The mysterious James M. McCunn company occupied the attention of Mr. Seabury for an hour or more. McCunn testified that until 1920 the McCunn company had been in "the wholesale liquor business." From 1920 to 1924, he said, the concern still engaged in the liquor business under a federal permit. Since that time, said the witness, the firm has been "inactive."

In 1929 there was a spectacular raid on McCunn's company, but the liquor seized later was returned by the government after courts had ruled the confiscation was illegal. Mr. McCunn was indicted about that time but his case never has been tried.

BODY FOUND ON TRACKS.

The body of a man, tentatively identified as George Bisdorff, 48 years old, of Cedar Lake, Ind., was found yesterday on the tracks of the Chicago and North Western opposite 4881 Ravenswood avenue. He had been struck and killed by a train.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste, and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Bankers Warned in 1925 to Explain War Debts to Clients

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The state department warned bankers to notify their clients of the relations of reparations to private German debts as long ago as 1925, it was revealed today when that department, aroused by criticisms of its foreign loan policy before the senate finance committee and by Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], issued a lengthy statement.

The explanation was issued in the midst of the hearings before the finance committee, at which two more international bankers and a government financial expert were heard today.

The section of the department statement which dealt with German loans contained a letter written to bankers in 1925, when Frank B. Kellogg was secretary of state, in which this paragraph appeared:

"These risks which obviously concern the investing public should, in the opinion of the department, be cleared up by you before any action is taken. If they cannot be definitely eliminated, the department believes that you should consider whether you do not owe a duty to your prospective clients fully to advise them of the circumstances."

Letter Causes Surprise.

Knowledge of the 1925 letter was received with surprise in the finance committee. Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.] sharply criticized the department for having withheld the letter after the investigation was begun.

"With such a letter as that," Senator Johnson declared, "it was the duty of every banker in the United States to tell every customer what this government said about the German government."

Senator Johnson discussed the letter later in a brief formal statement.

"Wouldn't it have been more in consonance with what ought to be the relationship between the congress and the state department that the state department should have set forth its position long ago and have shown to the American public the very vigorous letter of the American secretary of state of a former administration, warning the international bankers and asking them to warn their clients?" the senator asked.

Banker Testifies.

Joseph R. Swan, president of the Guaranty company, security subsidiary of the Guaranty Trust company, was being examined by Senator Johnson when the letter came to light. He testified that he did not definitely recall the 1925 letter, but said:

"Nothing in that letter would have caused us to have done more than we were doing. We had been scrutinizing loans most carefully, and the loans we made in Germany have remained good."

Mr. Swan testified that the Guaranty company had organized foreign loans in the last twelve years totaling $540,686,000, of which $104,056,000 have been retired, and on which a gross profit of $3,205,000 was realized. It also participated in loans organized by others totaling $4,960,238,000, which returned a gross profit of $9,358,000.

C. I. Stralem, a partner in Hallgarten & Co., testified that since 1920 his firm had issued foreign bonds totaling $314,716,500, of which $74,770,000 had been retired. His statement was one of the few given which showed the net profit on this business, that net profit being given as $670,200, after the deduction from profits of a loss of $104,000 on an issue of $25,000,000 worth of bonds for Colombia in 1925, the first direct loss on the flotation of a foreign bond issue to be described to the committee.

FATHER KILLS 5, WOUNDS 2 WITH A HAMMER; DIES

Patton, Mo., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Forced by foreclosure to leave the farm on which he had supported his family for the last two years, and with nowhere to go, Oliver Davenport, 39 years old, killed five of his children with a hammer as they slept at 4 o'clock this morning and fractured the skull of his wife and another child, who may die. Davenport later shot and killed himself.

When the family went to bed he sat up brooding. At 4 o'clock Worcester, the 11 year old son, was awakened by a commotion. He sat up in bed and saw his father beating his mother on the head with a hammer. He struck her, the boy says, about nine times.

Davenport then, the boy says, reached over the body of his wife and crushed the head of the 8 month old infant lying at her side.

Davenport then attacked in turn Virgie and Verda, 10 year old twins; Clara Fay, 8; Raymond, 5, and Lee, 3. Worcester, who shared his bed with Raymond, slipped out of bed as his father approached and ran out through the back door and to the home of Fred Stone, half a mile away.

Stone called another neighbor, Napoleon Sitze, and they went to the Davenport home. They found Davenport lying dead on the floor. He had shot himself in the head with a shotgun.

Mrs. Davenport and Virgie were breathing. The other five children were dead.

FRENCH CABINET 'TOPSY-TURVY'; BRIAND MAY GO

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 7.—On the eve of the reparations and disarmament conferences, France's domestic politics have been plunged into chaos by the death of Andre Maginot, minister of war.

The cabinet met today in a hectic but fruitless discussion and the ultimate decision, it is understood, is to await the return of Andre Tardieu, strong man behind Premier Laval's government. The death of Maginot has aroused many dormant ambitions and behind the scenes one of those political free for all fights is being waged among friends.

Expect Briand Dismissed.

It is impossible for the layman to follow the strange ramifications of parliamentary intrigue, but two strong hunches have developed in political circles—first, that Laval, silky Auvergnat, whom few in this country put down as a heavyweight, will somehow emerge on top of the heap, and second, that Aristide Briand, the grizzled foreign minister, will be out.

Numerous combinations are being envisaged. One formula would put the energetic Tardieu, the "Teddy Roosevelt" of France, at war with Joseph Paul-Boncour for Briand's place. Another would have Laval himself as foreign minister with Tardieu as minister of the interior and Paul Painleve as minister of war.

There is also some talk of scrapping Pierre-Etinne Flandin, finance minister, because he draws too much fire from the left against the government. Flandin, naturally, objects. On the other hand Tardieu, whose name is anathema to the left, is tired of the ministry of agriculture and seeks to move up.

The situation has become so embroiled now it is very difficult merely to replace two vacancies, particularly since Briand will not resign unless the entire cabinet goes with him. Laval will likely be obliged to dissolve the whole government next Tuesday when parliament reconvenes. It is expected that he would immediately be appointed to form a new government, but it will be far from a formality and sweeping changes are possible.

ITALY TO BACK FIVE YEAR NAVAL HOLIDAY SCHEME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 7.—Italy's delegation to the coming Geneva disarmament conference, which totals more than 40 members and includes four cabinet ministers, today tackled the problem of drafting the proposals which Premier Mussolini's government will present.

The delegation has before it a mass of data which has been prepared by the ministries of the army, navy, and aviation, all of which will be coördinated this week and next. Some of the meetings will be attended by Mussolini, who is expected to give precise instructions to the delegates.

It is understood that Italy's delegation will support a plan which, it is said, the American delegation will put forth for a five year naval holiday. It is further reported the Italians have worked out a plan for drastic reductions of standing armies.

The standing joint committee presided over by Foreign Minister Grandi has been working on a general disarmament program since early last spring.

The Italian delegation, it is said, expects the Geneva meeting to be a long one. The chief interest here rests in reaching a naval agreement with France, an agreement which was so nearly reached last March.

Grandi, who heads the Geneva delegation, presided at today's meeting. Attending it were the chiefs of staff of the army, navy, and air forces, and Rear Admiral Giuseppe Sirianni, minister of marine.

GANDHI TO FIGHT FOR LIBERTY—THIS TIME HIS OWN

Will Test Legality of Arrest in Courts.

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The legality of the arrest of Mahatma Gandhi, leader of Indian Nationalists in their struggle for independence from British authority, will be tested in the courts.

Nationalist attorneys announced today they would apply on Jan. 11 for a writ of habeas corpus which would call for a high court review of the mahatma's arrest under an 1827 law.

Meanwhile all India remained tense. Several persons were injured at Benares when police with staves dispersed a crowd which had assembled in defiance to prohibitory orders.

Find Bombs in Express.

In Calcutta five live bombs were discovered in a first class compartment of the Darjeeling express. The bombs were found when the train arrived at Calcutta.

Attorneys backing the legal fight to release the mahatma said he could not be held indefinitely in prison under a regulation they considered antiquated and vague. The 1827 law has never been challenged in court, and they will attempt to test it before the highest tribunal in India.

The law empowers the government to "place under personal restraint" without the formality of trial any person whose arrest is considered necessary to prevent 'internal commotion.'"

May Plead Own Case.

Gandhi, who was admitted to the bar in London years ago, probably would plead his own case in the event he was taken before the court.

Three hundred American tourists got a taste of the civil disobedience campaign when they came ashore at Bombay today in the course of a world cruise. They encountered a group of "deshsvikas" [an organization of women affiliated with the All-India National Congress party], who urged them not to enter the largest British department store.

One of the Americans paid no attention and proceeded to buy an English made hat in the store. When she came out wearing it, Nationalist sympathizers tore it from her head.

Women Succeed Men.

In Poona an 18 year old Brahmin girl was appointed dictator of the Poona Youth league and a Brahmin woman was made dictator of Maharashtra congress. This was in line with the Nationalist policy of having women succeed to the places left vacant by the arrest of men.

On the northwest frontier 1,000 anti-British "red shirts," members of a Moslem partiotic organization known as the 'Khudai Khitmatgars" [servants of God], offered themselves for imprisonement. The government accepted the offer and found itself faced with the duty of feeding them.

The government's principal prisoner, the 93 pound mahatma, has been saving the treasury 75 cents a day. He is allowed a dollar a day for food and other needs, but he gets along on 25 cents.

Argentine Police Set Fire to Wood to Drive Out Rebels

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARANA, Argentina, Jan. 7.—Police today set fire to the wood in which the three Kennedy brothers, Irish leaders of the Sunday uprising in La Paz, Entre Rios province, are at bay. The bodies of four policemen who were killed in yesterday's fighting have been found.

MODERN DIETS PUT CARROT IN A HIGH PLACE

Many Vegetables Coming Here from South.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Decades ago the carrot ranked with the boarding house prune, in the minds of many, but dietitians and other health experts have now put the carrot's minerals and vitamins in a spotlight.

The wholesale price this week for new carrots—those coming directly from the fields in the south rather than those produced in the north and stored since harvest—is $4.65 for a crate of four to five dozen bunches, meaning that housewives are paying 12 to 15 cents a bunch.

Soaking Restores Freshness.

One can buy the topped carrots taken out of storage, but these at times are inclined to be woody, although soaking them in water overnight restores some of their natural freshness.

There is another vegetable that is being treated with considerable respect now. It's the onion. Even if you pay 6 to 7 cents a pound, the price is not too high in comparison with the wholesale cost.

Cabbages and potatoes are cheap this winter. Potatoes are little more than a cent a pound, retail, with old cabbage about 1½ to 2 cents a pound and new cabbage 3 to 5 cents a pound.

Cauliflower, Celery Plentiful.

Cauliflower and celery appear to be plentiful in Chicago. Large heads of cauliflower sell at 20 to 25 cents retail. Peas from Mexico can be expected to be high in price. Wholesalers are paying about 15 cents a pound. Hothouse radishes cost the retailer about $1 for a dozen bunches.

Among the many vegetables coming to Chicago from the south are escarole from Louisiana, green beans from Florida and Mexico, lima beans from Florida, mustard greens from Texas, strawberries from Florida and turnip greens from Tennessee.

New Year Offers Opportunity to Test Old Food Philosophy

BY BETTY BROWNING.

When Taine, the great philosopher historian, proclaimed his doctrine, "What a man eats that is he," a whole generation took to eight course dinners to show what men they were. And gout became the most fashionable malady.

But that was more than half a century ago, and later prophets have eclipsed Taine, and every one knows what has happened to eight course dinners and gout. Modern science has been a bit hard on all three.

Even if we can't agree that Chinese have slant eyes and a predilection for philosophy because they eat rice, and that the Irish run to red hair and a sense of humor because potatoes are their staple food, yet we might do worse than recall M. Taine's wise words at the beginning of a new year.

Make Taste Secondary.

Science has been reducing what we eat to calories, vitamins, proteins, carbohydrates and numberless other elements and divisions to such an extent that at the rate we are going we shall be consuming our nourishment in capsule form within a few short years. Persons of solid scientific attainment and no remarkable humor have predicted it.

Already the tendency is strongly marked in hasty meals, standard menus and food combinations, emphasis on balance of meals and food content rather than on exceptional flavor. Food experts are many, epicures few.

Suppose, just for a moment, we stop considering food as so much fuel, to be measured and consumed in terms of the energy it produces, appetizing principally because that increases its effectiveness. Let science, calories, vitamins, carbohydrates go by the board.

Take Taine's viewpoint for a moment: "What a man eats that is he." There may be something in it after all.

Food Making the Man.

Here we are at the beginning of the new year—well, not quite at the beginning—but with only seven days lost. This being leap year, 359 days remain, and with them, we trust, the promise of 359 breakfasts, 359 luncheons, 359 dinners. One thousand seventy-seven meals in all. Add a few teas, a few midnight suppers and the number passes the 1,100 mark.

A dazzling array of meals or appalling, if you happen to be the housewife who will have to plan them all. And it is to you that we address ourselves now. Consider those meals conscientiously as our scientists would have you, from the standpoint of calories, and you face a problem of higher mathematics!

But from the other standpoint, supposing for a moment that food can influence character, here are not 1,100 menus to be planned, but 1,100 opportunities to make your family over as you want them. Still supposing, let's give the idea a trial: it ought to prove at least as effective as New Year's resolutions.

Effect on Husbands.

Begin with friend husband. Perhaps, like most men's, his conversation is more inspired at times than others. Of course his dinners are always well planned. But even if roast beef and roast lamb provide all the necessary food elements, try an occasional new dish and see if you don't find him more interesting. Of course, the old ones are safest, but inspired conversation ought to be worth a slight risk of masculine displeasure.

Now take young John. It's strange how in this age of rational parents and rations boys still dawdle over their food. On the other hand, it may be only natural that when modern education has driven the old fashioned multiplication tables from the schoolroom as detrimental to the youthful imagination, John should object to them when they bob up again in the calories and vitamins provided by mother's carefully balanced meals.

Take him by surprise some time with a dish that may be perfectly digestible but which might not be, for all he knows. Something as good for him as rich pudding, without rice pudding's settled respectability. Achieve if possible something of the illicit air of most picnic delicacies, and you may intrigue him into eating to picnic capacity.

Mystery Is Another Help.

Then, of course, there's sister Sue. Always late to meals. Why not play on her natural feminine curiosity by letting a few whiffs of some new dish drift from the kitchen, or letting her glimpse some mysterious cake or pie?

Or if she has passed the age of chocolate sundae sprees and follows Taine's doctrine to the extent of aspiring to Garbo's fascination via dieting, try telling her that snappish dispositions often went with snappy figures back in flapper days, and that waspish ways are apt to come in with waspish waists.

If this does not keep her from the brink of starvation, try outplaying her at her own favorite indoor sport. When she says she's not hungry set before her one of those meals that can roll off the pounds and still keep her playing tennis all day and dancing half the night. If she doesn't succumb, you might try pretending you like it yourself.

Breakfasts may be planned for you, and dinners, too, but luncheons are your own. Why not cut loose a bit? Surprise your waiter by changing that standing order for something new away down on the menu card. You'll have a fresh viewpoint on lunch, even if you don't like it so well, and you'll be doing your part to sustain the tradition that men can order better than women, know more about food, are, in fact, the true epicures. All cooks will bless you for it.

Illinois Product Helps to Tone One Up.

BY PAUL POTTER.

A fortunate group of north shore residents are reporting this week that of all their holiday gifts, perhaps the sweetest was a neat little packet, exuding the fragrance of peach and apple blossoms, and whose contents has made most delicious some morning fried cakes or evening baking powder biscuits.

Disregarding the age old admonition that one should not look a gift horse in the mouth, one of these recipients became inquisitive of the donor as to the location of the hives of bees that could produce such delectable honey. And the search led westward, along the Fox river valley, to an attractive farmstead some three miles south of McHenry, Ill.

Orchard on a Hilltop.

Here on a hilltop overlooking the river dam is situated the country home of a Chicagoan, Clay M. Baird. A naturalist of energy and acumen, his forty acres of orchard and grapes even in the dormant season reflect much of interest to those who love the country.

On the top of this hill peach trees are thriving. Last fall they produced a bumper crop even at this northern altitude, because the hills offer little chance of a sudden frost killing the buds.

The Jonathan apple trees, most of them twenty years old, this fall produced abundant supplies for the family and 200 bushels of unsorted apples which found ready acceptance by the residents of Hull house, in the heart of Chicago.

Seventy Hives of Bees.

But most interesting of all is the colony of 70 hives of bees which were the source of the most unusual and acceptable neighborhood holiday greeting. These Italian bees in 1930 gave up 3,000 pounds of fine comb honey and 1,500 pounds last season. With a considerable number of other Cook county apiarists, Mr. Baird finds a ready market for his honey in the metropolitan area.

The desires of most city folk who appreciate good honey are necessarily supplied by the modern, pure strained varieties of honey. Yet some of these beekeepers still find a market among consumers for the silver and golden colored combs and their indescribable contents.

One is led to a peculiar form of sympathy for that mass of population unfamiliar with the delights and healthful influence of good honey. In homes with growing children or in which adults are seeking to satisfy sweet tastes while reducing, there is need for introduction of this sirupy concoction, as direct from nature as any edible can be.

Women seeking to reduce are surprised upon learning that the form of sugars contained in honey not only point toward trim waist lines, but upon scientific reports actually have "toning up" qualities for the digestive system.

A simple flight of the imagination is the only requisite for picturing what attractive advertising might be written on the physical characteristics of honey. We are informed by beekeepers that the only deterent to such a campaign is the very widespread nature of the production.

Education Carried On.

Yet in some sections, such as the intermountain areas of Montana, Utah, and Wyoming, beekeeping is considered a major agricultural industry. Even in the middle west there exist state and regional associations of apiarists which are seeking the means of extending appreciation for their products.

But to the housewife who is seeking a novel and attractive supper for her family, there is no need of waiting for this commercialized urge. Whip up a pan of biscuits for supper, or turn toward the steaming pan of flapjacks (sometimes called pancakes) that will please the husband and be within dietetic reach of the children.

And if you find one form of honey not suited to your taste, it is comforting to know that the variety of flavors is extensive. For the bees that sip from sweet clover, from alfalfa blossoms, from orchard blossoms, or from buckwheat, will each give you a peculiar and natural flavor as inviting as the range of perfumes at your vanity box.

PRICES OF SALADS SHOW INFLUENCE OF ARIZONA WEATHER

Salads early this winter have cost slightly more than usual in comparison with other foods because of weather conditions affecting the Arizona crop. Larger shipments from the Imperial valley in California are expected by Chicago dealers to force down the price. Lettuce heads of good size now are worth around 15 cents retail, they report.

HUBBY NEEDN'T WIPE DISHES, EXPERTS SAY

Husbands who often have been pressed into kitchen duty will welcome a suggestion which comes from the home management specialists of North Dakota agricultural college.

Dishes do not need to be wiped but can be rinsed in hot water, placed in a drying rack, and permitted to stand there until the table needs resetting.

The North Dakota experts have found it a cleanly process and it will save almost an hour of labor a day in the average home. The only utensils which need to be wiped are the silverware.

Smoked Meats and Beef Selling at Lower Prices

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers the committee on marketing information of the meat council of Chicago states: "Smoked meats are recommended to the housewives of Chicago as the most economical meat buys over the coming week-end. Shoulder roast of beef is also selling at attractive prices at the present time."

COFFEE ONCE USED AS FOOD.

Before coffee became the beverage known today, the berries were first used as food, and later were prescribed as medicine.

FOOD LAWS AID HOUSEWIVES IN PICKING SIRUP

Winter morning pancakes may be flavored with sirups of known value if the shopper reads the label. Laws requiring manufacturers to denote the actual contents of syrup cans are a valuable help to the housewife who knows how to interpret such labels.

Three types of sirups are on the market. There is the pure sirup, the mixed sirups, and the imitations which are artificially flavored and colored but so marked on the can according to the law. Cheap sirups are wholesome but must be sold for what they are.

"Cane sirup" and "sugar cane sirup" are the same. They are made from the juice of sugar cane. But "cane sugar sirup" is ordinary refined cane sugar and water with coloring and flavoring added if the label indicates the latter ingredients.

Montana Rosie Has High Time in Gay Gotham

"CITY GIRL" is a gay, frothy romance of the so-called New York sophisticates. At least this is a picture of sophistication, as many of the unsophisticated imagine it. For instance there is the pure young country girl who is thrown into the whirl of New York society and comes out of it spiritually unscathed; there are wonderful, fairy-like penthouses with bars and amusing, devoted colored maids; women, in Paris gowns, who take life and love lightly, who live as casually as the smoke curls away from their scented cigarets; yachts, decorated in perfect modernistic fashion, in which a crowd of light-hearted men and women cruise around the bays and sounds, tinkling their cocktail glasses. The women get mixed up with each other's husbands as they dance on the decks under the light of the moon. There is all this, and more, and what charming unsophisticated girl longing for the crystal pleasures of New York could possibly resist the allure of this picture?

EUNICE CHAPIN.

Rosie comes from Montana to New York with a large fortune and with the express intention of breaking into society. By a piece of good luck she rents the penthouse of a young man who is sailing for Chile, and with this penthouse comes automatically a group of entrancing young people. Most of them are college graduates now in their late twenties who gaily and self-consciously wear the cloak of cheap cynicism. One of the men thinks up a publicity stunt for Rosemary [no longer Rosie]. She entertains the Queen of Carmania, who is leaving for Hollywood, and is launched somewhat incredibly into the upper stratum of sophisticated New York society. She forgets the good Nicky who has sailed for Chile and falls in love with Cort. After marrying him she discovers that he already has a wife and is something of a cad.

The rest of the story devotes itself to the disentanglement of this situation. Rosie is finally "done right by" and finds the happiness that is her due. And we are led to believe that the crowd goes on much the same as usual.

Rosie as a character is handled deftly, taking for granted, of course, that she never gets beyond a typified representation of an individual. Nicky, the sophisticated, with the heart of gold underneath, perhaps because he so seldom appears in the direct narrative, never seems real, even as a type. Cort, the author tells us time and time again, represents in people what New York represents in cities: glamour, fascination and a soul of tinsel. Nevertheless the reader finds it difficult to believe this. Most of the time he seems rather dull, and an unrealized vision of the author's ideal of these things. Bubbles is found in almost every modern novel, her prototype perhaps most perfectly achieved in Ernest Hemingway's Lady Brett. Despite the frequency of her appearance in modern fiction, she nevertheless remains the most interesting character in the book.

The writing of "City Girl" is crisp and light. The author in occasional descriptive passages communicates the excitement and the often incredible beauty always latent in New York's atmosphere. But when the writing becomes serious or philosophical it is invariably uninteresting. The author knows her limitations and is rarely caught in this predicament. Her talent is for swift dramatic narrative and hurried, careless, but usually delightful characterizations.

The dialogue is exceedingly snappy. Though once in a while it doesn't come through, for the most part, considered only as dialogue, it is witty, amusing, light, risque, and sophisticated. If the reader hopes to supplement the characterization with the dialogue he will be disappointed, for every person talks like every other and there is no key to the differences in personality to be discovered in the conversation of the characters.

The sophistication made so much of here and so laboriously created is dated. It is of the brand that was popular five years ago and those who know say it has been lost in a newer, subtler sophistication much more difficult to understand. It is said that the present sophistication is not so obvious nor so futilitarian as the former. But for the purposes of a light and amusing novel the other type is better; it is more easily captured, more satisfying to those who think of sophistication as sophistication, and not as one of the many revelations of intellectual trends.

Delegates May Revise Boards of Methodists

Bishop's Tenure Also Will Be Debated.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

WHEN Methodist Episcopal delegates go to the general conference of that church in Atlantic City in May they will face strongly organized movements for administrative changes, regarded by some as the most drastic in Methodism's history. This was learned yesterday at the close of the meeting of the executives of the Methodist "book" committee at the Stevens hotel.

Decentralization of the missionary and benevolent work also is being contemplated at meetings of the World Service commission, now in session at the Hotel Sherman.

Shall bishops continue to be elected for life? This question, together with the proposal to abolish the office of district superintendent, with the election of a large number of "diocesan" bishops, is reported to have been troubling the members of the book committee. That group in the Methodist Episcopal church determines the number of bishops to be elected and otherwise exercises extensive control over administrative agencies of that church.

At present the Methodist church has three main types of administrative officers: bishops, district superintendents, and board secretaries. In earlier Methodist history bishops had world-wide jurisdiction. Later this world-wide power was somewhat curbed by giving each a geographical diocese, known as an area. There are 21 such areas in the United States.

Agitation against the life tenure of bishops has been rising for many years. The new factor giving weight to this movement has been the growth of "central conferences" in mission fields which have been electing bishops of their own. While the central conference of southern Asia recently elected a bishop for a period of six years, and the central conference of Mexico elected a bishop for four years with no reëlection possible.

Discussion in the book committee and among Methodist leaders now tends in two directions: toward doing away with district superintendents who are elected for six year terms, on the one hand, and the creation of a large number of "diocesan" bishops, or magnified district superintendents with limited tenure, on the other. It is asserted that no serious proposals to do away with the episcopal office have been heard.

Committee meetings are being held this week at the Hotel Sherman to consider the problem presented by shrinking income for the operation of the seven national missionary and benevolent boards, known collectively as the "World Service." The Rev. Dr. George H. Spencer of Boston, chairman of the world service commission, is presiding at the sessions.

Under the centralized centenary campaign of 1919-'20 the sum of $19,000,000 was at first annually raised by American Methodism. Since those days the income gradually has been shrinking until at the present time it is said to have fallen to $7,000,000. While a decentralization of the boards is declared to be seriously considered, yet it is asserted that there is no tendency to reduce the number of boards.

YALE REDUCES ITS FACULTY; FINANCES ARE GROWING LOW

New Haven, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Yale university will make no new faculty appointments for the academic year due to the stringent condition of the university finances, it was learned today. The Sterling professorships and other faculty chairs which are privately endowed by trust funds entirely separate from the college finances are unaffected and will be appointed as usual.

It was learned that a curtailment in the different departmental appropriations will necessitate the release of several instructors from each department, in addition to those who normally resign or retire at the end of the academic year.

The economics department in the college has already released 18 professors and instructors since the opening of the school year.

The university's finances are in such a condition that Yale is faced with a probable $500,000 deficit at the end of the college year in June. No salaries have been cut, but all other expenditures are being curtailed.

THE STAGE

THE "Ziegfeld Follies" will begin its Chicago engagement at the Illinois theater Monday night, Jan. 18, instead of the preceding Sunday, as first announced. Mr. Ziegfeld is bringing many carloads of scenery as well as a herd of papier-maché elephants; and he wants to be sure that his mechanical department is well rehearsed for the Chicago première. Incidentally, the stage of the Illinois has been sawed up for the operation of the treadmills of De Lawd in "The Green Pastures," and the crevasses must be bridged before the "Follies" girls start to dance.

The Theater Guild's touring or Chicago company for Eugene O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra" began its career in Baltimore this week. It will visit Washington, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Buffalo before coming to the Blackstone theater. This itinerary suggests that the date of its Chicago première will be Feb. 8. The cast includes Judith Anderson as the daughter, Florence Reed as the mother, Walter Abel as the son, Crane Wilbur as the father, and Thurston Hall as the ship captain.

When Maurice Chevalier comes to the Erlanger theater Jan. 24 he will give a program of songs in French and English, offering numbers that have been popular in his cinema showings and also selections from his career as a stage and café entertainer in Europe. He will include several character impersonations which are new in this country.

Chevalier will be assisted by Jacques Fray and Mario Braggiatti, pianists of radio reputation. The engagement is limited to one week. Performances will be given every afternoon and evening.

The engagement of "Elizabeth the Queen" at the Studebaker theater will end tomorrow night. The company will then disband. The touring company of "Strange Interlude" is also ready to halt . . . But that resolute pilgrim, Walker Whiteside, who staged "Surf" at the Blackstone last fall, is still carrying on. He will submit this play to Broadway next week under its former title, "Three Men and a Girl."

"Broken Dishes" will move out of the Adelphi at the end of next week. The theater will retire to the sidelines again pending its manager's discovery of a new booking. C. C.

Establish Radium Clinic to Serve the Needy

A free radium clinic for the treatment of needy persons suffering from cancer and other tumors has been established by the North Chicago hospital, 2551 North Clark street, Dr. D. C. Hoyt, president of the institution, announced yesterday.

Dr. Hoyt said the hospital has more than $200,000 worth of radium which is to be used solely for persons who are unable to pay.

Jane Addams Soon to Renew Peace Efforts

Leaves Baltimore Hospital Next Week.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Jane Addams has returned to her life battle to promote international peace.

Recovered from an abdominal operation performed at Johns Hopkins hospital Dec. 12, she made plans today to leave the institution the first of next week.

First she will go to Winter Park, Fla., for a rest before returning to Hull House, Chicago, probably in March. Later a trip to Europe and a visit to Geneva and the central office of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom has been arranged.

Co-winner with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university of the 1931 Nobel peace prize, Miss Addams already has decided how her share of the prize, $16,367, shall be used. The award has been placed to her credit in a Chicago bank.

"An endowment of $12,000 is to be provided for the central office of the league at Geneva," she said, "and the remainder will be used for the retirement of present obligations and to meet general expenses."

Seated in an easy chair in the hospital today in a room banked with flowers and books, the 71 year old feminist talked of the subjects nearest her heart, peace and young people.

"I believe my selection for the Nobel peace award in 1931, came in recognition of my work as chairman of the women's league," she began, and told of the work of the organization in 26 countries, including China, Japan, India, and England.

"Many telegrams were received," she said, "after announcement of the award was made. There was an interesting and gracious one from Dr. Butler, co-winner of the award. There were others from Gov. Emmerson of Illinois and former Gov. Smith of New York, as well as flowers from Mrs. Herbert Hoover. I also received a splendid message from Count Kalergi of Austria, who at first was considered for the award."

The founder of Hull house had a kindly word for young people. Admitting they had "fearful frankness" she declared she was not alarmed over their future.

"Stupid tactics" was the way she described the marching of the unemployed groups to Washington. "I favor the federal government lending a hand, however, and suggest that 1 per cent of the federal income tax be delivered by the government to the state organizations for the use of those out of work."

Town Topics Plans to Cease Business, but Inquiry Continues

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The magazine Town Topics, which for fifty-five years has sprinkled its columns with spicy bits of gossip about persons socially and financially prominent, is suspending publication tomorrow because of the attorney general's investigation into its stock sales methods.

It has been under investigation since its musty, old fashioned offices in West 42d street were raided just four weeks ago.

In announcing the suspension of publication, George H. Combs Jr., counsel, stated that the stockholders would be cared for, and that it was hoped publication eventually could be resumed.

When the raiders entered the offices last month under orders from Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr., they found much that was reminiscent of yesteryear. About the walls were framed front covers of the old Town Topics in its happier days—in the days when Col. William D'Alton Mann was publishing it and amassing a fortune.

Nothing seemed to have been changed.

There were the books, the records and the information cards with data about various prospective stock purchasers, and these were bundled together and taken back to the attorney general's office, where they still remain.

Since then, under examination a string of witnesses, all prominent, have told the circumstances under which they purchased the stock—stock which sold around $100 a share and which, over a period of years, paid very few dividends.

The purpose of this inquiry was frankly stated. Mr. Bennett and his assistants wanted to know whether there had been any fraudulent representations in the sale of this stock.

While this announcement was being made, Mr. McCauley was resuming his study of the equally interesting business methods of the Tatler and American Sketch, a rival gossip sheet which in recent years has enjoyed the somewhat dubious distinction of being the only publication to grade debutantes.

THE OPERA

THE CAST:

La Gioconda, a ballad singer..Rosa Raisa
La Cieca, her blind mother..Sonia Sharnova
Laura, his wife.....Cyrena Van Gordon
Enzo Grimaldo, a Genoese noble....Antonio Cortis

BY EDWARD MOORE.

HERE is a grand, spacious old piece, needing for its proper presentation six of the finest dramatic voices that can be found for the leading rôles, several more in less important parts, a full chorus, a full orchestra, and a full ballet, and giving them all plenty to do of the most ear filling and eye filling description.

It has been two years since the last performance of the work, wherefore it was a renewal of old memories to take the trip back to this representation of Venice. The first scene, the courtyard of the doge's palace, was the most lifelike, having only a misplacement of the lion's mouth to vary from what one is shown in the real courtyard. The other scenes have to be more or less taken for granted, but they are attractive scenery.

But if the settings were attractive the singing was ten times more so. Here was song at high power, and, what is less usual in so large a group, high power excellently balanced. You may have been thrilled at hearing Mr. Formichi sing to the fishermen in the second act; you were probably equally thrilled to hear Mme. Raisa and Mme. Van Gordon sing their duet in the same act, or Mme. Sharnova in the first act, or Mr. Baromeo in the third, or Mr. Cortis in the second.

Each one is entitled to cast his own vote. But there should be one extra for the choristers, who also sang faithfully and well here, there, and throughout. And there can well be an extra vote for Mr. Cooper, whose function it has frequently been to invigorate and rejuvenate old scores, and who has a bit of magic of his own which he uses in the process.

This is the opera which presents the "Dance of the Hours" for the ballet, a piece in the classic manner introducing twenty-four dancers in the flaring skirted, powder puff costumes of long ago. In this case they had two leaders in the persons of Ruth Pryor and Edward Caton. The dancers showed that they had been well trained as individuals in a well constructed dance, needing only the group training wherein a tenth of a second in a maneuver makes the difference between perfection and its lack. This and the operatic astronomy regarding the moon in the second act were the only points that kept the revival of "La Gioconda" from being a great event. Vocally it was brilliant beyond telling.

The semi-final item of the Kinsolving Musical Mornings at the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel yesterday was a joint recital by Juliette Lippe, soprano, and Jacques Gordon, violinist, both former Chicagoans.

Mme. Lippe, an artist of notable achievements in both opera and concert, has been struggling with an attack of laryngitis, the traces of which were still to be heard in her singing. She has, however, breadth, line, and manner in everything she does, and these the wintry microbes were quite unable to displace. Mr. Gordon displayed as much distinction as a soloist as he used to when he was concertmaster of the Chicago Symphony orchestra and as he does now as the first violin of his own string quartet. He gave a classically clear and fine performance of works by Bach and Mozart, and an exciting performance of other works by Ravel, Glazounoff-Gordon, Grasse, and de Falla.

Crowd Laughs and Buys Food for Children

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Still chuckling, a crowd walked out of the Cort theater at twilight yesterday after a hilarious afternoon with "East Lynne," as played by the Billy Bryant Show Boat company of Ohio and Mississippi river fame.

Sending folks home in a happy frame of mind wasn't the only benefit of the show which Billy Bryant described in his curtain speech as "a sufferin' play because Lady Isabel suffers so much." It provided THE TRIBUNE's Hungry School Children's fund more with $450, which will be spent on free lunches for needy youngsters in the public schools.

A glance over the audience indicated that a good many business men had played hookey from work, that a good many students had played hookey from school, that club women had disregarded social affairs, and radio and opera stars had taken the afternoon off. From the front row to the boxes and the balconies laughter rippled throughout the afternoon, punctuated with generous hisses for the villain and cheers for the heroine.

At the first intermission Billy Bryant issued the open invitation for one and all to come up to the bar back of the scenery and imbibe beer and munch pretzels, club women rubbed elbows with the business men who hurried to see if Billy had meant what he was talking about. For fifteen minutes the actors and actresses, wearing their costumes and makeups, visited with the guests in a neighborly way until someone called "curtain," and everyone had to hurry out in front of the footlights and be an audience again.

The "East Lynne" cast shared honors with the curtain acts in the matter of popularity. There was the harmonica player, the comedian who played a one-string violin and made sweet music from Swiss bells, the little girl who imitated George Cohan at the age of 7, the old fashioned swimming suit number—all came in for their share of applause.

At intermission Phil Maxwell of THE TRIBUNE introduced to the audience the celebrities among them. These included Coe Glade of the Chicago Civic Opera, George Gaw, Chicago's official greeter, Bess Johnson, an NBC Broadcasting star, the Harold Teen gang of W-G-N, including Beezie Binks, Lilacs, Lillums, Harold himself, and Blair Walliser, author of the script, and Tweet Hogan, Drake hotel orchestra leader, who is heard over W-G-N.

$5—Anna L. Jarchon, O. Engel.
$3—Mrs. Wilmer Flinn.
$1—Helen L. Dickinson.

Total	$ 58.00
Previously acknowledged	30,938.03
Grand total	$30,996.03

Bible of 1677 Found in Waste Paper Storeroom

A 255 year old Bible, much worn but still in good condition, was found among old papers yesterday in the store room of the Crane Paper Stock company, 813 West 22d street.

The book, bearing the date 1677 on the title page, probably was mixed in with a huge bundle of paper collected from loop offices two months ago, Benjamin Park, 1727 Jarvis avenue, manager of the company, said.

Park noticed the book as he walked through the storeroom. The Bible contains over 2,000 pages and has texts in German, Latin, and Hebrew. It weighs twenty-five pounds. Park said that a bookseller offered him $100 for it but he refused.

Urge Congress to Take Part in World Fair

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—With officials of the Chicago Century of Progress in Washington, headed by Rufus C. Dawes, president of the 1933 World's Fair committee, efforts were increased to accelerate the passage of the $1,725,000 appropriation for federal participation in the Chicago celebration.

As a result of discussions between members of the fair committee and congressional leaders, it is probable that hearings on the appropriation bill will begin before the senate library committee next week.

Mr. Dawes pointed out that since the passage in February, 1929, of the joint resolution authorizing presidential invitations to foreign governments, the Century of Progress has received generous financial support in Chicago, the sum of $10,000,000 being available.

Thirty-nine states have indicated their intention to participate, Mr. Dawes said, many foreign governments have taken steps for participation, and many leading industrial corporations have contracted to take part. Five of the large buildings and two smaller ones, said Mr. Dawes, are approaching completion and, he asserted, the gates of the exposition will be opened in June, 1933.

"We ask no subsidy of congress or state or city," Mr. Dawes declared. "We desire them to participate in the exposition. The federal government has invited the participation of other governments and at a time when some of them face financial difficulties. We certainly hope our government will be represented there to act as host."

Secretary of State Stimson today advised Chairman Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.] of the senate commerce committee of his department's approval of participation by the federal government in the Century of Progress.

A sellout for the "Radio Revue" at the Chicago Stadium tonight was indicated last night. Seats are still available, however. If the house is filled, more than $20,000 will be added to the Joint Emergency Relief Fund. The entire proceeds of the show go to that fund.

More than eighty of the leading radio entertainers and announcers from Chicago broadcasting stations will participate in the show. The program will start at 8:15 o'clock. Dance bands and orchestras will appear in full strength. Ben Bernie will be master of ceremonies, with Herbert Rawlinson of W-G-N, CHICAGO TRIBUNE station, as first assistant.

The revue has been arranged for the fund by a committee of radio executives representing all Chicago stations and networks. Niles Trammell of the National Broadcasting company, and H. Leslie Atlass of the Columbia Broadcasting system are chairman and vice chairman, respectively.

IT'S A LONG, LONG ROAD

Junior League's Arts Exhibit Is Given Praise

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

THE JUNIOR LEAGUE is to be congratulated on the ability and versatility of its members. The exhibit yesterday at the Casino club came as a delightful surprise to the unsuspecting spectator who was forced to exclaim again and again at the charm, power or originality of the various subjects which made up the show.

Florence Higinbotham was particularly in the limelight when one entered the smaller gallery and was confronted by the costumes, Indian pottery and fruit, masks and headdress which were last seen on the stage in the Junior League dramatization of "The Runaway Papoose." The bowls are made of paper; the woven straw baskets are of paper; the fruits are paper; in fact one walked in a paper world of marvels all from the designs of Miss Higinbotham.

In the larger room there were paintings in oil and water color, drawings, photographs and sculpture. The jury of award consisted of John Storrs, the sculptor; Alice Roullier, and Walter Frazier, architect. They had a difficult problem to face in giving the prizes, so much that was shown was of such equal worth. In the end they gave the first prize in oil painting to Miss Emeline Bush and second to Mrs. Walter Paepke; first in water color to Mrs. Frederick Clay Bartlett Jr., and second to Miss Cynthia Wilson; first in drawing to Mrs. Duncan Hodges and second to Miss Sophia Harrington; first in photography to Mrs. Norman Pritchard and second to Miss Bertha Kline; first in sculpture to Miss Margaret James and second to Mrs. John Shaw.

The photography of Mrs. Pritchard was most remarkable, very lovely in quality and composition. She showed clearly that the camera has been much too narrowly limited. Miss Bush, in her oil paintings, was as fine. Her work is characterized by a generous depth of color and a spontaneous approach to her subject that is intriguing. Mrs. Bartlett Jr. is a modernist, vivacious and brisk; her sketches are flavored with an atmosphere decidedly French but not unpleasing. Mrs. Buell Mullen showed two large oils, the marine a calm expanse of gray green sea. Mrs. Duncan Hodges [Sarah Brewster] gave a brilliant piece of drawing in her girl in riding costume. Miss Henrietta Countiss offered a very finely painted still life in a low key.

From here it is hoped the best of the exhibit will go to St. Louis and then to the Pacific coast. The Chicago Junior League is doing such creative work as may well be an inspiration to other chapters beyond our city limits.

IOWA RETURNS TO HORSES.

Six reasons for the marked return of horse power on farms in Iowa are listed in the annual report of the Iowa Horse and Mule Breeders' association by Harry D. Linn, field representative. The first of them is the price of grain, which "has dropped until a horse can be fed and worked at a low figure not exceeding, in most cases, 25 cents per day."

Other inducements credited with a return to horses for power in farming operations include the following

"The experiences of farmers during the last couple of years have proved to many doubtful people that horses cannot be improved upon for farm power.

"The labor situation has undergone a marked change so that at the present time good farm hands who are glad to care for and drive horses can be procured at reasonable wages.

"There has been a marked demand for farm size horses both at the farm sales and the various large horse markets of the middle west.

"The farmer is doing his cost figuring himself.

"The price of horses has not dropped as those prices on other farm live stock. A year ago one horse would buy one cow; now one horse will buy two cows."

Horse improvement association work work has expanded in recent months. Farmers are looking for good stallions and are realizing that many of the average farm mares are inferior for breeding and the foaling of good colts, according to Mr. Linn.

Wanted by Babies: Lots of Sunshine, Real and Bottled

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

The Children's bureau in Washington brings up the matter of sun baths in the late fall. It states: "Babies should be given longer sun baths at this time of year than in spring and summer. Mothers are advised to continue sun baths for their babies and young children during the fall and winter. At the same time, the daily feeding of cod liver oil, or 'bottled sunshine,' is also urged. During the winter months babies need both sun baths and cod liver oil in order to prevent rickets and to enable their bones to develop normally."

"The reason longer sun baths are needed at this time of year," the bureau points out, "is that the ultra-violet rays are weak in fall and winter A winter baby cannot get enough sunshine unless he lives in the most southern and sunny parts of the country, so he especially needs cod liver oil.

"A baby may have rickets long before his mother notices anything wrong with him. Long before his legs become badly bowed, or before other deformities of the bones appear, the disease may have begun to develop. Plenty of sunlight and cod liver oil at this early stage will save the baby from developing severe rickets and from such results as bone deformities and poor teeth.

"If the sun's rays are to help the baby grow properly and to prevent rickets they must fall directly on the skin and tan it. The rays that tan the skin and prevent rickets—the ultra-violet rays—do not pass through clothing nor through ordinary window glass.

"Every mother who wishes her baby to have robust health should give him regular sun baths from early infancy until he is old enough to play in the sun himself. Sun baths may begin when the baby is 3 or 4 weeks old—in warm weather outdoors, in cold weather indoors at an open window."

In cold weather, the bureau says, a sun bath can be given indoors near a window opened at top or bottom The room should be heated and the doors closed to prevent drafts. In the coldest weather it may be better to give two short sun baths a day, instead of one long one. Mothers are especially advised that the thermometer may register 40 or 50 degrees higher in the sun than in the shade, and if the baby is protected from the wind the sun will help to keep him warm.

The United States government folder, "Sunlight for Babies," has been revised and is now ready for mothers. Our own leaflet, "Keeping the Well Baby Well," contains this and other references and will be sent on receipt of a stamped self-addressed envelop.

Look to Your Diet If You'd Have Skin Without Blemishes

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

There's not much use in about talking of new rouges, compacts and powder colorings until we get the skin cleared of blackheads, although I know the other makes more agreeable reading. But blackheads, it seems, like the weather and the bill worries, are always with us. Winter, summer, spring and fall, the blackhead and complaints never seem to subside. Of course, I read out of this not that the blackhead complaint is more universal than it used to be, but that women are becoming more and more fastidious about their complexions.

Now, blackhead causes may be buried deep within the body, a fact generally overlooked by the would-be router. It may be, and very frequently is, due to a faulty diet. A diet in which fats and starches abound.

The sensible thing, then, is to adopt a diet consisting largely of lean meats, much fruit and vegetables. In fact, a liquid diet is advised where there is excess fat, oily skin and the usual blackhead accompaniment. The blackhead condition may be due to constipation and frequently is. It may likewise be due to a stagnant form of living; little exercise, poor circulation.

I point out these things so you will not put all your curative eggs in the lotion basket, which is exactly what most blackhead ousters do. Clear up inside first is the rule for a speedy recovery.

The local cause may be explained this way: First the oil from the little glands in the skin gets thick. Then the oil plugs the mouth of the gland. The top of the oily, cheesy plug gets dirty and a blackhead is formed. [Whiteheads are practically blackheads without the dirt formation.] The oil keeps on being formed and turns into a sort of cheese, so that on being squeezed out a "flesh worm" is seen.

Society Group Plans Benefit with Chevalier

WASN'T it a circumstantial blessing that Maurice Chevalier's first professional appearance in Chicago should be announced on the very day that a group of our prominent townsfolk met to plan a French-American benefit for the unemployed?

It all happened last Monday, when sixty or seventy men and women gathered for tea at Mrs. Charles S. Dewey's residence to discuss the possibilities of holding a benefit in a Chicago theater on Jan. 17.

During the meeting it was learned that the theater for which they were negotiating was not available. Shortly before the close of the session, which apparently wasn't making much headway toward what it had set out to accomplish, news of Chevalier's booking arrived.

The committee naturally jumped at the opportunity of staging a benefit by the dynamic and beloved Frenchman and immediately took over the Erlanger theater for his opening concert on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 24. A few hours later Chevalier, informed of the matter by a long distance telephone call to San Francisco, expressed whole hearted approval of the project.

The proceeds will help the unemployed of the French colony in Chicago through the Joint Emergency fund. The French consul, M. Bougereal, and Ira Nelson Morris, general chairman of the committee in charge, were the chief instigators of the benefit, and all of the French-American societies are coöperating in arrangements for the show.

The men's committee includes Henry H. Porter, Robert F. Carr, Robert Hall McCormick, Charles S. Dewey, Frederick H. Rawson, Hayden B. Harris, Cyrus Hall McCormick, and Arthur T. Aldis.

The women's committee consists of Mrs. Francis Johnson, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mrs. Augustus W. Eddy, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Waller Borden, Mrs. Morris L. Johnston, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, Mrs. Arthur T. Aldis, Mrs. Moise Dreyfus, Mme. Robert Coube, Mme. Claverie, and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy.

With such a capable committee the benefit cannot help but be successful. Reservations for tickets are being made already and there is every reason to expect the affair to be one of the outstanding events of this winter of unique and fashionable benefits. Ambassador Paul Claudel has been invited and the committee is hoping he will be able to attend.

[Bloom Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Alford of River Forest announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Marion, to Eric Edmund Bottoms, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Austin Bottoms of Flint, Mich. Miss Alford attended the Art institute and is a member of Kappa Gamma Delta. Mr. Bottoms is a graduate of Michigan State college school of engineering and is a member of Hermian fraternity. He is now connected with the war department, First Chicago district, U. S. army corps of engineers. The wedding will take place in the early summer.

Twelfth Night Ball Tonight at the Germania.

The Twelfth Night ball this evening at the Germania club will not be the gorgeous spectacle it has been in years past, but it will undoubtedly be the gayest party of the winter. Old man depression has been teaching us all that simpler parties can be more fun than elaborate affairs, and last year's Twelfth Night ball, which was held at the Germania also, was one of the most successful ever held since the late Billy Gamble instituted the annual Butchers and Bakers' ball.

There will be no decorations in the Germania ballroom tonight save the red and green Christmas festoons which were hung before the holidays. The rule for costumes is "wear what you please," so everybody will have a chance to exercise his or her ingenuity without much necessary expense.

There will be dozens of dinner parties given before the costumed crowds arrive around midnight at the Germania. One of the largest will be the dinner that the James Addingtons and Donald McLennan Jr. are giving at the Casino for Miss Hortense Henry and her fiancé, Gordon Kelley. The John Roots, the Howard Ellises, the junior Henry Hoopers, the Thomas Wheelocks, and several other couples have organized a Dutch treat dinner party to be held at the Germania, and about 35 Dutch treaters will dine at the Red Star inn. There's to be a "mystery" dinner, too, at the Bismarck hotel to which about two dozen people have received invitations, minus the names of the hosts. Among other dinner hosts will be the Walter S. Brewsters, Russell Tyson, Lowell Chapin, Miss Frieda Foltz, and Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne.

The marriage of Miss Rosalind Mooney, daughter of Mrs. William Mooney and the late Judge Mooney of Ohio, to Thomas H. Beacom Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Beacom of 399 Fullerton parkway, will be solemnized at 10 o'clock this morning in the historic log chapel on the University of Notre Dame campus. The Rev. Father Thomas Tobin, a classmate of the bridegroom's, has come from Portland, Ore., to perform the ceremony.

Only the families of the bride and groom will be present at the service and at the wedding breakfast to follow at the Oliver hotel in South Bend. Miss Mooney will be attended by her sister, Mrs. Paul Conaghan, and Harold Beacom will be his brother's best man. After a trip to Bermuda Mr. Beacom and his bride will reside at 2608 Lake View avenue.

The Chicago Council of Foreign Relations and the English Speaking union are joining forces to sponsor a luncheon for Sir Norman Angell, M. P., on Tuesday at 12:30 o'clock in the grand ballroom of the Palmer house. The luncheon probably will be a light hearted affair, but there'll be nothing frivolous about the discussion to follow it, for Sir Norman has chosen for his solemn topic, "The Capitalist Collapse and Our Educational Values." The speaker is editor of Foreign Affairs [London] and is, according to a footnote on the luncheon invitations, "one of the few men peculiarly qualified to discuss what we have learned from the present crisis."

SPONSORS CONCERT

[Le Gueldre Photo.]

Mrs. Harry J. Lachritz is chairman of a concert by Getta Gradova to be given on Monday evening in the Temple Sholem recital hall at Sheridan road and Stratford place to benefit the philanthropic fund of the Temple Sisterhood. The arrangement committee includes Mrs. Leon Mandel II., honorary chairman; Mrs. Philip Spiegel, Mrs. Philip Schwartz, Mrs. Sylvan Schloss, and Mrs. George Sugarman.

The Junior league, to quote one of its young members, was "bowled over" by the success of its art exhibition yesterday at the Casino. Rather than record our own untutored opinions of the unquestionable artistic merits of the show, we refer you to the plaudits of the art critic. We can't refrain from saying, however, that it's too bad the exhibition is not to hang on the Casino walls for several days more so that everybody who missed it yesterday might have an opportunity to see it.

From 11 o'clock in the morning, when the show opened, until after 6 o'clock groups of admiring visitors filed through the Casino to view the pictures and sculpture in the fountain room and the Indian exhibit from "The Runaway Papoose" in the adjoining room.

The ballroom was packed for the fine musical program that Mrs. Albert F. Madlener, Miss Betty Poole, and Jurien Hoekstra gave at 2 o'clock, and afterwards there was a great crush at the tea tables where Mrs. Boyd Hill, wearing a small black frock and turban and some interesting metal jewelry; Mrs. Gordon Laing, and Miss Frances Weary were pouring.

The league members seemed to be especially proud of Mrs. Charles R. Lindsey's Junior league map which arrived as a surprise yesterday morning. The map is an intriguing affair showing the institutions where the league members engage in charity work and presents a really comprehensive panorama of the organization's far flung activities. A silver star on a gray background marks the Junior league office not far from the familiar blue shore line of Lake Michigan. From here the eye wanders north, south, and west, meeting miniature pictures of the schools, hospitals, and other philanthropic institutions, each in its correct geographic location. The map is to be sent with the prize winning pictures and sculpture to the regional conference on Jan. 18 in St. Louis, and eventually, we presume, be hung in the league office in the Italian Court building.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce W. Strong of 1320 North State parkway will give a tea on Sunday afternoon for Dr. Frank Theis and his bride, who was Miss Hazel Ericsson before their marriage last month.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Armour will go south next week for a few days of shooting at a hunt club near Macon, Miss. Several Chicagoans, including the Edward J. Berminghams, the Howard Linns, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hutchins, and Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Blair are members of the same club and make occasional trips there during the hunting season.

A large dinner was given last night at the Women's Athletic club, after which Dr. Gordon Laing of the University of Chicago and Thornton Wilder, the author, gave talks. Over three hundred members and guests were present. Mrs. Raymond C. Dudley, president of the club, presented the speakers.

Doris Tells Bashful Ones to Observe, Then Imitate the Talkative

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"When I sit down to talk to a young man I cannot seem to carry on a conversation!" How often that line is written in letters directed to me!

Sometimes the admission is a bad case of bashfulness. Sometimes the bashful charge is dismissed as having nothing to do with the case. But the tongue-tiedness remains. It's an ailment that afflicts the male tongue, too.

Now, there is an old rule reading something like this: "Don't try too hard at the thing you don't do well." This might be applied to the tongue-tied. Learn to limber up conversationally before you exploit your wares! Successful conversationalists have to feel at ease with themselves first!

Now, learning to limber up may be construed as lessons in observation. Observe how other girls [or boys] tackle the conversational hour. Ask other girls [or boys] what they talk about how to develop a readier tongue. Notice how nonseriously the easy conversationalists take themselves. Note how they may make misstatements and breaks and how they do not let it bother them.

But most of all note how their minds are not centered on themselves. They are not thinking of how they look, or how what they say will fall on an audience's ears. That's the real trick of unloosening the conversational flood. What you say is of secondary importance, really. That is easy enough to acquire, once you master the trick of loosening up and saying something.

You young people, anyway, do not have to have an impressive flow of talk. You don't have to be particularly convincing. Just nice parlor chatter will do when the beau is being entertained. And surely from the newspaper columns you can pick all manner of conversational leads. From politics to the latest scandal there is spread out for you daily material for chatter. Your movie ventures, interest in the screen stars, interest in sports and its celebrities, may add to your conversational store. And always that best big bet of all, there is your audience before you to draw out and to give a fling with the I pronoun.

LAST YEAR'S WIFE

By ALICE M. WILLIAMSON

SYNOPSIS.

Lorne Carlton and Dick Farrow, popular moving picture stars of Hollywood, are given a farewell party on the eve of their departure for Europe, on a delayed honeymoon after a year's happy marriage. Lorne is unhappy about leaving, as she has an undefinable presentiment of trouble, but Dick is anxious for the adventure. They stop in New York to visit Dick's parents, who are famous on the stage. Lorne, who fought her way through poverty to the heights, feels that she is not approved by the elder Farrows. Lorne and Dick have a delightful time in Rome and Paris. Dolores, the duchess of Crowninshield, a friend of Dick's parents, has invited the young couple to be her guests in London. She is divorced from the duke, but is one of England's most important hostesses.

INSTALLMENT V.

GUESTS OF THE DUCHESS.

Lorne remembered every word that had been said by Margaret and Dennis Farrow in New York concerning the duchess of Crowninshield, and at the time she had "sensed" the unspoken of fact that the two were anxious to have Dick and the duchess know each other. Born Spanish, married to a British duke, and divorced from him eight years ago; still young, a noted beauty, with a charm and a fortune which, combined, put scandal to sleep, the woman was a romantic figure in the great world.

"Dolores was called the most 'beautiful flower of Spain,'" Margaret had said, the day she handed Dick the letter of introduction. "She was only seventeen when she married Crowninshield, who fell in love with her at first sight, when he saw her with the king and queen in the royal box at a grand bull fight in Seville. She was the heiress of a great family, herself; and so, when the divorce came on, not even the stiffest people turned their backs. Besides, once a duchess, always a duchess, you know, in England. And lots of people said it must have been the duke's fault. Rather a grumpy chap, and years older than she! Anyhow, he married again, a big white cow of a woman, born to be a mother many times over. And Dolores hasn't married, though she's been free for over seven years."

Then Dick had asked Margaret how old the duchess would be now, and Margaret had said, evasively, that she didn't quite know. Without looking her up in the Red Book, one might say, about twenty-six. Though she'd still looked nineteen when they met last, in Paris and London.

Listening, Lorne had cattily decided in her mind that if Margaret said her exalted friend might be about twenty-six, she would be, as a matter of fact, nearly thirty. It seemed that the elder Farrows had met the Crowninshields by special request of the latter pair, during the much paragraphed honeymoon of the duke and duchess, part of which had been spent in America. A year or two later they had renewed acquaintance, when the Farrows were having a brilliant theatrical success in London. They had spent weekends together, and already at that time the Farrows had seen the beginning of the end. The duke was jealous, Dolores was bored, and Margaret had said to Dennis: "I give them a year more at most."

She had been right. Crowninshield had supplied grounds for divorce, with some unknown and utterly unimportant co-respondent. The day after the decree nisi had been made absolute he had married a Lady Ermyntrude Something or Other. And nine months later the creature had begun producing sons!

Margaret had gone on describing to Dick the adorable Dolores, who was still "going strong" as the most talked of, the most photographed, the most loved, and the most hated young woman of her set in London.

No house party, no dinner, no dance, no charity ball or bazaar, was completely successful without Dolores Crowninshield, it seemed; and she could do for Dick—yes, and, of course, for Lorne—in London what no other person could do. For Dennis' and Margaret's sakes she would be glad to do much; and when she had seen Dick—O, and Lorne!—it would be for their sakes as well.

Naturally, Lorne had taken a dislike even to the thought of the duchess, who would put up with her to please her parents-in-law. She had hoped that, by the time they were ready to go to London, the duchess of Crowninshield might be called to Spain by the death of a relative, or else be down with "flu," or on the verge of marrying somebody. Nothing of the sort had happened, however. A letter with a ducal coronet in gold upon it, signed "Dolores Crowninshield," had come to Dick in Rome, prompted, it appeared, by Margaret, who had sent her son's European itinerary. A correspondence had followed. The duchess had written a nice little note to Lorne, as in duty bound, hoping that the pair would visit her in London instead of going to an hotel. "I shall love to have you," she underscored, "and the longer you manage to stay with me, the better."

Dick had urged that it would be very ungracious to refuse, as well as silly, and that Den and Margot would be damn mad if they did refuse. So now, as he said, "that was that," and Dick wasn't going to be cheated out of his duchess, of whom he had heard so much when he was a boy at a military school somewhere along the Hudson river.

Lorne hated to think that her Dick should be foolishly excited because he was to see London under such high chaperonage. What was a duchess, anyhow? or even a princess or a real, live queen, for that matter? Several duchesses and princesses, also one queen had been in Hollywood, and they were not so hot! She herself had played the part of a princess on the screen and the critics had said she knew how to "act and to look royally." Still, here she was indulging a panic of an inferiority complex, just because this Crowninshield woman was a great friend of Margaret and Dennis. The elder Farrows were highbrows, distinctly highbrows. If you were with them for a few hours on end, they nearly dazzled you to death, and the worst of it was that Dick in their society became like them. He scintillated. He brilled, and seemed to Lorne suddenly a stranger, not her own human, precious Dick, who called her by secret pet names, had a wise cracking sense of humor, and loved to babble sweet nonsense.

Margaret and Dennis rather despised Hollywood and teased Dick about the place, poking fun at its "intelligentsia." Most likely their wonderful Dolores, though she pretended to be so thrilled over her coming guests, scorned the screen and those who thought themselves somebody upon it. She would, of course, admire Dick for what he was in himself, and Lorne would be left out in the cold. Life was going to be difficult, and her one consolation was that two-thirds of their holiday had already been spent deliciously in Italy and France. There would be only a few extra weeks to get through, thank heaven, before they sailed for home.

"Grin and bear it," Lorne told herself.

Lorne didn't sulk. She accepted destiny with a good grace, and Dick, who had often flown before, was proud of his wife's pleasure in her first flight. She was proud of it, too, and said she would like to fly the Atlantic. But that, perhaps, was an exaggeration of the way she felt about it.

The duchess' car was to meet them. In a long telegram she had described the livery of her chauffeur and footman, therefore the guests had taken it for granted that Dolores didn't intend appearing at Croydon in person. Lorne had been glad of that; and as she was sure that she, Lorne, would be a very bad visitor [she had never visited any one for longer than week-ends], it had been good to be assured by Dick that hosts and hostesses were quite casual, in England. His parents had told him that.

"They let you alone to do as you like," he explained. "Probably the duchess won't even bother to be at home when we arrive. She will just have left orders for things to be done for us and where we are to be parked in the house, and all that. The way it is in English novels written around the smart set, you know."

Lorne didn't know, because so far she had been able to avoid English novels about the smart set, but she was relieved to learn what the habits and customs of the British aristocracy really were.

"It will be something new if she treats us in such an off hand way as that!" exclaimed the girl. "People in Rome and Paris have been so sort of ceremonious. All over us, so to speak! I suppose it's Latin. The way we've been coo-too-ed to, I've begun to think we're royalties."

"We won't seem so marvelous to this woman, I expect, because she's a semi-royalty herself by birth," said Dick. "She's a unique sort of figure in a unique position. Apparently there's no one exactly like her in society anywhere, and I bet it will be a unique experience staying in her house for weeks on end! We'll have to show the lady that Hollywood can live up to her."

"Pooh!" laughed Lorne. "Didn't Queen Victoria say once 'We are not amused.' Now I say 'We are not impressed.'"

"You know perfectly well," Dick answered to this, rather crossly, "that I'm not impressed, either, with her being a duchess. I hope I'm not such a snob. It's something quite different I feel."

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Girl Needs School Clothes.

"A sixteen year old high school girl I know will soon have to discontinue school if some one doesn't come to her aid with winter clothing. Her family is poor and unable to buy her what she needs and she has practically nothing to wear. Can you help her?

"MRS. C."

Girls of this age outgrow their things so quickly they often leave in their wake garments in good condition. If you have a daughter of this age perhaps you'll have some of her clothing to give this high school girl.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Little Norman had been forbidden to go into his grandmother's between meals and ask for something to eat. One afternoon when he was there he discovered some fresh biscuits and presently said, "Say! Won't you give me one of those biscuits without my asking you for it?" R. H.

My little grandson, age 5, was getting ready to go out to play and, not being able to find the cap he was looking for, was told to wear any old cap. He replied, "No, sir, I want a cap with a roof on it," meaning one with a forepiece. I. B. A.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

The conventional thing for a policeman to do when he has captured a prisoner is to search him and to remove from his person trinkets such as guns, blackjacks, and brass knuckles. This is not merely a matter of form or slight routine on the part of the policeman. He has a very earnest desire not to be the victim of them and he, therefore, eliminates these weapons.

At contract bridge many a fine and well planned hand is hit in a vital spot by the enemy hurling a club, thrusting with a spade, cutting with a diamond, or exposing a hard heart. The careful player, like the conservative policeman, will eliminate the possibility of these occurrences by searching his adversary and removing all dangerous weapons. In plain bridge parlance, this is the elimination play. And yesterday's play-a-problem was an excellent example. This was the hand:

WEST
♠—5,4,3
♥—8,7,6
♦—J,10,7,6

EAST
♠—K,8,7,6
♥—K,J,10,9

SOUTH (Dealer)
♠—Q,J,10

South dealt and bid a diamond. West passed. North bid two no-trumps. He could have bid three no-trumps, as he held sufficient strength and particularly since he held four small diamonds which, in conjunction with his partner's bid, showed him that he was positively sure of making up the diamond suit. However, since a two no-trump was a jump bid not to be confused with a forcing take-out (a jump shift bid), which is never made in no-trump, he has shown his partner considerable strength and has every reason to suppose his partner will not pass, but will keep the bidding open. East passed and South bid three no-trumps. West, North, and East passed.

East opened the ♥ J, which North took with the Q. North then led the ♦ 3 to dummy's Q. Dummy then led out the ♦ A and K. Next dummy led the ♠ Q, North finessing by playing the 2 from his own hand and East taking the trick with the ♠ K. East returned the ♥ 10, which North captured with the ♥ A. North then led the ♠ 9 to dummy's ♠ J, dummy leading back the ♠ 10, which North took with the ♠ A in his own hand.

After the first lead North saw a sure game. He had two tricks in spades, two in hearts, three in diamonds, and two tricks in clubs. The only chance of an extra trick was in clubs. Of course, North could have taken the club finesse, but this had a fifty-fifty chance of losing and by using the well known elimination play he could make this club trick a sure one. East had shown out of diamonds and, having discarded the ♠ 6 on the third diamond trick, North should now count him for no more spades. In other words, North had eliminated the diamonds and the spades from East's hand, so at trick nine North led the ♥ 2, which East took with the 9. East then took his good ♥ K, which left him with the ♣ Q-5-4, and, of course, nothing remained for him but to lead a club. East led the ♣ 4, North took with the J, and then proceeded to cash in his ♣ K and A for four odd, the game, and one extra trick.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as S. S, H. K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

Lenz Captures 5,405 Points Off Culbertson

New York, June 8.—[Special.]—Sidney H. Lenz and Commander Winfield Liggett Jr. staged an exciting comeback last night in the next to last session of the 150 rubber contract bridge match against Ely Culbertson and his partner. At the close of play they had cut the lead of their opponents to 8,770 points, gaining 5,405 points during the session.

The Lenz team won six of the seven rubbers played, but with only six rubbers remaining was faced with an almost hopeless task of wiping out the present Culbertson margin. In the fifth and sixth rubbers of last night's session the Culbertson pair did not score a point.

Although the run of cards definitely favored the Lenz team, Mr. Culbertson and his partner for the night, Howard Schenken, seemingly were unable to get together on many hands. They were set far more frequently than before and failed to get the most tricks out of their hands in defensive play.

Mr. Lenz and his partner were exultant, recalling that Mr. Culbertson had been leading by 20,220 points only four sessions before. Mr. Culbertson's only remark was that he "was completely silenced."

Mr. Culbertson made a slam on the first hand of the night although the contract was only four hearts despite adverse trump division.

The teams had completed 137 rubbers in which 804 hands were dealt prior to last night's play and the Culbertson team had been leading by 19,175 points. The progress of the match follows:

Rubber.
138—Seven hands, won by Lenz; Culbertson now plus 13,470.
139—Five hands, won by Lenz; Culbertson now plus 12,700.
140—Seven hands, won by Culbertson; Culbertson now plus 12,760.
141—Eight hands, won by Lenz; Culbertson now plus 11,855.
142—Three hands, won by Lenz; Culbertson now plus 10,713.
143—Two hands, won by Lenz; Culbertson now plus 9,745.
144—Seven hands, won by Lenz; Culbertson now plus 8,770.

Black Is Back in Style for Evening

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—For considerable time the Parisienne has abandoned her beloved black and has worn white and palest tones for evening. Now black is back again, reinstated in highest favor for the formal evening dress. The vogue for velvet had something to do with the return of this raven shade, for the new velvets are something too beautiful to resist and they are particularly lovely in the blackest black.

The Augustabernard dress in our sketch today is made of black Lyons velvet, and it is the favorite dress of some of the smartest women in Paris. This dress has the high waistline Paris prefers for evening, which is indicated by shirring at the sides of the fitted panel that begins at the square neckline and extends a brief way down the front.

This shirring is part of the bodice in front, but across the back becomes a twisted girdle that is several inches above the normal waistline. The height of this line makes the skirt look extraordinarily long, which is the ideal way for skirts to look this late winter.

In addition to looking super-long the skirt is fitted without a centimeter to spare to 'way below the hipline, from which point panels with rounded tops are set in to give width. They do not flare, for to flare a skirt is now decidedly unfashionable.

Around each arm, near the top, Augustabernard has placed wide bracelets made of three rows of red velvet roses, in varying shades.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

CATARRH

Head Colds—Bad Throat

This Important Discovery Opens Up Stuffed Nostrils in 3 Minutes—Lessens Buzzing and Ringing in Ears When Caused by Catarrh—Coughs Swiftly Controlled.

30 Days' Free Trial Says Any Walgreen Store

For 83 cents you can buy at any Walgreen Store a bottle of magic OPEX that lasts 7 weeks and brings speedy and blessed relief to all who suffer from colds, bad throat, coughs and stubborn catarrh.

Better still if you spray nostrils and throat with Opex night and morning you probably won't have a cough or cold or irritated throat this winter—that's how thoroughly Opex does its work of prevention.

Opex gets right to the seat of your nose and throat troubles—you know it—feel it—in 3 minutes you can bring out of the stuffed-up nasal passages every particle of unclean and annoying mucus.

When you spray Opex in one nostril you can see the soothing, healing vapor like smoke coming out the other—and it will come through—no matter how stuffed up they are (see top picture).

And if you draw in your breath (inhale) as you spray through nostrils this same healing vapor will go right to the bottom of the lungs—then up again—and be exhaled through the mouth. (See bottom picture.)

For irritated throat and coughs spray the throat direct—you'll like to spray Opex—its wholesome fragrance will delight you.

For stubborn Catarrh and to avoid coughs, colds, sore throat, spray with Opex at least every morning and night.

There is nothing harmful in Opex—which means that in severe acute cases you can spray as many times a day as you choose.

Opex is made just for that cold or bad Catarrhal condition that hangs on and hangs on—week after week—the more stubborn the catarrh the quicker gratifying relief comes. In our opinion there is nothing in the world so good for Catarrh as Opex.

Bear this in mind also for it will be joyful news to millions. After you spray Opex for two or three weeks there won't be any lump of mucus in your throat to hawk up every morning—what a blessing.

Opex is sold with the distinct understanding that if you are not satisfied at the end of 30 days your money will be gladly returned. If you haven't an atomizer get an Opex nebulizer (see picture), full size—nickel plated and will last for years—83c.

FIGHT UNION'S BAN ON PRIVATE FUNERAL CARS

Morticians Will Seek Writ in Court.

Members of the Chicago Funeral Directors' association met yesterday and decided to oppose the new rule of the chauffeurs' union that no privately owned automobiles are to be permitted to join any funeral procession. A committee of three, Frank J. Burke, William C. Walsh, and William Barr, was appointed with full power to act. An injunction is to be asked, it was said.

The law firm of Arnd, Gavin, Griffin & Hanley was retained to prepare the bill for an injunction, which is to be filed today, and which will ask that the chauffeurs' union be restrained from interfering in any way with funerals where the mourners decide to use their own cars in driving to a cemetery. Under present plans there will be a hearing on the petition Saturday.

"We are acting in the interest of the public," said J. A. Gavin, secretary of the Funeral Directors' association.

"Private individuals would be the only ones to feel the effects of the union decree," explained Attorney Richard I. Gavin. "The union might be able to enforce its demands on morticians to the detriment of the public, which is in no way involved in any dispute with the union. For that reason we think an injunction should be granted.

"Under the law a hearse must be used in conveying the body of a dead person to a cemetery. No private car may be used. The health laws also specify how long a body may be kept before burial. If the union could prevent burials by refusing to allow hearse drivers and funeral car drivers to function in funerals where private cars are in the cortége it would be the public that would suffer."

The union idea is to furnish additional employment by an edict that only regular funeral cars may be used in funerals, according to the secretary, William Kerrigan.

MRS. ELIZABETH COWAN, PAINTER, TAKEN BY DEATH

RADIO BODY ASKED TO STUDY EXTENT OF BROADCASTING ADS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Stating that there is "growing dissatisfaction" with the use of commercial radio for advertising purposes, Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.], chairman of the senate interstate commerce commission, today introduced a resolution asking the federal radio commission to make a detailed study of this practice and report to the senate. The resolution was laid on the table, but Mr. Couzens will seek to have it considered tomorrow.

The resolution asked the commission to ascertain what information is available on the "feasibility" of government ownership and operation of broadcasting facilities; to what extent the facilities of a "representative group" of broadcasting stations are used for commercial advertising, and to specify the wattage of the stations in question.

It asked further for information on what plans might be used to reduce, limit, control, and "perhaps to eliminate" commercial use, and what rules other countries had adopted.

Another question was "Whether it would be practicable and satisfactory to permit only the announcement of sponsorship of programs by persons or corporations?"

Information concerning investments and net income of representative broadcasting companies or stations is also desired.

It's Up to the Women

PROMPTED by an editorial in the Ladies' Home Journal—a national movement to help restore prosperity, through wise spending and the release of hoarded money, is sweeping the country.

Leading economists, governors, mayors, chambers of commerce, college presidents, are rallying to its support.

"The truest thrift is wise spending. There was never a time when such spending would bring greater return."
FRANCES L. SWAIN, President
American Home Economics Association

"For families with income today, however reduced, it is sound counsel to spend. And to spend for commodities that can be bought to advantage now."
BELLE SHERWIN, President
National League of Women Voters

"No one can ask people to spend what they haven't got. But we may ask people to spend what they have to the best advantage, and give employment to as many people as possible."
MRS. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

"An excellent program. You might well add: 'Don't be a fool.' The calamity howlers have lost their heads as well as their courage."
RICHARD S. MERIAM, Harvard Business School

"There are times to save, but there are also times to spend . . . Let us have a renaissance in every state, in every community and in every house in whose management we have a share."
MRS. JOHN F. SIPPEL, President
General Federation of Women's Clubs

"One of the many ways in which women could be helpful would be to foster home purchasing, because the ultimate decision to buy a home usually rests with women."
GELINE MACDONALD BOWMAN, President
National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs

"It is neither smart nor intelligent to hoard money when spending what one can afford to spend means work and food to other people."
MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

ELIZABETH MARABLE BRENNAN, President
International Federation of Catholic Alumnae

MRS. J. E. FRIEND, President
National Council of Jewish Women

"Hard times can't exist without Fear. Once stop being afraid and they are over."
KATHLEEN NORRIS

ELIZABETH ARDEN

"Let the woman begin: To spend intelligently for physical, mental and spiritual necessities and even luxuries; to spend enthusiastically."
LENA MADESIN PHILLIPS, President
National Council of Women

"Money will soon purchase less than it does now. Those who are hoarding money are going to have a great awakening."
SAMUEL CROWTHER

The pocketbook of the American woman is the barometer of American business . . . Join now in this great movement to bring the country back to prosperity. Get behind it in your community!

CHAMPIONS OF 21 CITIES BOX IN GOLDEN GLOVES

H-M-M-M! HORSE CLOSES AT 1 TO 3, THEN PAYS 10-1

Bookies Caught in Agua Caliente Coup.

Bookmakers in Chicago and several other cities were reported to have lost many thousands of dollars yesterday on the running of the first race at the Agua Caliente track in Mexico.

The killing was made on the 2 year old Linden Tree, owned by G. Drumheller, a far western turfman, and was made possible by the most glaring case of "padding the mutuel machines" ever attempted at winter race courses, where the practice has become quite common this winter.

Linden Tree, making the second start of his career, opened in the betting at 4 to 5 at the Agua Caliente track. At least that was the flash received by bookmakers in Chicago and in other middle western cities. The second reading showed that the odds against the colt were 1 to 2 and the final flash of the betting odds was 1 to 3, just as the race started.

When the pari-mutuel odds were hung out the price was $21.40 to win, $2.60 to place and $2.20 to show. By betting a few hundred dollars on another horse at the track where the play has been light throughout the winter, the manipulators drove the price up on Linden Tree to nearly 10 to 1 in the last seconds.

Pay on 1 to 3 Price.

Thousands of dollars had been scattered among handbook operators throughout the country, and according to the custom of paying off at pari-mutuel odds at Agua Caliente the bookmakers suffered an enormous loss. That is, those who paid off at the unnatural figures suffered such a loss.

Upon advice of a racing information service bookmakers last night decided that they would pay off at the odds of one to three, the last figures reported when the horses went to the post. Bookmakers in other cities, according to reports, were planning to do likewise.

In his first start at Agua Caliente Linden Tree had run second to Nuhat, an eastern colt which won in track record time. So it was only natural the 2 year old should rule at a short price in the company he faced in yesterday's race. With the attendance small and the betting play light, 1 to 2 or 1 to 3 seem to be the right sort of odds to be quoted against him.

The manipulators, who probably invested only a few hundred dollars at the track in driving the price up to nearly 10 to 1 on Linden Tree, could have wagered $5,000 away from the track and won nearly $50,000.

Small Bookies Hit Hard.

A checkup among Chicago bookmakers last night indicated that more than $5,000 had been bet on Linden Tree in Chicago. Similar amounts were bet in St. Louis, Cincinnati and in three or four eastern cities, according to reports.

Many of the small bookmakers in Chicago were ruined on the transactions. Some of them took $100 and $200 on the horse, thinking the most they could lose was $50 or $60. Instead, those that accepted $200 on the horse lost $1,940. A great majority of them could not have paid off, even if they had been willing.

A few years ago at the old Tia Juana track in Mexico a similar case of "mutuel padding" was manipulated. It was on the horse Rapid Transit. He was quoted at around 4 to 5 in the betting but in the mutuel payoff was at around 8 to 1. The bookmakers paid off on that occasion. But that was in the days when bookmakers had plenty of money.

Chicagoans who bet on Linden Tree in local handbooks yesterday were asked to come back today and they would be told whether the bets would be paid.

WINS RACE EASILY

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Linden Tree, the horse whose victory in the first race at Agua Caliente this afternoon resulted in heavy losses to bookmakers in New York and Chicago, won an apparently easy victory. His race was won in one-fifth second under the track record. Odds posted were 6 to 1 on the mutuel board before the race and 3 to 5 on the bookmakers' charts, these odds standing some time before the race, but not at the last minute.

In the absence of James N. Crofton, president of the racing club, Baron Long, vice president and the only executive of the club here, tonight said:

"We keep the mutuel machines open and anybody is welcome to bet in them. We do not dictate on which horse to bet. The race was truly won. It seems the opinion of bookmakers around the country that they should never lose. On the contrary, the bookmakers have to lose sometimes, too."

Fouls on Crowd Give Creighton 35-34 Victory

Columbia, Mo., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Two points scored on free throws at the expense of a booing crowd were enough to give Creighton university a 35 to 34 victory over Missouri here tonight.

FIRST OF THREE CHICAGO TRIALS TO OPEN FEB. 15

Intercity Bouts Set for March 28.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Golden Gloves are here again. On Feb. 15 and 16 the first of Chicago's three sectional qualifying tournaments in the annual amateur boxing classic will be held at the Ashland boulevard auditorium. On Thursday and Friday nights of that week, Feb. 18 and 19, the north side trials will be held at Loyola university gymnasium. The south side sectional tournament is scheduled for White City Feb. 22, 23 and 24.

From these qualifying tournaments will come Chicago's 48 boys, six in each of the eight weight divisions, who will face the winners from 20 cities in the Tournament of Champions at the Chicago Stadium Feb. 29, March 1 and 2. The semi-finals and finals of the Tournament of Champions on March 9 also will be held at the Stadium.

Inter-City Bouts March 28.

Chicago's Golden Gloves team will meet New York in the fifth inter-city bouts in Madison Square Garden on March 28.

Entries will not be accepted for the Chicago elimination trials until the last week in January, but hundreds of boys already are training for the tournaments. They are seeking to win places on the squad of 24 boys—eight champions, eight runners-up and eight alternates—which will defend the inter-city championship.

Newspapers in 20 cities of five central states will coöperate with THE TRIBUNE in the 1932 Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions.

Five Additional Cities.

Last season 15 cities held tournaments and sent their champions to the grand finals in Chicago. All of these cities again are represented and the newcomers to Golden Glove boxing not only increase the scope of the tournament, but will produce a squad more powerful than the 1931 group.

The newspapers which will send championship teams to Chicago for the Tournament of Champions Feb. 29, March 1 and 2 follow:

*Indicates newspapers entering teams for first time.

Golden Gloves have had a steady growth, due not only to active assistance from newspapers in the central states but also to public support. At the first intercity battle between New York and Chicago, held at the Chicago Coliseum in 1928, there were 9,000 who saw the rivals fight a draw.

One year later when the Chicago squad, again the product of Chicago elimination tournaments, went to New York 22,000 jammed Madison Square Garden to see Gotham win 11 bouts to five.

Decide to Widen Field.

Chicago's defeat that year proved it could not compete with New York unless it widened its field of entries, for New York had drawn its team from a field of nearly 5,000 boys.

So in 1930 a group of newspapers pioneered home town tournaments. They sent their champions to meet the Chicago boys and from this field came a squad of two fisted westerners which whipped New York at the Stadium, 10 bouts to 6. Twenty-three thousand, all that could get in, with extra seats jamming the aisles, saw those fights. It was a record throng for indoor boxing.

In 1931 the tournament of champions again was a success. Another capacity crowd saw the finals at the Stadium. The intercity bouts were scheduled for New York, but when the Metropolitan A. A. U. declined to permit employment of out of town judges, the intercity bouts were shifted to Chicago. Once again 23,000 attended the bouts and saw Chicago score the most decisive victory of the series, 13 bouts to 3.

Beat French Champions.

The climax of last year's Golden Gloves was the international bouts between the eight intercity champions and the champions of France. The American boys, six from the central states and two from New York, whipped France 5 to 3 while 40,000 looked on in Soldiers' field.

Golden Gloves in 1932 will be greater than ever. Five cities, Grand Rapids, Mich., Evansville and Logansport, Ind., and Joliet and Quincy, Ill., serve territory which previously had not been included. The Milwaukee tournament, sponsored by the Milwaukee bureau of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be held by the Milwaukee Eagles club. It will have a more comprehensive entry and will be known as the Wisconsin Golden Gloves tournament.

WOW, THOSE BOILERMAKERS!

Wake: Possibly it is merely a coincidence, but football coaches at four of the eight schools Purdue will meet next fall have resigned since the 1932 schedules were announced—Ingwersen at Iowa, Meehan at New York U., Crisler at Minnesota, and Thistlethwaite at Wisconsin. We're waiting to hear from Bo McMillan of Kansas Aggies, Stagg at Chicago, Hayes at Indiana, and Hanley at Northwestern.

THE SUN GOES DOWN—THE SUN COMES UP.

The sad Old Year now has passed.
Look to the Sun, O Doubter,
As all of the Faithful do.
The little grim encounters
With Fate were discipline.
Now shall we meet a stronger—
With more of a chance to win.

Out of the East a signal,
A black plume to the West.
O welcome fair young Promise,
We have sped the Parting Guest.
Bury your dingy burdens,
Memories, too, forget.
There's only time for living,
Death is a canceled debt.

Time is a grinning jester,
Yesterday was a fluke.
Waste not a word on shadows
Light in the East uprises,
Longer the song of day.
Time is a jolly joker—

Paying the War Debt.

Excerpt from the letter of a daughter spending a year in Paris:

"Four of us were in a popular little Paris restaurant. The two French boys, our escorts, spoke English and wished to practice it, so we were gossiping away. Finally the waiter brought the dinner check. One of the boys said in French: 'There's a mistake here.' At once the waiter was all apologies. He returned presently with a revised check from which 1,500 francs, or about $60 in American money, had been deducted, profusely explaining he had heard us speaking English and thought we were all Americans."

Fight Decisions

YES, SCHMELING DOES TAKE NICE PICTURES, BUT—

How About a Prize Fight or Two?

BY WESTBROCK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 7.—Even the most gullible of the prize fight customers must be a little bored by now with the pho'ographs of Max Schmeling coming down the gangplank, Max Schmeling unpacking thirty suits of clothes, Max Schmeling cracking a soft boiled egg for breakfast in a hotel suite, Max Schmeling splitting a property log with a property ax, Max Schmeling petting a yard of dachshund, Max Schmeling in every conceivable pose except in a ring fighting Jack Sharkey.

This prize fighter won a political appointment as heavyweight champion of the world two years ago and since then his record has been even more fragrant of no good promises and evasions than the records of heavyweight champions usually are.

Of Course He Is Good.

It is quite true that he is a good prize fighter and quite likely that if he were to fight Sharkey he would beat him, but he must have little confidence in himself, because Sharkey is the one prize fighter whom he most prefers not to fight.

It is no easy matter to work up a sympathetic indignation on Sharkey's behalf, and I am sure very few people will find it worth the effort, because he has been an in-an-outer himself and his own promises have been no better than Schmeling's, recalling the time his managers solemnly assured the plump and credulous Mique Malloy of Chicago that they would take a match with Carnera in Chicago and changed their minds before sunup.

There is only the vaguest and most ironic suggestion of sport in the prize fight business at best, but these two parties have done things which try the hardy tolerance of the most forgiving and least exacting customers of all, the prize fight trade.

Sharkey is lazy and disinclined to hustle this business with Schmeling for himself, and in that case the patrons will hardly warm to the task of promoting the opportunity for him.

It Will Be Just Dandy.

So if they don't want to fight one another that ought to be just dandy with everybody, including apparently Sharkey himself. Possibly they are both afraid, Schmeling because Sharkey gave him a furious beating in their last fight, and Sharkey because his hardest punches couldn't put Schmeling down until he hooked one off the fairway. Even then, Schmeling, not quite certain that he had been officially fouled, soon got up and would have gone plodding along in the next round if his manager hadn't assured him that he was grievously hurt and unable to continue.

If ever a prize fighter claiming to hold a heavyweight championship of the world conducted himself with less credit to himself than Schmeling it must have been the egregious Jess Willard, who accepted battle just once and then only for a ten-round, no-decision bout with a man fifty pounds lighter than himself in the four year interval between the time he won the title under suspicious circumstances and the day when he finally surrendered it while sitting in his corner.

Where Does Garden Come In?

What puzzles me in the current dealings is the Madison Square Garden corporation's willingness to go on dealing with Schmeling, even to the extent of promoting a Florida fight for him, on which the firm is bound to show a loss, considering how unreliable Schmeling has been up to now. He promised to fight Sharkey again in the fall of 1930, the year he won such fragment of the championship as he now possesses, and did not keep his word.

Last summer the Garden firm incurred a loss promoting a business opportunity for Schmeling in Cleveland with the understanding that he would fight Primo Carnera in the fall and give them a chance to win back some of their losing. But soon after the Garden firm had done him this kind favor Schmeling went home to

OL' RUBY ROB

BY FRENCH LANE.

Like the beaten champions of earlier years and like the ex-titleholders since his reign, Old Bob thought his knockout by Jim Jeffries at Coney Island on June 9, 1899, was just an accident and didn't mean anything.

He decided he would rest a few months, get into shape again, knock down some weak beaks, then coax Jeffries into the ring and bowl him over.

The attempted trip over the comeback trail was inevitable. It had been ever thus since the first champion was sent sprawling and helpless to the bottom of a ring.

Houseman Helps Old Bob Grow Bold.

For two months after Jeffries whipped him, and took the championship away from him, Fitzsimmons dropped completely out of sight. He was away from his usual haunts. He didn't appear at his more favored play houses. Only a few close friends knew his whereabouts and through one of them Lou Houseman, the Tattersall's matchmaker, located him.

In these two idle months Fitzsimmons had argued himself into believing he could knock Jeffries into a thousand pieces if he could ever get him into the ring again.

Once in Bob's presence Houseman added new sparks to the blazing comeback fire. When their conference ended Houseman had Old Bob in a thoroughly belligerent mood and Bob had agreed to start out over the comeback trail at Tattersall's.

Fitzsimmons would have been a powerful box office attraction. But Houseman wanted something even bigger for Tattersall's although the fights there were limited to six rounds.

He began a search for an opponent for Fitzsimmons and discovered that over in England Jim Thorne, a heavyweight, was creating great commotion. He was knocking out everybody he met and doing it in remarkably fast time.

Houseman sent for the English heavyweight and wound up the negotiations by signing Thorne for a fight with Fitzsimmons at Tattersall's. It was to be Fitzsimmons' first fight since Jeffries had knocked him out. It took place on the night of Oct. 28, 1899.

Top Hats, Hard Shirts Make Ringside Debut.

The boys from the "yards" and from "back o' the yards," the rough and ready young bucks from all parts of Chicago who had become regulars at Tattersall's, discovered right away when they went to buy tickets that there was something different about this fight.

The Fitzsimmons comeback and the international flavor of the brawl caught the interest of the upper class. Houseman, quick to sense it, had placed most of the seats in the house in the high priced section.

Top hats, boiled shirts and swallow tails were everywhere in the crowd. This was the first time our best Chicago people had deigned to become spectators at a prizefight. Willing to pay the price, they occupied most of the seats. There was room

School Hired Him to Play, Star Charges

Eugene, Ore., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A declaration that he was hired by Willamette university of Salem, Ore., to play football, was made today by Harold McKenzie in his answer to a suit in which Sigma Tau, Willamette fraternity, sought to collect for McKenzie's board and lodging.

McKenzie, a guard on the 1926 and 1927 team, declared the university agreed to grant a passing degree in hygiene, pay his tuition and pay him $75 in cash and $10 a month during the school year. Room and board also were to be furnished, he asserted.

McKenzie's answer declares arrangements were made by the university with the fraternity to give him board and lodging during the year, with the university reimbursing the fraternity.

The suit against McKenzie asked for $143.76 in addition to interest at 6 per cent from Oct. 31, 1928.

SCHOOL DENIES CHARGE.

Salem, Ore., Jan. 7.—(AP)—An allegation by Harold McKenzie today that Willamette university had contracted to pay him for playing on its 1927 football team, was denied by Leslie Sparks, Willamette graduate manager.

Sparks said that while the university does not pay students to attend the school it sometimes assists them in obtaining work so they may attend.

KARTHEISER AND DE VITO VICTORS IN PIN LEAGUE

Low scores marked the opening of the all-star individual bowling league to determine Chicago's challenger for the world's match game bowling championship held by Joe Falcaro of New York. Four of the twelve bowlers entered in the competition rolled on the Randolph alleys last night and turned in only ten 200 games in 38.

Frank Kartheiser and Dominick De Vito were the victors in the opening round, both by small margin. Kartheiser, who rolled only one 200 game, won from Eddie Krems by 15 pins, 1,445 to 1,430. Krems' high game was his third, a 215 count, while his lowest was 144.

De Vito had the best games of the night in his 2,109 to 2,096 triumph over Ernie Schanz. De Vito started slowly, scoring 144 in his first game, but turned in five 200 counts.

March 14 Is Date for N. Y. Final Bouts

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 7.—On Monday evening, March 14, the finals of the sixth annual Golden Gloves amateur boxing tourney of the New York Daily News A. A. will take place in Madison Square Garden. The entries are open tomorrow with this announcement. Two weeks later, in the same arena, the 1932 Golden Gloves team will meet the squad from Chicago in the fifth annual Golden Gloves intercity matches.

WILLIAM F. KENNEY.

The guarantee that these matches will take place in New York this year, as advertised, lies in the sanction granted the Daily News A. A. by the registration committee of the metropolitan association of the A. A. U., permitting the use of neutral officials for the intercity matches to be selected from cities outside of New York by William F. Kenney, chairman of the boxing committee of the National Amateur Athletic association, and approved by the New York state athletic commission.

The preliminary rounds will begin Wednesday night, Feb. 10, and continue nightly except Sunday until Saturday, March 5. The shows will be distributed to all neighborhoods of the town. The intersectional semi-finals will be held Monday, March 7.

Immediately following the finals, the Golden Gloves intercity squad will be organized and outfitted in the familiar blue and gold of New York. They will be fed, trained and completely outfitted and then sent into action against the Chicago fighters March 28. Here another magnificent prize will be awarded the intercity champions.

CROWDS AT GRAND RAPIDS

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Western Michigan's Golden Gloves boxing tournament, from which eight boys will be chosen to represent this part of the state in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Golden Gloves tournament, entered its second night with competition in six weight classes. The bouts reduced the number of contestants to eight in all classes. Tomorow night the quarter-finals will be held. The semi-finals and finals will take place Jan. 15.

Outstanding among the contestants in the second round was Tony Dauksza of Grand Rapids, captain of the Union High state championship football team. Dauksza is a middleweight. Russell Kampenga of Muskegon, captain of the Muskegon football team this season, was entered in the welterweight class.

Bouts Draw Big Crowds.

CLEVELAND BUYS YEAR'S OPTION ON TOLEDO CLUB

Cleveland, O., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland American league club, today announced the purchase of the Toledo baseball club of the American association. The sale is subject to approval of the Toledo Common Pleas court.

In announcing the deal Bradley said the Indians took an option on the Toledo franchise and property for one year. The Indians, he said, have the privilege of purchasing the club, which has been in receivership, outright at the end of the year.

It is the second time the Indians have taken over the Toledo franchise. In 1914, when Charles Somers was president of the Cleveland club, the Mudhens' franchise was moved to Cleveland, where all of Toledo's home games were played.

CHANCELLOR IS STRETCH VICTOR OVER DEEMSTER

Miami, Fla., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—A blanket finish in the Dade county purse thrilled spectators at Tropical Park today as Apprentice Jockey Hank Mills brought J. V. Stewart's Chancellor home to a nose victory over M. S. Ingleright's Gold Mint. Deemster was a nose in back of Gold Mint to take the show.

Chancellor's victory was largely due to the skillful stretch drive by Mills. The 7 year old gelding was slow to start and spent the early part of the race far back. It was only in the last quarter mile that he started to move up to the front, and Mills picked his openings well through the stretch to finish first.

Deemster Sets Pace.

Deemster made the pace for the greater part of the mile. He opened a wide lead at the head of the stretch, but tired badly and proved easy prey for Chancellor. Gold Mint was well up for the entire distance and wore down the faltering Deemster.

Deemster was favored in the betting, with Chancellor third choice. The latter paid $7 to win, $4.40 to place, and $2.60 to show. Gold Mint was an outsider, paying $12.60 for place.

The victory astride Chancellor completed a double for Mills, who had scored with Spanfair in the third race, a six furlong affair for 3 year olds. V. Arthur also scored a double by riding the winners of the sixth and seventh races.

Spanfair Wins by Nose.

Spanfair's victory was also by the margin of a nose, with Chief's Camille second, length and a half in front of Elizabeth Fox. The winner, a gelding from the stable of Mrs. Grace Denny, was the best of the field. He started slowly and was rated off the pace for the first half mile. Mills made his bid at the head of the stretch and Spanfair responded gamely to nose out Chief's Camille.

J. C. Fletcher's 6 year old gelding, Fair Bill, won his third straight purse of the meeting when he scored an easy six length victory in the sixth race. E. B. McAtte's Scarlet Brigade was second, a length and a half in front of Tantalizing.

Fair Bill's time was 1:39, two seconds better than that of the winner of the feature race. He was favored in the betting, returning $6.40, $3.90, and $2.40 in the mutuels.

SMITTY—MISTAKEN IDENTITY

SILVER SKATES MAGNET SHOWS 100 MILE PULL

Silver Skates have a wide appeal. Not only have hundreds of Chicago boys and girls already entered the Sixteenth Silver Skates Derbies which will be held Jan. 23 and 24 at Garfield park, but many entries have come in from towns and cities more than 100 miles away.

Seven pairs of Silver Skates will be awarded by THE TRIBUNE in the seven age classifications. These are the highest skating honors of the meet, but for those boys and girls who finish second and third there are other skates. Fourth and fifth prizes in each division are silver and bronze medals.

From Milwaukee, Grand Rapids.

Contestants have sent in entry blanks from Huntington, Ind.; Grand Rapids, Mich.; Milwaukee, Wis., and a score of northern Illinois cities. From these localities will come many who will press the best of the Chicago entrants for the Silver Skates.

Those who have won championships cannot compete again in the same age division, although they may move up to the next higher age class. Each contestant is limited to one class.

The Champions—Who and When.

1917—Art Staff.
1918—Sigurd Larsen.
1919—Charley Fisher.
1920—Roy McWhirter.
1921—William Steinmetz.
1922—Jack Stowell.
1923—Harry Kaskey.
1924—Francis Allen.
1925—Oneil Farrell.
1926—Eddie Reed

UZCUDUN IS DUE TOMORROW FOR LEVINSKY BOUT

Picks Bain as Spar Boy; King Boxes On.

Paulino Uzcudun, Spanish heavyweight, will arrive tomorrow to finish training for his ten round bout with King Levinsky at Chicago Stadium next Friday.

He will reach Chicago with Abie Bain, Newark, N. J., light heavyweight, who meets Dave Maier in a supporting number. Bain has been sparring with Uzcudun at Madame Bey's training camp of Summit, N. J., and will continue to do so at the Arcade gymnasium starting Sunday. Levinsky has esfablished himself at Trafton's loop gymnasium, formerly Brown's.

The card was completed yesterday with the signing of Tony Cancela, Tampa, Fla., 175 pound boxer, and Yale Okun of New York to meet in an eight round bout. Other supporting matches are light heavyweight championship tournament bouts. They are Baxter Calmes vs. Bob Olin, Charley Belanger vs. Georgie Nichols and the Bain-Maier match. All are at eight rounds.

When Henry Firpo, Louisville, Ky., middleweight, and Willie Oster of Boston meet in the ten round windup at White City Monday it will be boxer vs. puncher. Firpo is the boxer with a record of 28 victories in his last 30 starts. On the other hand, Oster is a swinger. He has knocked out such boxers as Tait Littman, Edgar Norman and Buck Easterling. Both fighters are training here. Five other bouts complete the bill.

Al Friedman, Philadelphia heavyweight, and Jack Roper of New Orleans, meet tonight in the windup of the boxing show at the Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue. The match has been made at ten rounds.

Billy Gladstone, Ravenswood lightweight, and Jackie Davis, Springfield, Ill., fight in the semi-final contest. Both are former amateur champions. Another six round match will bring together Sammy Levine and Bobby Allen.

Freddy Miller, Cincinnati, O., junior lightweight star, and Tony Pernice of Chicago, meet tonight in the main event of the amateur card at Merry Garden arena, Sheffield and Belmont avenues. Walter Jerz, Lawndale middleweight, will try for his tenth knockout in 12 starts when he faces Fred Anderson in the semi-final match. Six other matches round out the card.

Paul Steger, amateur bantamweight boxer, will try for his sixth consecutive victory when he meets Al Stillo at the Northwest Lions club tonight. There are seven other bouts on the card.

Thorne pushed his way through the crowded aisles and entered the ring. There he stood alone for five minutes. Fitzsimmons was in his dressing room in Tattersall's basement pacing from one wall to another.

Was he nervous? Or had the terrific whipping he had suffered at the hands of Jeffries at Coney Island four months earlier taken the heart of the gamest fighter of all time? Martin Julian, his manager, did not know. He was afraid the once devil may care Fitz was scared.

"Yellow Dog" Shot Arouses Old Bob.

Fitzsimmons by this time had shaken off his nervousness. Once again he was the same old champion who had whipped Corbett at Carson City, the same bald man, thin legged and lanky with great depth of chest and mighty shoulders who, until he met the youthful Jeffries, was the wonder of the fistic universe.

They shook hands and came out fighting. Many in the crowd who thought Thorne could win in the short six round encounter shouted gleefully when he popped lefts into Old Bob's face and avoided Fitzsimmons' punches. But this lasted for only about 15 seconds.

Fitzsimmons resorted to his famous shift. He cracked the Englishman with a left to the chin, a punch that was as vicious as any fighter ever delivered. Down went Thorne for the full count. Fitzsimmons had knocked him out in 29 seconds, the quickest knockout on record in Chicago.

But Jeffries Fight Was Another Story.

The crowd roared. Chicago's best people forgot their high toppers, their stiff shirts and their high collars to give the former champion a mighty ovation. "Bring on Jeffries," they shouted.

Old Bob was on his way down the comeback trail. There was no doubt about that. But he never got to the end of the trail. He pushed along bravely until July 25, 1902, when he encountered Jeffries again, this time at San Francisco. There, near the Golden Gate, he was counted out in the eighth round.

Germany and there discovered that he had a very serious case of black eye which would make it impossible to keep the agreement.

Now, a prize fighter cannot make money without the assistance of a promoter and if the Garden firm were to ignore Schmeling and go plugging along, promoting many small fights for small profits in the subchampionship ranks of the business, even those profits would look much better on the books than a loss on a more pretentious promotion involving the heavyweight champion.

In this case Schmeling would have only one other promoter to turn to, the Chicago Stadium corporation, and this firm has consistently declined the honor of promoting famous fights for negative financial scores and would drive a very practical bargain with him.

It's Not So Good at Miami.

The reports from Miami, where the Garden maintains an expensive branch store, established in the boom days, suggest that if Schmeling fights Mickey Walker there the gross receipts will not reach $100,000.

Even at Agua Caliente, the most successful man trap ever established on this continent, there has been a sharp downward revision. Henceforth first prize in a big stake race will be a bale of hay or a mess of carrots. In the casinos the roulette dealers are selling nickel chips, and the slot machine, which once absorbed silver dollars on a pay off basis of one to fifty, are now equipped with penny slots.

Schmeling always requires guarantees from the promoters, but if I were a promoter dealing with him, on the basis of past performances, I wouldn't take his word for the time of day without a bond. He might get another black eye.

GIRLS HOLD FIRST OLYMPIC SWIM TESTS TONIGHT

The first of the series of Olympic development tests for girl swimmers of all ages in the Chicago metropolitan area, under the auspices of the Illinois Women's Athletic club, will be held tonight at the club pool.

This meet is open to all girls who register with the A. A. U. and consists of tryouts in the 100 meter free style, 400 meter free style, 100 meter back stroke, 200 meter breast stroke, and low board diving.

15 Teams Start Stagg Prep Swim Tourney Today

Fifteen teams will start in the preliminaries of the University of Chicago's annual prep swimming meet at Bartlett gymnasium this afternoon. Morton High of Cicero, winner of the Stagg basketball tourney last week, got its entry in under the deadline, as did Parker, Harrison, and Evanston.

Preliminaries in the diving event will begin at 4 o'clock today, with trials in the 220 scheduled for 5 o'clock. The remainder of the events will begin at 7:30 o'clock and the finals will be run off beginning at 2:30 tomorrow.

Four of the fastest free style men in the Chicago region—Diamond and Hamrin of Senn, Hickey of Tilden, and Tischler of Schurz—will match strokes in an effort to better the remarkable times of :19 in the 40 yard event and :54.2 in the 100, set by Art Highland of Schurz in 1930. The latter mark is a national record. Diamond has approached this figure, and may crack it under competition.

Favorites in the meet are Maine Township, winner last year, and Senn and Schurz, leaders in the city league race. The order may be upset, however, by the number of places won by other entries.

Previous entries in the meet were Hyde Park, Deerfield-Shields, Maine Township, Lane, Austin, Senn, Schurz, Roosevelt, Fenger, Englewood, and Tilden. Englewood, Tilden, and Evanston are considered outside possibilities to win the meet, which is now the biggest interscholastic swim in the country.

Quail Cover Missing on Best Farms

BY BOB BECKER.

What can the owner of a country estate or a prairie farmer whose land is in the slick and clean agriculture class do to provide permanent cover for quail during the winter months?

The recent Wisconsin quail investigation answers with the warning that hundreds of prairie farms in the Mississippi valley are losing the valuable Bob Whites because woodlots are overgrazed and every bit of cover is wiped out by slick and clean farming methods.

Generally speaking, the problem is one of giving natural "volunteer" cover a chance rather than the establishment of new vegetation through plantings. Every year sees a big waste of excellent cover through burning and cutting and through the running of live stock in woods unprofitable as pasturage in the first place.

However, the landlord can provide quail cover without interfering with agriculture. For example, here is an ideal patch: blackberry canes, hawthorns, and wild plums, all bound together with wild grapevines and woodbine in tangled strips at the edges of fields, in hedges along fences, and at the corners of woodlots and around small eroded gullies. Vegetation of this type gives quail the thickets and also the food which they need.

St. Thomas to Meet De Paul Five Tonight

De Paul university's fourth basketball victory of the season will be at stake tonight when the Blue Demons battle St. Thomas of St. Paul, Minn., at the De Paul gym. De Paul will be facing its first zone defense of the year. All three of the Blue Demon victories over Southern California, St. Viator, and Centenary were scored against man for man defenses. Carleton, the only team which has beaten De Paul, also used this style.

Weston will draw the starting assignment at center tonight and Barskis probably will start the second half. Mike Rondinella and Coan will be at the forwards, while Laritus and Capt. Joe O'Connor will continue at the guards.

CRANE HEAVIES BEAT McKINLEY IN OPENER, 25-18

The McKinley squad scored all its points in the second half, Crane holding a 15 to 0 lead at the end of the first half. Bob Gruenig was the high point scorer for the victors, collecting two baskets and three free throws.

Another west section heavyweight team, Marshall, with Pecky Feingold, star of the title winning lightweight squad last year, in the lineup, opened its season by defeating Harrison, 31 to 14, on the Harrison court.

Led by Feingold and Sid Rosenthal, Marshall piled up a 21 to 8 advantage at half time. Feingold scored four baskets in the contest, while Rosenthal collected two baskets and eight penalty shots.

The opening game in the south section was won by the Parker lightweights, who defeated Bowen, 18 to 13, on the latter's floor. Stormer and Hansen contributed Bowen's only points in the first half, scoring on free throws, and Parker led at the half, 8 to 2.

MAX GOLDBERG GETS TITLE TO THE CLAREMONT

Court Denies Receiver for "333" Building.

BY AL CHASE.

Max Goldberg, a director in the Terminal National bank, owner of the Illinois Securities company and a large stockholder in the Central Manufacturing District bank, yesterday secured title by master in chancery deed from Jack Rabinovitz and others to the Claremont building, at the southwest corner of Marquette road and Claremont avenue. Mr. Goldberg held a second mortgage against the property of $44,000.

EDWARD P. McKENNA. [Lewis-Smith Photo.]

According to Michael J. Thomas, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee and an official of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, this second mortgage foreclosure will not affect the status of the first mortgage bondholders. He states that a bill is now pending and that the committee will go to decree with the first mortgage foreclosure. The property will then be bid in for the first mortgage bondholders, 96 per cent of whom already have deposited their securities with the Central Republic Bank and Trust company.

Erected in 1927.

The Claremont building, occupying a 125x125 site, was erected in 1927, being financed through a $175,000 first mortgage bond issue underwritten by the Standard Trust and Savings bank, now a part of the Central Republic bank. It contains six stores and forty-nine apartments.

The interest defaulted on Sept. 15, 1930. The Central Republic Bank and Trust company was appointed receiver. The bondholders' protective committee is headed by Edward P. McKenna, Board of Trade man; Frank J. Jacobson, attorney, and Mr. Thomas, who is secretary. As soon as title is secured by the committee for the bondholders the reorganization will be carried out, Mr. Thomas states.

Declaring that the action of David Cohen, owner of a $500 bond, seeking a foreclosure of the first mortgage on the 333 North Michigan Avenue building, was premature, Superior Court Judge William J. Lindsay yesterday refused to appoint a receiver. Mr. Cohen, when he instituted foreclosure proceedings, alleged that the building corporation, which owns the fee and building, had failed to make a principal payment of $51,500 and also defaulted on the interest payment on Jan. 1.

Judge Lindsay ruled that the corporation had thirty days grace after the defaulting date and also held that the bondholder had failed to make a demand on the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, trustee under the first mortgage. Early this week an involuntary bankruptcy petition was filed against the corporation in the federal courts.

NEW YORK PRODUCE EXCHANGE STOCKS

Draws on Surplus for Dividends.

BY O. A. MATHER.

As the result of a slack demand for credit and low interest rates last year the Chicago federal reserve bank, for the second consecutive year, failed to earn its dividends and resorted to surplus to pay returns to the member banks, which own its stock. And for the second consecutive year, also because of low earnings, the bank was not required to pay anything into the United States treasury as a franchise tax.

Net earnings for 1931 were only $609,894, after depreciation charges but before setting aside a reserve of $964,743 for depreciation on United States bonds. Dividends totaling $1,170,632 were paid. The net result was that the bank's surplus was reduced by $1,525,481. However, total surplus on Jan. 1 stood at $38,411,010, which was more than double the $18,011,400 paid in capital stock. In 1930 net earnings were $1,054,328, dividends totaled $1,211,418 and surplus declined $157,090.

No Unusual Strain.

The banking system of the United States accomplished the year-end settlement period, which includes payment of interest, dividends, etc., without any unusual strain. Promptly with the passing of New Year's day the member banks began returning the large sums borrowed from the reserve banks to meet the expanded year-end credit demand.

Thus, the member banks reduced their loans from the reserve banks by $205,917,000 and the total is back to $818,216,000. The reserve banks also let additional credit in the form of bankers' acceptances run off, this item showing a decrease of $51,669,000, and they also disposed of $37,283,000 in government securities.

More Money in Circulation.

The only adverse factor in the weekly report issued by the reserve board last night was another increase in money in circulation. However, an increase of $37,922,000 in federal reserve note circulation was not regarded as alarming, as the banks usually experience considerable withdrawals of savings deposits immediately following the crediting of interest at the year-end. Depositors in need of funds wait until the interest is paid, if possible, bankers explained.

Gold reserves declined $2,012,000 in the last week, but they still stand at $2,985,552,000, which exceeds the $2,651,026,000 of reserve notes in circulation. Deposits at the reserve banks dropped $310,690,000. Total reserves, however, increased $4,164,000 and the ratio of reserves to liabilities rose to 65.5 per cent, compared with 61.9 per cent last week.

The fact that the movement of gold to and from the United States has become fairly well stabilized is indicated in the weekly report of the New York federal reserve bank covering gold transactions. In the last week exports of gold totaled $5,688,000 and $1,689,000 was earmarked for foreign account. About half of the gold exported went to Belgium. On the other hand, gold imports totaled $5,415,000, most of which came from Argentina. The final result was a net loss of only $1,962,000 in our gold stock. Small gold imports were received yesterday.

BROKERS' LOANS DROP

The report on loans to brokers by the New York reserve member banks revealed another new low record. However, the figures do not reflect the advance in the stock market on Wednesday and yesterday. The total of such loans on Wednesday was down to $568,000,000, marking a decline of $23,000,000 for the week and also a decrease of $1,311,000,000 from a year ago, when the total was $1,879,000,000.

The return flow of money from interior banks to the New York call money market resulted yesterday in the call loan rate receding from 3 to 2½ per cent. During the week the interior banks increased their loans by $15,000,000 and nonbanking lenders furnished an additional $1,000,000. On the other hand, the New York banks reduced their own loans by $39,000,000.

The New York Federal Reserve bank yesterday made no change in its 3½ per cent discount rate.

Explains Reorganization Plan of Zerozone Corp.

All general creditors of the Zerozone corporation, which is being reorganized under a decree by Judge Charles E. Woodward of the United States Circuit court, are permitted to accept preferred stock in a new company, according to Attorney Max H. Marine, 111 West Washington street. This preferred stock, he said, is given in lieu of a cash settlement and is not redeemable, nor are any dividends to be paid until Dec. 31, 1933, and from then on, providing that operating profits are shown. Mr. Marine issued his statement to clear up the impression that creditors would receive full payment of their claims in cash. Those who wish cash at the present time, he said, are offered 5 per cent of their respective claims for a full release and settlement.

December Shipments of Webb Co. Best in 3 Years

A three year monthly record of shipments was broken in December by the Thomas J. Webb Coffee company, Carl M. Zimmerman, secretary, announced yesterday. He also stated that the greatest amount of coffee ever sold by the company in the week between the holidays reached a new peak from this Dec. 25 and Jan. 1. The bulk of these shipments went to the midwest states surrounding the Chicago trade area. December shipments were 10 per cent above those of November.

E. F. Swift Now Heads Packing Firm Board

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Edward F. Swift was elected chairman of the board of Swift & Co. yesterday to suceed his brother, Louis F. Swift, whose retirement was announced immediately following the annual meeting of stockholders.

EDWARD F. SWIFT.

The retiring chairman, who recently observed his seventieth birthday, has completed more than 55 years in the packing business. Mr. Swift will spend most of his time in California, but will continue to serve as a director of the big packing firm. Edward F. Swift, who succeeds to the chairmanship, has been vice chairman of the board.

Add Two New Members.

Stockholders of the company at their forty-seventh annual meeting yesterday voted to increase the board of directors from nine to eleven members. Two veteran officials were chosen to fill the new positions. The new members are William B. Traylor, vice president, who has completed 30 years of service with the firm, and John Holmes, vice president, who has been associated with the company for 25 years.

President G. F. Swift told stockholders yesterday that the general price level shows signs of stiffening which, he said, is one of the prime requisites for an improvement in business. He explained that the company had been forced to take large inventory losses on its working stocks last year in the general recession of prices. This was offset by the sale of certain capital assets which, he stated, included the disposition of all the company's tank and refrigerator cars.

Feature of 1931 Business.

"Continuity of operations was one of the outstanding features of the company's business during 1931," he declared. "We have not had to slow down for lack of live stock. Our volume of production is determined almost entirely by the output of live stock producers, not by the purchasing power of consumers."

Announcement was made at the offices of Middle West Utilities company yesterday that Martin J. Insull, president, is absent on a vacation because of his health. During his absence, the announcement stated, the affairs of the concern are being administered by Samuel Insull, chairman of the company, and Samuel Insull Jr., vice chairman and head of the executive committee.

It is understood that the Middle West president has been at his Indiana farm since the first of the year. Associates expect that he will return to active duties in a few weeks.

CHICAGO MARKET STEADY

Stocks on the Chicago exchange extended their previous day's gains yesterday in moderately active trading session. Leading stocks moved higher in the early trading in sympathy with the trend in the other security markets and in commodities, but reacted toward the close. Net price changes were nominal. Swift & Co. was steady on light trade. Utility stocks were slightly higher, with Commonwealth Edison moving up to 115½.

Standard of Ind. Raises Prices to Meet R. R. Rates

To cover increased freight rates, the Standard Oil Company of Indiana announced yesterday that its prices on gasoline, naphtha and kerosene have increased a tenth of a cent a gallon except in the Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis metropolitan areas. Freight rates were increased Jan. 4.

FAIR DECLARES PFD. DIVIDEND; OMITS COMMON

Directors of the Fair, loop department store, yesterday voted to omit the quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common stock which is due at this time. The regular quarterly disbursement of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock was authorized by the board. The payment on preferred will be made Feb. 1 to stockholders of record Jan. 20.

D. F. Kelly, president and general manager of the Fair, said that directors decided for the present to conserve dividends on the common stock because of the prevailing business conditions.

Directors of the Twenty Wacker Drive Building corporation voted to defer dividends on the $6 cumulative preferred stock until further notice. A regular quarterly payment of $1.50 would have been due Jan. 15. A desire to conserve cash resources was the reason given for the directors' action.

Earnings on the building during 1931 were sufficient to pay the $600,000 annual dividend requirements on the preferred, in addition to covering bonds and other interest charges, taxes, and expenses. At the end of this year, however, the company will make its first payment of $300,000 toward the retirement of its $10,000,000 first mortgage loan. This fact, it is believed, influenced the decision of the directors.

The first mortgage loan requires annual interest payments of $500,000, and in addition the corporation has a substantial amount of interest to pay on its floating debt.

It is understood that as of Jan. 1, 1932, approximately 75 per cent of the office space was rented at levels only slightly under prices in effect when the building was opened.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 7.—Walter P. Chrysler, chairman of Chrysler corporation, announces that final figures covering shipments of Chrysler built cars for the full year 1931 show that notwithstanding general business conditions Chrysler corporation shipped more cars in 1931 than it did in 1930.

Not only shipments of the corporation as a whole, but shipments of each one of the divisions—Chrysler, Dodge, De Soto, and Plymouth—exceeded the estimated average for the industry as a whole.

The greatest gain in shipments was registered by Plymouth, which amounted to 152 per cent of 1930 shipments, each month in the last quarter showing a progressive increase over the last quarter.

RAILROAD LIENS LEAD ADVANCE IN BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The bond market climbed to higher levels today, with the rails leading the rest of the list by several lengths. Although thinness marked the trading, all classes of securities took part in the ascent.

Transportaion liens displayed buoyancy from the start of the session, and although there was apparently some profit taking they ended the day with gains of from 1 to 8 points. Baltimore and Ohio bonds were the spectacular performers, the refunding 6s jumping 8 points on few sales.

Bonds of other roads adding from one to five points to their prices included those of Atchison, Boston and Maine, Canadian National, Central Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, Burlington, Great Western, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, Rock Island, Denver and Rio Grande, Erie, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, New Haven, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Southern, Union Pacific, and the Wabash.

Foreign bonds were strong, heaviest trading being in the German 7s and 5½s. The latter gained 2⅛ points, while the 7s lost a fraction, after being up around 4 points.

Santa Fe Orders Cooling Apparatus for Diners

Santa Fé railroad has placed an initial order for ten of the most advanced type of steam operated cooling systems to be installed on its transcontinental dining cars, it was announced yesterday. Safety Car Heating and Lighting company of New York was awarded the contract for the cooling systems.

SLOAN URGES A BROADER CREDIT BASE FOR NATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Jan. 7.—Urging a broadening in the credit base of the United States, but without in any sense departing from our present monetary standards as an antidote to the overdrawn period of deflation and depression, Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of the General motors corporation, today told the Boston Chamber of Commerce that "this alone would form the basis for an economic recovery."

ALFRED P. SLOAN.

"It seems to me," he said, in addressing the chamber, "it is perfectly possible through the adjustment of our credit structure to stabilize prices at their present levels, or even at a higher level more in harmony with the present trend of wages. This really means, in effect, that we must broaden our base of credit, but without in any sense departing from present monetary standards.

Excess of Deflation.

"Such a process would be justified on the theory that deflation had largely overrun its course. We would then be maintaining a broader spread between the cost of necessities and income; we would eliminate further general liquidation; we would protect equities and their relation to debts, and through the resulting increases in prices there would develop a wave of confidence through the psychological reaction that always comes when prices begin to rise.

"It is not at all impossible to assume that with the essentials fairly well established for an economic recovery, this alone would form the basis of an actual start."

Comparing conditions of the present time with those of 1921, Mr. Sloan said, "We find that even this year, notwithstanding our subnormal rate of activity, we are producing more steel, more copper, more motor cars and more almost everything else than we did at that time, and by a wide margin, and we are consuming far more than we are producing."

The speaker said that faith in American business is shown to an outstanding degree by the fact that tens of thousands of Americans are buying shares in American businesses.

"Our stockholders' list has increased during the years 1930-'31 by 81,000, or 34 per cent, and when we note that of our 320,000 stockholders 120,000 have investments with us of less than $200 we must admit that there is no lack of confidence on the part of this large aggregation as to the future of our industrial organizations."

Industry in Government.

Touching upon the proposals of cooperation between government and industry looking to a solution of the many problems of the present depression, Mr. Sloan said, "I should like to see the problem approached from the standpoint of industry in government—not from the standpoint of government in industry. The influence or position that such a council might have on various questions should carry weight, solely from the standpoint of the confidence that exists in its personnel. It must be remembered that the ownership of American business is passing more and more into the hands of the masses, and it is highly desirable that that process

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 7.—Electric light and power companies in the United States will spend $455,000,000 for expansion and improvement in 1932, according to an annual survey compiled today by Electrical World. The budget is about 28 per cent less than actual expenditures in 1931, due principally to a drop in construction of generating plants.

More than half of the expenditures scheduled this year will be for extensions and improvements of local service, which will be $203,000,000, about $55,000,000 less than expenditures for distribution systems and substantions in 1931. Transmission construction projects will involve $56,000,000 this year, against $61,000,000 last year.

Revenue Over Two Billions.

Total revenue of the electric light and power industry in 1931 was $2,137,000,000, of which $1,977,000,000 came from the ultimate consumers of electricity. The total is 0.7 per cent below 1930, but 1.5 per cent higher than 1929, according to the survey. Of total income, $695,000,000 came from domestic customers and $568,000,000 was realized in retail commercial sales. Wholesale light and power was $554,000,000.

The distribution of energy to domestic consumers in 1932 increased 7.7 per cent over 1930, while wholesale sales showed a drop of 8.5 per cent. Little change was noted in retail commercial sales.

Electrical service reached 24,676,000 customers and 20,441,000 homes in 1931, a gain of 120,000 in number of customers. The industry also served 3,613,000 retail commercial and 622,000 wholesale customers. It employs 285,000 persons. The survey reveals that 86 per cent of the urban population of the United States have electrical service.

Service on Farms.

In addition, it was estimated a year ago that 644,000 farms, or about 10 per cent of the total number, had electric connections, and the count was growing then at the rate of 100,000 annually.

The electric light and power industry has a capital investment of $12,400,000,000. It invested $633,000,000 in new construction in 1931. It paid more than $200,000,000 in taxes and used 36,300,000 tons of coal, 7,770,000 barrels of oil and 135,000,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas in generating power.

GOLDBLATT BROS.' 1931 SALES SHOW 12 PER CENT GAIN

Maurice Goldblatt, president of Goldblatt Bros., Inc., announced yesterday that sales of the organization for the fiscal year, ended Dec. 31, were $17,109,655, as compared with $15,092,313 for the previous year. This is an increase of approximately 12 per cent.

The figures include the sales of all six of the Goldblatt stores, two of which were acquired during the year—the Kaufman & Wolf Department store of Hammond, Ind., was acquired Dec. 16 and the former Loren Miller Co., Broadway and Lawrence, was acquired early in August. Mr. Goldblatt further announced that each of the other four stores, individually, showed a substantial increase over the previous year.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 7.—Fond hopes fed by an occasional fresh rumor of bullish complexion kept the Wall street trading fraternity digging up overlooked pocket change to invest in "bargain" stocks again today.

As a result the advance which got under way yesterday carried into substantially higher ground. United States Steel common, American Can, and most of the other group leaders netted additional gains of 1 to 2 points with some of the more volatile descriptions jumping ahead even more nimbly.

U. S. Steel almost touched 42 at one time as compared with its recent low of 35½ but was cut down slightly—along with the rest of the list—by profit taking which came into the market toward the close of the session.

Sentiment Improves.

As in the case of yesterday's upturn, there was little in the way of actual news to bolster sentiment. Traders were convinced however that some heartening development was in the offing—just what it was no one presumed to guess—and persuaded themselves that an advance inkling of it was responsible for the buying by big banking interests reported to have given the market its initial push in yesterday's trading.

Rumors of a Franco-British agreement on German reparations payments persisted and a report that the United States Steel corporation is about to report an increase in unfilled orders for the first time in eight months had a good effect in the industrial section.

Trading Picks Up.

To Holders of Florida Bonds:

BONDHOLDERS' COMMITTEES have been organized for the protection of bondholders in a number of the principal cities in Florida where bond defaults exist. However there are many other and smaller political subdivisions where the interests of the bondholders are being neglected, and where unless prompt organized efforts are speedily made, and the affected bondholders cooperate, serious and irreparable losses will be sustained.

A Committee known as the Florida Municipal Bondholders' Protective Committee, has been organized to represent all such bondholders under the sponsorship of the Municipal Securities Association, an organization of investment bankers that has, through its Florida forces, made an intensive survey of conditions and has collected and compiled the most comprehensive financial information relating to that State now available, and further which organization will continue to act for and be representative of the Committee in its Florida operations.

The Committee has opened conveniently located offices in Room 900, at 115 Broadway, New York, and in the Second National Bank Building, Toledo, Ohio, in charge of Secretary Harry A. Dunn, with whom all holders of Florida municipal bonds are urged to communicate for full information and copies of the deposit agreement.

Thomson, Wood and Hoffman, New York City, will be attorneys for the Committee.

It is very evident that such Committee representing a large number of municipalities and being represented in Florida by the Municipal Securities Association can more effectively and economically protect the interest of bondholders than by individual and unorganized action.

The personnel of the Florida Municipal Bondholders' Protective Committee is J. S. Harris, of Stranahan, Harris & Company, Incorporated, Toledo, Ohio, and New York, Chairman; R. E. Crummer, of The Brown-Crummer Company, Wichita, Kansas; C. T. Diehl of the Provident Savings Bank and Trust Company, Cincinnati, Ohio; A. S. Huyck, of A. C. Allyn and Company, Chicago, Illinois, and Boston, Massachusetts; and B. J. Van Ingen, of B. J. Van Ingen & Co., Inc., New York, N. Y.

We have, therefore, consented to serve in an advisory capacity to such Committee, recognizing the seriousness of the situation and the necessity of concerted and prompt action.

This Committee will represent bondholders in over twenty-five cities and towns and when requested other municipalities will be added.

MAYOR CERMAK'S DAUGHTER BUYS RESIDENCE SITE

May Build on River Forest Property.

Mrs. Richey V. Graham, wife of State Senator Richey V. Graham and daughter of Mayor Cermak, yesterday purchased 100 feet of vacant property in "Northwoods," a highly restricted residential district in River Forest, for an undisclosed consideration, from Charles D. Morton, and may erect a residence at a later date. The property is on Ashland avenue near Augusta street, across from the residence of F. C. Mars, president of the Mars Candy company, and Neil C. Hurley.

The seller had expected to build on the property just sold Mrs. Graham but instead bought the residence of Claude Niles, former vice president of the defunct H. O. Stone & Co., at 814 Ashland avenue, in River Forest. Irving H. Banker of 1140 Lake street, Oak Park, who was broker for both parties in the Graham purchase, also reports another cash sale in "Northwoods."

A $1,400,000 loan has been made by the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company for the Charles A. Chapin estate, secured by the ten story Fine Arts building at 408-20 South Michigan avenue. The term is ten years and the rate 5½ per cent. The money is to be used for refinancing purposes. William A. Bond & Co., local representatives of the insurance company, negotiated the loan. Wilson & McIlvaine were attorneys for the grantor.

Dennis J. Finn has conveyed title to the property at 9413-15 South State street to the 9413-15 South State street Building corporation. The land is improved with a garage under lease to the Illinois Bell Telephone company. Maurice A. Barancik was attorney.

Buys 28-Flat Building.

Hotel System, Inc., headed by Frank Fishman, has purchased from Meyer L. Schwartz of Milwaukee, the building containing twenty-eight apartments, occupying the entire block of frontage on the south side of 74th street, from Kingston to Colfax avenues, 181x150, for an undisclosed consideration, subject to $110,000. The Stewart Realty company, broker, reported this transaction.

The gas station property at 4443-49 West Harrison street has been leased by Jessie W. Ballard and the Elmhurst State bank as trustee, to Abe Greenspan for a term of ten years and four months beginning Jan. 1, 1932, at a total rental of $17,600.

N. W. HARRIS CO. MARKS CAPITAL DOWN $2,000,000

Albert W. Harris, chairman of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, in a letter sent to stockholders yesterday said that the N. W. Harris company investment affiliate of the bank, operated at a profit in 1931 but like similar concerns had sustained a depreciation in the market value of its holdings.

To take care of this depreciation the company has written down the capital from $5,000,000 to $3,000,000. The $2,000,000 from this operation together with accumulated profits and reserves took care of all depreciation, he stated. A substantial part of the assets, $4,660,000 in investments, is in bonds and the impairment is not considered permanent, he added. In addition the company has $1,074,022 in cash.

The first of the annual election of Chicago's outlying banks were held yesterday. Thomas A. Fitzsimmons was elected president of the North Avenue State bank to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Landon C. Rose. Clement Quinn and William P. Ellison were elected directors.

At a meeting of stockholders of the Mid-City Trust and Savings bank, Nelson Morris was elected to the board of directors. Edward Morris was named a director of the West Side Trust and Savings bank and Louis Boisot was elected chairman of the bank's advisory committee.

Rudolph L. Johnson was added to the directorate of the Cottage Grove State bank, 7527 Cottage Grove avenue. D. A. Skalitzky was elected trust officer.

Estimate Union Pacific's Income at $9.50 a Share

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Union Pacific's net income for 1931 is estimated at $9.50 a share. This would compare with $15.56 a share in 1930. Loss in nonoperating revenues from dividend omissions and reductions on rail securities held as investments will be reflected to a greater extent in the 1932 results than in the 1931 accounts.

Rochester dispatch says that net profit of Eastman Kodak company for 1931, according to preliminary indications, will amount to close to $7 a common share. Earnings in 1930 were equal to $8.48 a share.

WHEAT MARKET MOVES SLOWLY UPWARD AGAIN

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat prices moved slowly upward again yesterday without aggressive buying being in evidence. The May delivery touched 58c on the advance, the best figure since Dec. 19. The upturn was in the face of hedging sales and also pressure from houses that frequently act for the coöperatives, but the market absorbed the selling without apparent difficulty and the close was at net gains of ⅝@¾c with March, 56¼c; May, 57⅝c; July, 56¾@56⅞c, and September, 58c.

The strong stock market combined with firmness in Europe and further reports of export demand from abroad were the main influences in bringing about the advance in wheat. The aggregate trade was not large and at times the market was easily influenced. However, sentiment was somewhat more friendly to the buying side, and it was hard to trace where all the wheat sold had gone to.

Deny Big Export Sales.

A scattered export business was under way in Manitoba wheats yesterday from both coasts, but messages from the Pacific coast cast considerable doubt as to the accuracy of the reported sale of 2,000,000 bu Manitobas from the Pacific coast to China early in the week. According to reports from the west the oriental demand has been slow for 30 days. Broomhall claimed a leading Australian exporter had sold 2,500,000 bu wheat to China recently.

A marked improvement in the general milling demand for cash wheat was in evidence yesterday, numerous inquiries being received, and local local handlers finally reported sales at 183,000 bu. There were intimations of export demand for hard winters, but if there was any business it was not reported. The farm board was said to have booked ocean room at the Atlantic coast on Wednesday to Antwerp.

Taken as a whole the foreign news of late has been more bullish than for some time past, and importers abroad found little comfort in either the Black sea exports of 824,000 bu wheat for the week or the estimated clearances of 1,544,000 bu from Argentina. As the result of the advance of around 3c per bu in the May from the low of Tuesday the technical position was regarded as having been weakened to a considerable extent.

Winnipeg wheat futures were dull but firm, closing ½c higher with May at 64c in Canadian currency, which was around 15¼ per cent discount. Liverpool was unchanged to ⅛c per bu higher with May at 58c. Buenos Aires advanced ⅝c over Tuesday's finish with January quoted at 42⅝c.

Corn Reacts After Bulge.

Scattered commission house buying was in evidence in corn early, but there was persistent local selling and the best prices were not maintained. the close being ⅛@¼ higher. March finished at 40@40⅛c; May, 41⅜c, and July, 43¼c. The May corn and wheat spread widened to 15⅞c at the last, compared with 14¾c earlier in the week, and there was some talk of a larger movement from parts of Illinois. Purchases to arrive during the day aggregated 23,000 bu, while shipping sales were only 7,000 bu. Buenos Aires closed ½@⅝c lower.

Oats prices were somewhat higher early due to commission house buying. Cash interests sold and caused a reaction from the top with the finish unchanged to ⅛c higher. May was 26½c, and July 25⅞c at the last. Shipping sales were 38,000 bu.

A fairly liberal foreign demand has been in evidence the last few days for Canadian rye, and Scandinavia and Rotterdam were credited with having bought yesterday. Futures, however, were little affected, although closing ½@⅝c higher. The upturn was due mainly to sympathy with wheat. May finished at 47½c and July at 47⅞c.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

The expressions of opinion among wheat traders at the close were more two-sided. A large number of operators said that stocks and wheat have had a good advance and the technical position had been weakened. They look for an advance early today, to be followed by increased selling and a reaction. On the other hand, those in close touch with the cash wheat situation said there was more general milling demand all over the country than for some time past, with high grade wheat more difficult to buy and the sale of 188,000 bu to mills at Chicago was taken as indicating the belief in the stability of wheat prices on the part of millers and a good business is expected today, unless prices advance too rapidly.

Among corn traders there was the belief that any further advance will materially increase country offerings and that with any further upturn in wheat corn will be likely to follow to a moderate extent.

A great deal of discussion has developed over the figures given out on feeding by Nat C. Murray. The Uhlmann Grain company say the amount of wheat fed during the first six months of this year, 129,000,000 bu, is too high, but add that it is any one's guess. They say the normal consumption of wheat in the United States is assumed to be 650,000,000 bu. Of this about 80,000,000 bu is used for seed, possibly 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 bu used ordinarily for feed and other purposes, leaving about 510,000,000 bu for human food. If it were equally divided during the year we would have a consumption of 255,000,000 bu for human food for the first six months," they say. "However, we admit that probably considerably more than this has been used for flour during the first six months than there will be in the last six months."

CASH-GRAIN NEWS

There was not the snap to the foreign demand for North American wheat so much in evidence recently, but a fair business was said to have been put through in Manitobas from both coasts. Canadian rye was sold in fair volume to Scandinavia and Rotterdam. The farm board was said to have booked ocean room from the Atlantic coast to Antwerp.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Thursday: Wheat, 3 cars; corn, 80 cars; oats, 26 cars; rye, 1 car; barley, 6 cars.

LARD PRICES ADVANCED

Commission house buying of lard, based largely, it was said, on the advance in grains and stocks, was large enough yesterday to absorb the hedging by warehouse interests who are buying the loose lard from packers. Trade in all was better and at the close prices were unchanged to 5½c higher. May bellies were up 15½c, with January unchanged. Cash trade was fair. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 6d higher, the latter on May. Exports of lard were 3,225,700 lbs and of bacon, 49,200 lbs. Hog receipts in the west were in excess of a week ago, but smaller than last year. Prices follow:

CHICAGO INVESTORS CO. WINDS UP YEAR WITH DEFICIT OF $1,585,061

Chicago Investors' corporation had an operating profit last year of $596,272, but this was more than offset by an unrealized market depreciation in the value of securities of $2,301,071.

As a result of the decline in the value of the holdings, the surplus of $481,120 which the trust had at the beginning of the year was wiped out and the company closed 1931 with a balance sheet deficit of $1,585,061. In accordance with the company's policy the unrealized loss is charged to the profit and loss account in the annual statement which was issued last night by President Ralph A. Bard.

A proposal to wipe out the deficit by a reduction in the stated value of the common stock from $5 to $1 a share will be submitted to stockholders at the annual meeting Jan. 27. The action will in no way affect the value of the convertible preference stock, President Bard pointed out.

The preference stock had an asset value as of Dec. 31 of $30.10 a share as compared with $42.72 a share at the close of 1930. Total net assets after reserves for contingencies amounting to $100,000, aggregated $3,992,187 based on market values at the close of the year.

During the year the company purchased 25,200 shares of its own convertible preference stock at an average price of $26 a share. At the beginning of the year the company held 42,182 shares of the stock and of this and the additional shares purchased, 65,000 shares were retired and canceled during December. This left a balance on Dec. 31 of 135,000 shares issued, 2,382 shares of which were held in the treasury for retirement.

COTTON LOSES EARLY RISE

A strong opening, with a 5 to 10 point advance in cotton futures early in the day was followed by a reaction yesterday and a close at the lowest of the session. Professionals were the best buyers early while offerings in the south in general were comparatively small. It is said that January contracts were not so easy to fill as of late, while there appeared to be sufficient cotton offered for future delivery for all requirements.

At the close futures in Chicago were unchanged to 5 points higher, January being up 5 points and October off 1 point. Other outside markets were 1@4 points lower, with spots unchanged at 6.45c for New York, 6.25c in New Orleans and Galveston, and 6.20c in Houston. Liverpool closed 3@4 points net higher with sterling exchange up about 4 points.

Spinners are said to be favoring greater use of American cotton on account of the relative cheapness of American as compared with Indian cotton. Prices follow:

EGG FUTURES DECLINE

Egg futures reacted sharply on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, declining 1c, but recovering part of the loss to close ¾c lower. Butter futures also were under pressure and closed ⅝c lower. The market held quietly until near the close when the selling gained headway. The statistical news in eggs continued bearish, the four markets reporting only 19,000 cases net out or 6,000 cases less than last year and reports of collections showing a sharp increase. Butter news was rather mixed, the storage reports improving slightly, but production showing an increase over last year. Only scattered new buying appeared, covering constituting most of the support in both markets. Sales: Butter, 42 cars; eggs, 57 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 1 car. Prices follow:

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The total deposits in all the banks and trust companies of New York state are equivalent to an average balance of $1,457 for every resident of the state, the highest average of any state in the Union and three times the per capita of bank deposits for the country as a whole.

The figures for New York are compared with those of eighteen of the principal banking states in the New York state chamber of commerce monthly bulletin for December, just published.

The bulletin lists the per capita deposits in all banks and trust companies of the principal banking states as follows:

State.	Deposit.	State.	Deposit.
New York	$1,457	Ohio	$ 402
Massachusetts	998	Michigan	374
Connecticut	790	Missouri	348
Rhode Island	752	Iowa	330
California	640	Nebraska	227
Delaware	613	Kansas	212
New Jersey	587	Virginia	199
Pennsylvania	550	Texas	189
Illinois	520	Oklahoma	178
Maryland	495	U. S. average	481

The New York deposits total more than eighteen and a third billion dollars, roughly, equal to the national debt or the cost of the world war.

Three Automobile Firms Report Bigger Production

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 7. — Three automobile factories which recently went into new car production have reported increased output compared to last year and two months ago. The Buick Motor company reported its December production totaled 11,629 units, against 9,053 in November. Graham-Paige reported its output of new eight cylinder cars was the largest December production since 1925. Shipments for the Hupp Motor Car corporation for December were 1,044 cars, compared with 248 in November.

Sterling Exchange Shows Advance of Four Cents

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Sterling rallied more than 4 cents, perhaps on reports that the outlook for a balancing of the British budget was brighter. The French franc was heavy and German marks reacted slightly.

Soon after a 5@15c higher opening yesterday in hogs, with the top price at $4.60 only 5c under the highest point since Nov. 19, the market swung around and finished steady with the general selling the day before. The average for the whole day, however, showed 5c gain at $4.05.

The top and average prices showed the widest spread since early in October. Eastern outlet continued broad and bulk of the selected 140@220 lb averages went over the scales on the early rise, but only occasional sales of medium and weighty butchers were made on the bulge.

Most smaller houses held back until the early gains were erased and seemed satisfied with comparatively small droves. The local slaughter of hogs has been smaller this week and larger houses have handled fewer directs. Outsiders during the first four days of the week bought 31 per cent of Chicago receipts against 25 per cent a week ago.

Offer May Contracts.

May hogs were offered at $5.50 on the futures trade yesterday and bids for these contracts ranged upwards to $5.00. March hogs were also bid $5.00 and offered at $5.25, while most January and February hogs were bid $4.00@4.25.

Recently improved cattle quotations attracted a few too many yesterday and it became evident soon after the start that the edge was off and the market was leaning to the weak side again. It was a listless affair from the opening to the close and a fair holdover was apparent near the end of the day. No sharp losses were recorded, the most decline stopping at 25c in plain quality steers, but it was difficult to induce buyers to bid on the warmed up and short fed cattle that predominated again yesterday.

Eastern outlet for top kinds continues good. Outsiders during the first four days of this week bought 14,800 head here, against 11,130 a week ago and 12,264 a year ago. No fancy yearlings were available, so prime 1,294 lb steers topped the list at $10.25. Some 1,445 lb averages were sold at $10.00. Yearlings of exceptional quality are quoted up to $11.25.

Prices Down 25 Cents.

The reaction in the lamb market yesterday ended a five day rise that carried quotations to the highest level of the winter. Prices went down mostly 25c, with some medium grades off as much as 50c, but despite the break in prices, the trade toward the finish exhibited a healthy undertone. Buyers eagerly absorbed the generous receipts when they realized a cut in quotations and few loads remained for the afternoon rounds of trading. City butchers paid to $6.75 for their selections and packers bought 75@95 lb averages freely around $6.50 and paid $6.00 for some 106 lb wool lambs and 85 lb shorn stock. Matured stock and yearlings were mostly steady. Feeder lambs held firm at $4.75@5.00.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil today closed steady and unchanged to 2 points higher where business developed. Sales were only 2 contracts, or 300 barrels. Steadiness to commodities in general and the further advance in stocks were the principal features. Crude oil was quoted at 3¼ to 3¾c in the southeast and the valley and nominal in Texas. Parmelee Transportation.

Will you please let me know what your opinion of Parmelee Transportation company stock is? Enclosed find self addressed, stamped envelope for reply.—A. S.

Parmelee Transportation company, a holding concern, was incorporated in April, 1929. Through subsidiaries it is the largest operator of taxicabs in the United States.

Reflecting expansion, total operating revenues in 1930 on a consolidated basis were $21,807,000, against $13,283,000 the year before. Net loss for 1930 was $38,000, against net income of $1,305,000 or $4.42 per common share for 1929.

For the first nine months of 1931 net loss was $524,300, of which $374,900 was sustained in the third quarter. For the first nine months of 1930 net profit was $70,600 before nonrecurring losses of $514,300, which sum was charged directly to surplus.

On December 31, 1930, the consolidated balance sheet showed current assets of $1,492,000 and current liabilities of $1,183,000. Cash assets were $725,400 and bank loans were $315,000. Working capital was $309,700, against $1,153,000 the year before.

Funded debt was $3,125,000, equipment notes and accounts totaled $4,680,000 and equipment trust certificates and mortgages payable were $535,000. There were outstanding 721,905 shares of no par common stock on which no dividend has been paid since December 10, 1930.

Houston Lighting and Power.

I shall appreciate your opinion on Houston Lighting & Power company first 4½s, due 1981, as a long term investment.—A. E. G.

Houston Lighting & Power company furnishes electricity to Houston and 73 other communities in 9 counties in Texas.

Gross revenues for 1930 were $8,790,000, against $7,994,000 for 1929 and $7,200,000 for 1928.

Charges in 1930 were earned 2.68 times, against 2.56 times in 1929, 2.48 times in 1928, and 2.37 times in 1927.

For the twelve months to October 31, 1931, gross revenues were $8,537,000, against $8,798,000 for the preceding twelve months.

Charges were earned 2.64 times, against 2.75 times for the twelve months to October 31, 1930.

Commonwealth Customers Pay LESS for LOANS

$2.95 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

THERE ARE NO fees or deductions. You may take 25 months or pay all or part sooner. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.
